Inflation Bill Authors Set 15% Limit On Pay Rises

'Little Steel' Wage Standard Accepted; Showdown Put Off On Parity Issue

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Senate Banking Committee last night tentatively agreed to limit wage increases permitted in the Senate price control bill to 15 per cent of pay levels reached on January 1, 1941.

The "Little Steel" decision of the War Labor Board, already in force for a majority of American industrial workers, would serve as a wage standard for all under terms of the amendment.

Postponing a showdown on the crucial farm parity issue, the committee granted one lone concession to the farm bloc—authorization for 90 per cent of parity Government loans on farm crops. The loan basis is now 85 per cent, and Senators said few commodities would be affected by the change.

Roosevelt Intervenes

President Roosevelt meanwhile took a hand in the fight to stave off farm bloc demands for upward revision of the parity formula to allow for farm labor and production costs.

At a White House conference with House and Senate bill managers, and later in letters to chairmen of both banking committees, President Roosevelt served notice that the House Steagall bill revising parity and authorizing 100 per cent loans is unacceptbale.

To recalculate parity now and to offer the public 100 per cent of a new and higher parity would be to offer stabilization yet destroy the possibility of achieving it," the President wrote Senator Wagner of New York and Representative Steagall of Alabama (Democrats).

The President stepped into the fight after Senator Bankhead (Democrat) of Alabama proposed to write Steagall's upward revision of parity into the Senate bill with farm organization support.

Administration Barrage Opened

Price Administrator Leon Henderson, Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard and Chairman William H. Davis of the War Labor Board in letters to the Banking Committee joined the Administration's drive to block the parity change.

Henderson was said to have informed the House committee: "The President asked Congress to fill the cracks in the anti-inflation dam, but this bill (Steagall's draft) would blow up the whole dam."

Steagall declined to say what action he would take following his summons to the White House, and his committee reached no decisions at an afternoon session. The bill was reported to have only about half a dozen votes in the committee. Unless it is modified by Steagall himself a substitute measure may be offered independently by a group of committeemen.

Chop House Keeper's Purse, $350 Stolen

The theft of her pocketbook containing $350 in cash, and war bonds and stamps valued at $410 was reported to police yesterday by Alma Rappaport, proprietor of Casey's Chop House at 619 Seventeenth Street Northwest.

The green colored purse, she told officers, was removed from the chop house about 9:30 a. m. by "an unknown person."

Churches Back Collection Plan

Billy Barrett, 915 Evarts Street Northeast, ran the tires off his wagon collecting a pile of 2800 pounds of scrap metal. Billy, who did the work alone, expects to hit the 3000-pound mark today. (Story on Page 6)

Scattered protests against choosing Sunday for the collection of scrap metal yesterday literally were drowned out by the overwhelming enthusiasm with which religious Washington marshaled its forces behind the whirlwind campaign.

Not only do most Washington clergymen plan to make pulpit statements Sunday in support of the drive, but many of them are going down into church basements to conduct personal searches for the precious metal.

Typical of churchmen's response to the pressing need for scrap was the statement of Dr. Frederick Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, announcing that the directors of that group will meet today at 12:30 p. m. to map plans to support of the campaign. The federation is the central body of more than 170 Protestant churches and allied agencies.

Dr. Page McK. Etchison, president of the District of Columbia Organized Bible Class Association, put that group 100 per cent behind the drive and announced there had been

Thief Snatches $19,000 Gems, Escapes From F Street Store

A bold daylight theft executed in the heart of downtown Washington yesterday netted a "clean-cut" young man $19,000 worth of unmounted diamonds which he scooped from the counter of Kahn-Oppenheimer, Inc., 903 F Street Northwest. It was Washington's largest jewel robbery of recent years, police said.

The robber, who professed to be in the market for a $400 stone, grabbed a black leather wallet containing "hundreds of diamonds" which Rudolph Kahn, a member of the firm, had been showing him, dashed through the door to the street, ran down E Street to Ninth and disappeared as he turned the corner.

"He just vanished," Kahn told reporters. The elderly jeweler ran after the fleeing thief, but lost sight of him as he turned left at the corner.

Employes in the store described the robber as about 5 feet 8 inches in height, with sandy hair and gray eyes. He wore a gray "salt-and-pepper" sport jacket, odd trousers and "talked well," they said. All agreed that he was a "clean-cut" looking fellow, but there was disagreement as to his age, which was placed anywhere from 25 to 35.

Kahn said the young man first came to the store last Tuesday afternoon, announced that he was looking for a stone for his fiancee, and closely examined

Ickes Calls Speeders Slackers, Urges Heavy Court Penalties

Secretary of Interior Ickes yesterday bluntly castigated Capital parkways speeders as "slackers" and advocated a policy of "soaking" offenders when they are haled into court for exceeding the 35-mile speed limit which was put into effect in line with the Baruch Committee's recommendations.

Fines of $5 and $10 aren't enough to force compliance with the new speed edict, he declared at a press conference. "There's no use in arresting people and imposing these small fines. They ought to make it hurt."

He suggested also that "an example" be made of Government employes, two of whom recently were arrested for speeding and escaped with fines of $5 in one case, $10 in the other.

"How can the average citizen be expected to cooperate when people who draw their pay from the Government won't do their part? he asked.

He cited another case of a woman —"I hope she was good looking"— who was arrested for speeding in one of the parks and "got off with a bond."

His remarks were made in response to questions as to how the new speed limit was working out. After reporting that things were not going so well, that people continued indifferent, and that "the courts aren't giving any help," he revealed he had written to Chief Judge George P. Barse of Municipal Court, asking cooperation in War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson yesterday announced creation of a supreme command to keep America's war-goods manufacture in high gear and the selection of Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric Co., to head it with the title of vice chairman of WPB.

Into a new Production Executive Committee, Nelson brought together the top production-procurement officers of the Army, Navy and Maritime Commission with Wilson, committee chairman, as its only civilian member.

Wilson, who started to work when he was 13 years old and whom President Roosevelt called "one of the ablest production executives in the country," was delegated Nelson's powers as WPB chairman to see to it that war production programs are met.

Approved by President

Nelson's announcement noted that his selection was approved by the President. The WPB chief declared that Wilson "will be the top production authority in the war program."

The appointment, together with creation of the committee of production officers from the service, generally was interpreted as a move by Nelson for recapture of the control over production that WPB relinquished several months ago to the Army, Navy and Maritime Commission.

Also considered significant in the light of America's growing air power was the fact that Nelson reserved a place on the committee for Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, chief of the materials command of the Army Air Forces.

Other committee members:

Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, chief of the Army's services of supply; Vice Admiral Samuel M. Robinson, the Navy's director of material and procurement, and Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery, vice

'Jawbone' Credit At Army Camps To Cease Nov. 1

The War Department yesterday ordered all credit to soldiers at Army camps—the institution known throughout the Army as "jawbone"—to cease in this country starting November 1.

Thereafter, if a soldier or officer wants a soda at the post exchange, a haircut at the camp barbershop, a seat in the camp movie, or anything else, it will be cash on the barrel head.

The pay-as-you-go system has been tried out experimentally at ort Bragg, N. C., since August 1. The department said it had worked so well that now it will be applied to the rest of the United States. Whether it also will apply to overseas posts is being left up to individual commanding generals.

"In addition to the military advantages derived from the pay-as-you-go plan, it is designed to further the President's program for reduction of credit buying," the department added. "It is believed also that the policy will inculcate the habits of thrift in the soldier."

Four Nipponese Ships Are Sunk; Large Tanker Left Burning

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

American submarines, striking new blows at Japan's far-flung supply lines, have sunk four more enemy ships and damaged four others, the Navy announced yesterday.

The Niponese supply vessels were torpedoed in Far Eastern waters, the Navy said, but it did not otherwise identify the scene of the actions. It was made plain, however, that they were not related to the operations in the Solomons.

There was no further word during the day from the Navy Department on the progress of fighting on Gusdalcanal, where United States Marines and Japs have been battling since last Saturday night.

Lull Apparently Continues

Presumably the lull in the battle continues. Wednesday night the Navy reported that our Marines, holding firmly to their positions, had checked the enemy attacks and that the intensity of the fighting had lessened.

No credence was placed here in a round-about report that the Japs had retaken the important Guadalcanal airdrome. The report was carried by the United Press from Stockholm, and quoted dispatches from enemy-held Shanghai to a Swedish news service.

Another unverified report of impending action in the Solomons came from Chungking. The United Press correspondent there, Robert P. Martin, quoted "usually reliable sources" to the effect that a strong Japanese naval force, including four battleships, was heading for the Solomons, apparently seeking a showdown with the United States Fleet and aiming to drive our forces out of the strategic islands.

Subs' Bag Now 107

The Navy communique on Japanese ship losses listed this toll:

Sunk—two large freighters, one medium-sized freighter and one small patrol boat.

These latest successes brought the total number of Japanese ships sunk or damaged by American submarines to 107. Of these, 69 have been reported sunk, 17 "probably sunk" and 21 damaged.

The Chungking report declared that four Jap battleships said to be enroute to the Solomons constituted two-thirds of the available Nipponese dreadnaught strength. It said that of the 11 battleships Japan had at the beginning of the war, one was sunk, one damaged seriously and three were being repaired in drydock.

While the torpedoing of eight additional enemy ships by United

Roosevelt Spurns Captured Jap Flag As Unfit to Touch

President Roosevelt received a new American Flag yesterday and refused at the same time even to touch a Japanese standard captured in the Marine raid on Makin Island last month.

The American colors were given to him by flag seamstresses at the Army Quartermaster Depot at Philadelphia. Lieut. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the Marine Corps, had intended to give the Chief Executive the Japanese emblem, a naval flag made of white sailcloth with the rising sun painted in the middle.

"I'm not going to receive it," the Chief Executive declared with a firm voice. "I'll look at it and tell you to take it back and put it in the historic archives of the Marine Corps."

Then, with a manner which indicated he might be contaminated, the Chief Executive added:

"I don't think I want to touch it."

Holcomb held out the flag, and Mr. Roosevelt observed that it was a painted one, commenting: "Not very good paint, either."

Troubled Balkans

Mystery Aircraft Menace Magyars; Sofia, Reds at Odds

By the Associated Press

London, Sept 17.—Mysterious balloons laden with explosives were reported over Hungary tonight while the Sofia radio shouted an air raid warning and suddenly went off the air in the midst of a sudden crisis between Bulgaria and Russia over a consulate raid by Bulgarian police.

The Budapest radio officially warned Hungarians of a large number of enemy balloons floating over their country but no other word was given to explain their origin or whether they were causing damage.

Hungarians were requested to report such balloons immediately. The Vichy News Agency reported the balloons trail explosive or incendiary material on hanging cables and are intended to catch in telephone and high tension wires and cause short circuits.

Almost in the same hour the Sofia announcer broke off in the middle of a sentence to shout:

"Air raid warning. Bulgarians keep calm."

Then his station immediately shut down.

Bulgaria has had air raid warnings in recent days but not raids. The little Balkan country never has declared war against its old friend Russia, but is definitely aligned with the Axis as a partner.

The Moscow radio reported that Bulgarian police raided the Soviet consulate in the Black Sea port of Varna last Tuesday. The announcement said a number of outrages was committeed, including robbery of consulate funds.

The Soviet minister in Sofia has protested vigorously to the Bulgarian government.

The Berlin radio, however, reported that the Soviet consulate at Varna had been ordered closed by the Bulgarian government.

Meanwhile, the British Air Ministry news service reported that last night's heavy raid on the Ruhr by the R. A. F. brought the tonnage of bombs dropped on Germany so far this month to nearly 5000. The British lost 39 planes but shot down two.

Continuing the air attacks today, coastal command planes hit two Axis ships with torpedoes off the

Another Big U.S. Contingent Reaches Britain

Combat Troops, Recreation Units Included in Convoy

London, Sept. 17.—Another large contingent of American troops has crossed the Atlantic to join the thousands of United States soldiers already in Britain, it was disclosed today.

The convoy which brought them to these shores was escorted by British and American warships, and on the final stage of the voyage by planes of the R. A. F. Coastal Command.

None of the soldiers reported seeing or hearing any U-boat activity and declared that they had had a fast and peaceful crossing. Special trains waiting at the dockside took the men to the camps already prepared for them.

This latest contingent of the second A. E. F. was composed largely of trained combat troops, although there were also hundreds of Army technical experts, Air Force transport units and a few Army Air Force personnel.

Also included were several of the Army's new special service companies trained to conduct and direct troop recreational activities. They will operate motion pictures, organize and direct entertainment, set up radio and victrola listening centers and conduct athletic contests and group games.

Each company is composed of two service platoons and a canteen platoon. Officers and men alike were trained in a special course in the United States. Each company will have its own vehicles for moving from post to post.

Madagascar French Reject Truce Terms

To Continue Fight, Vichy Says; British Drive Toward Capital

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 17.—Surrender terms laid down by the British have been rejected by the outnumbered Vichy French defenders of Madagascar and they have decided to fight "to the extreme limit," Vichy announced today.

The day after the Colonial Governor, Gen. Armand Annet, had on his own responsibility requested terms to halt the fighting, Vichy broadcast a communique saying the British stipulations "appear to be unacceptable to such an extent" that Annet could not even consider them.

"All measures are being taken to continue the struggle despite the disproportion in forces and means," the radio continued.

The British, meanwhile, were believed continuing their advance toward Tananarive, inland capital of the island, which began when the Royal Navy and the Royal Air Force attacked three key points on Madagascar's West Coast, September 10.

The principal fight appeared to be on the road to Tananarive, 230 miles southeast of Majunga, one of the three captured ports.

There still was no official information in London on the progress of negotiations between Annet and the British commander, which the Vichy radio now indicated have been broken off.

In asking the armistice, Annet requested that the talks be arranged "to find means by which we can cease fighting with honor."

Raiders Blew Tobruk Defenses Sky-High, Eyewitness Says

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 17.—Tons of explosives blew Axis supplies, batteries and fortifications sky high in the British sea and air raid on Tobruk last Sunday night, it was reported today by George Palmer of the United Press, who is back in Alexandria from the expedition which ended with Larry Allen of the Associated Press believed to be a prisoner in Italian hands.

The United Press, declining the advantage given it by Allen's misfortune, made Palmer's story available to the Associated Press.

Palmer and Allen were the only American correspondents accredited to the British Mediterranean fleet and Palmer was the only one to return from the storming of Tobruk.

"As we got away," he reported, "I saw a small fire at the stern of the destroyer Sikh, which was sunk in the operation.

"The Associated Press correspondent, Larry Allen, was aboard the Sikh."

The Italian radio has announced that an American correspondent was captured in the Tobruk operation but has not made known his name.

Since the Sikh—whose loss along with her sister destroyer Zulu has been announced by the British—went down with the operation still not finished, Allen presumably was able to swim ashore or was saved by Italian rescue crews. The Italians have reported picking up men out of the water from the expedition's sunken ships.

Palmer said the naval forces steamed into Tobruk after the port

German Advance Units Erased; Bombers Pound Weary Defenders

By Eddy Gilmore

Moscow, Friday, Sept. 18.—Bayonet-wielding Russian troops wiped out hundreds of German shock troops who smashed into Stalingrad's streets yesterday, and the main conflict still rages on the northwestern outskirts of the city, where thousands of Nazis have fallen, the Soviets announced early today.

Both Russians and Germans were fighting in cellars and on housetops on the fringes of the city, press dispatches said.

The repulse of the Nazi break into the city itself was related thus by the communique:

Foe Finally Repulsed

"Street fighting resulted which developed into hand-to-hand encounters. Toward the end of the day all detachments which had penetrated our positions were repulsed.

"The Germans left behind hundreds of dead and damaged trucks and tanks."

Continuing the story of the epic struggle for Stalingrad, the communique said:

"Within two days one of our units destroyed 54 German tanks, 31 guns and 12 motor vehicles. They wiped out about 1500 enemy officers and men.

"On another sector our guardsmen routed a battalion of enemy infantry and destroyed eight tanks, two mortar batteries and 15 motor vehicles."

Recapture Locality

In the Mozdok area of the mid-Caucasus the Russians said one unit drove the Germans from an inhabited point, destroying eight German tanks and killing about 300 Germans.

Southeast of Novorossisk along the Black Sea coast marines were said to have repulsed several enemy attacks and mopped up a battalion of enemy infantry.

A Russian bomber formation also attacked a German-occupied Black Sea port, presumably Novorossisk, and sank two enemy mine sweepers and three torpedo boats and blew up an ammunition dump, the communique said.

At Voronezh on the upper Don the Russians, taking the offensive, dislodged the Germans from one populated place, wiping out three enemy battalions and capturing a quantity of war equipment, the Soviets said.

Another enemy regiment was wiped out in another undisclosed sector in two days of hard fighting.

Allies Bomb Rabaul, Buna, Sink 15 Jap Barges

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Australia (Friday), Sept. 18 (AP). Allied bombers have delivered additional heavy attacks on Japanese bases at Rabaul and Buna, destroying or damaging at least 15 barges at Buna, Allied headquarters announced today.

The midnight communique indicated a lapse of activity in the Owen Stanley Mountains of New Guinea, though enemy forces yesterday were reported pressing closer to Port Moresby. "Sporadic fighting" continues there, the Allied command said. Earlier reports, in contrast, had spoken of conflict between the main element on both sides.

Writer Sees Dogfight Over 'Stuka Alley'

All Houses Forts

Reds' 'Suicide' Exploits Harry Foe

By the Associated Press

Berlin (from German Broadcasts), Sept. 17.—Soviet soldiers in Stalingrad are putting up a "suicide" fight against the Germans who have driven a wedge through the city to the Volga, a Transocean News Agency report said today.

The German agency said the Red Army still left in the city was "offering fanatical resistance in small and large groups which military quarters in Berlin characterize as suicide."

"Stalingrad has ceased to be a solid block of resistance," it added, and parts of the city are "under complete control" of the Nazis.

Earlier, the high command dismissed the Stalingrad fight with this one sentence: "The batile for the fortified city of Stalingrad is progressing without interruption."

The Germans said they had changed their tactics to a fight for every road, every house and every stronghold in the city.

The radio reports said heavy, three-inch field howitzers, shellthrowers and antiaircraft artillery as well as armored infantry and sappers were leading the German troops into the city step by step.

In districts of the city already under German control, these dispatches added, hand-to-hand fighting is going on as the Nazis mop up remaining Soviet pockets of resistance.

Overhead, German dive bombers were reported incessantly attacking Stalingrad factories which have been turned "into veritable fortresses."

Russians Wipe Out NaziAdvance Units

The Russians said they temporarily lost ground on one sector of the front west of Moscow during a German attack yesterday, but restored their positions in violent counterattacks which destroyed 22 German tanks and killed 1200 Germans.

(The German high command said merely: "The battle for the fortified City of Stalingrad is progressing without interruption.")

The Red army and Stalingrad's citizen soldiers were fighting now for the very existence of the city. They reported they were facing "several tens of divisions," ever reinforced.

Soviet infantry, artillery and tanks were putting up a magnificent struggle against these ground forces, but it was the terrifying German air superiority which took the Nazis into the city's residential sections.

Again it has been demonstrated how a city can be penetrated if the invading forces have their way in the air.

At midday yesterday the Moscow radio said: "The German advance against the city continues."

But the noon communique and the daily battle dispatches to the military press in no way intimated that the resistance had lessened or that the city was falling.

Instead they related how the Russians were killing thousands and in some places counterattacking.

Yet the dispatches left no doubt that the Luftwaffe "in tremendous force" was continuously raining bombs on the weary fighters who have been holding out against direct attack for 24 days.

The army organ Red Star said the fate of the city lay in the hands of the outnumbered Soviet fighter pilots, rushed to Stalingrad in the last few days. The newspaper's correspondent related how the sky over the city was alive with both dive bombers and altitude bombers.

Battle accounts did not explain how the Germans were able to attain such massive air superiority, other than to point out that aircraft have been rushed there from areas as distant as Egypt and the Netherlands.

Nazi transport planes brought up fresh troops to airfields on the rim of Stalingrad, pouring them directly into the battle. Documents found in one Junkers transport shot down by the Russians showed it had flown from Holland.

In the northwest residential outskirts German riflemen were swarming into every house, firing from attics and basements. The Russians ejected them from many dwellings.

German tanks were burned out in the streets by fire from antitank rifles or from incendiary bottles. In one place, the midday communique said, 400 Germans were killed in hand to hand combat.

Southwest of the city, the Russians said, Soviet troops and gunners still were smashing tanks, armored cars, ammunition trucks and killing German soldiers by the hundreds.

In the deep Caucasus the fighting raged east of Mozdok as well as south of the Terek River, indicating the Germans now were trying to develop a two-directional attack upon Grozny, the oil field center about 50 miles distant.

On the Volkhov River front east of Leningrad a big battle was raging, involving a heavy German counter-assault. In one place, 5000 Nazis were reported killed. The Germans also were attacking in strength against the Russian positions on the west bank of the upper Don south of Voronezh, but the Russian lines were reported still intact.

Soldiers in Egypt Expect Desert Lull To Be Ended Soon

By Daniel De Luce
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the British Eighth Army in the Western Desert, Sept. 17.—Above Stuka Alley, where you rubberneck in a steel hat, the R. A. F. and the Axis fought it out again today for mastery of the Egyptian front.

You're on El Rumwelsat, the ridge paid for in blood, between the turquoise surf of the Mediterranean and the hot bleak wastes of the Gattara depression. You crouch inside a small circular wall of rocks piled up by the Italian infantry not long ago.

You stare across no man's land at Marshal Rommel's outposts and count his armor rumbling to new havens from the dusty north-south track and try to keep tab on the whirling dogfights in the bleached blue sky.

Weary and licking their wounds after their assault on British warships at Tobruk early in the week, the Nazi Stukas have temporarily deserted the battlegrounds bearing their nicknames. But the skies are over run with Messerschmitts, Hurricanes, Spitfires—one confusion of blazing fights high over sands littered during three months with the blackened wrecks of tanks and aircraft while changing hands a half-dozen times.

Convoy Takes Cover

An armored convoy of more than 100 vehicles has scuttled into a wide dispersal as "hurribombers" lay explosives with uncanny precision and fight off Messerschmitts at the same time.

Spitfires swooping down from the top cover make the Nazi pilots in turn very unhappy.

Out of range of the British 25-pound batteries, the enemy convoy might have gone through unscathed had not the R. A. F.'s flying artillery sprung into action.

Six planes were seen falling behind the Axis lines and there was no way of telling their identity immediately. But the R. A. F. usually outscores the Nazis even on a tough offensive assignment like this.

A lean and amiable lieutenant, who is an English lord with a face tanned like leather by the African sun, said the R. A. F. is consistently dominant.

"Our chaps at the front would not trade places with Jerry," he said.

"We've got more planes and more guns," the lord said. "We the time comes to knock him out of Egypt he'll find we've also got more tanks."

The lord swats stubborn desert flies and takes a bearing on flashes of German artillery opening up in reprisal for the aerial strafing.

He asks to be remembered to "my friends in Pasadena, Calif." (His name was not given in the dispatch.)

The Egyptian front, hardly more than 40 miles from end to end, is unusually static, except for the continual air force clashes, but no soldier expects the lull to last much longer.

Lush Green Delta

You drive out of Cairo over the muddy Nile, past the Cheops Pyramid and the snub-nosed Sphinx and in six hours or less you are under the fire of Axis guns. It is more than 170 miles by military roads skirting the lush green delta. You see lots of new American equipment.

Along the coast natives in ankle-length gowns and tiny skullcaps cling to their mud homes amid date palms and fig trees, heedless of the war. You meet a jangling carrier returning from El Alamein with a derelict enemy tank.

You leave the coastline on the rough, gritty "Bombay Road" and catch glimpses of the melange of races in the Eighth Army—British Imperials of almost every description, including black Basuto tribesmen, bayonet loving Maoris as well as Poles and French.

After a snack of bully beef and canned beer with the India battalion, you hike over the rugged ground Rommel lost in the summer to a dump of abandoned enemy material—ammunities, uniforms and even a few love letters scattered in the dust.

You salvage one letter. It's Antoinetta writing to Carissimo Nicola lamenting his sudden departure in May and hoping for the end of the war.

You run across a barren rock quickly and sprawl behind the meager ramparts of an advance post. You're facing the enemy now across no-man's-land. Over Stuka Alley, almost as if you had given the cue, the sky fight starts.

"Stick around a few more weeks," says the soldier beside you, "and we will split a bottle of Chianti in Bengasi."

Shah Takes First Flight With Willkie

Kuibyshev, Sept. 17 (INS).—Wendell Willkie arrived by air today in the embattled Soviet Republic, flying from Teheran, Iran, to Kuibyshev. As President Roosevelt's special emissary, he will leave shortly for Moscow, where he is expected to confer with Josef Stalin.

Willkie's arival in Russia was preceded by stops in Egypt, Lebanon, Palestine, Turkey, Iran and Iraq. In Teheran, Willkie took the Shah of Persia into the air for the latter's first airplane ride. Willkie and Mohammed Shah Pahlevi circled over the Iranian capital for 40 minutes.

Ink Flows as Wells and Shaw Battle Over Nazis' Future

Copyright by Chicago Sun

London, Sept. 17.—The area of the World War was extended today, and the new belligerents engaged in a knockdown and drag out battle of words are the two literary generalissimos H. G. Wells and George Bernard Shaw.

Their battlefield has been the correspondence columns of the weekly magazine Tribune. Last week Shaw called anybody crazy who believes we must spend the rest of the century sitting on the head of Germany to prevent its getting up. He said that the idea is applicable to a horse fallen in harness, but not by any sane person to the future of Europe.

Shaw insisted, "Every word that is true of the Germans is equally true of the English, and of every militant nation on earth."

Wells obviously does not enjoy the suggestion that he is gaga, even when it comes from his distinguished Irish colleague, and in tomorrow's issue of the Tribune Wells yanks a few hairs out of the Shavian beard.

"Shaw must really watch his words," Wells declared. He then supported the belief that "an ancient tradition of fury and systematic ruthlessness has been cultivated with modern efficiency by the Germans beyond all precedent."

Commenting on Shaw's remark that Britain's record is as black as Germany's, Wells says that statement is "utterly false." He goes on to insist that "the future world commonwealth will remain a dream unless the practice of due retribution for open criminals is sustained. So far G. B. S. has not lifted a finger to help in this obvious but difficult task."

had been put through a five-and-one-half-hour deluge of bombs by British and American bombers funneling their exposives into a small area.

"From the top deck of a small British motor launch yesterday morning I saw a large force of motor torpedo boats dash into Tobruk Harbor on a mission to destroy the stores of oil, gasoline and other supplies which Marshal Rommel had assembled there," Palmer reported in a delayed dispatch filed on Tuesday.

"Other parties had special assignments to attack the shore batteries and some of them were stormed and put out of action by raiding parties . . . made up of naval forces, army troops and marines.

"Our bombers had opened the attack about 9:30 p. m. Sunday night and the flashes of their exploding bombs were visible for miles at sea as we steamed up the coast for the attack."

Palmer said the British squadrons approached Tobruk about 3 a. m. Monday with loads of explosives and demolition crews and began putting them ashore with torpedo boats guarding them and the destroyers pumping shells into the enemy stronghold to cover the landing forces.

"The Axis forces gave us strong opposition," he related. "The sky looked like a huge Christmas tree, laced wit hcolored lights, as green, red, white and blue tracers from enemy machine guns and heavier shells from our warships filled the air."

It was when the task had been accomplished and the fleet started steaming out in small scattering units to avoid presenting enemy gunners too compact a target, Palmer said, that he saw the flames licking at the Sikh's stern.

Leading Argentine Paper Bombed

Buenos Aires, Sept. 17 (INS).—A bomb exploded tonight at the offices of the newspaper La Prensa, one of the most powerful members of the Argentine press.

The explosion caused some damage, but failed to halt publication of the paper, whose printing plant is in another part of the city.

Police expressed belief the saboteurs probably were Nazi sympathizers. La Prensa and virtually all other Argentine newspapers have been strongly antitotalitarian.

Nazis Slay Luxembourg Strike Leaders

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 17.—In a dispatch date lined "From the German frontier," Reuters reported today the execution of the leaders of Luxembourg miners and steel workers who went on general strike last week in protest against Nazi measures.

The dispatch quoted the German announcement as saying "ringleaders and inciters of the general strike have been captured and handed over to just punishment," and adding that some of them already have atoned for their crimes while others are awaiting their sentences."

The Germans said normal working conditions had been restored in Luxembourg.

The number of those arrested or executed was not given.

Meanwhile the conscription of Luxembourg men into the German army—one of the reasons for the general strike—was reported in full swing. First recruits have reported mustering at centers under threat of the severest punishment for evading service.

Lethal Balloons Menace Magyars

The story of the devastating smash by hundreds of bombers on the industrial Ruhr Valley and a dusk attack on Wiesbaden was told in more detail by the British tonight.

The British reported sighting many German fighters during the raid.

Immense Fires Blaze

One sergeant pilot, who is a vetern of three trips over Hamburg and others over Bremen and Oldenburg, said he could see immense fires in the Ruhr as his plane crossed the Dutch coast on the way home.

This pilot brought his bomber home although it was badly hit by cannon fire from German fighters, one of which was shot down.

In a spectacular chase, sometimes just above the sea, two Spitfires pursued two German Focke-Wulf 190s across the Channel today and shot down one and damaged the other so severely it probably was lost too, the air ministry news service said in a report of another action.

The Spitfires attacked the Germans after they had dropped bombs on a south coast town. They chased them 80 miles to the vicinity of Le Havre. One German plunged into the sea and the second disappeared over the French coast, trailing white smoke.

Enemy raiders attacked an East Anglian town tonight, causing some property damage with incendiaries and high explosives. The only casualty reported was a woman who died of shock.

An enemy bomber was reported destroyed but there was no indication whether it was in this raid.

The strong force which hit the Ruhr last night probably was made up of 800 "night-destroyer" planes, of which the 39 did not return.

In 10 night raids in the first 16 days of September the R. A. F. thus had absorbed a loss of 128 planes, but these were only a fraction of the hundreds which had swarmed over the Reich on all but one of these attacks.

Largest Recent Raid

The wording of the communique on the Ruhr assault indicated the force was the largest involved lately, but it was specifically stated that it was not a 1000-bomber affair.

An American flight sergeant with Canadian squadrons described the fires set as "hot so concentrated as in the 1000-bomber raid on Cologne, but they covered a wider area."

Some of the fires that spread over a wide area were declared very large.

In each of the nine major raids carried out in September the R. A. F. dropped a greater weight of bombs on German soil than the Luftwaffe ever loosed on Britain in a single night, the British said.

The Wiesbaden raid, aimed at crippling manufacture of precision instruments such as the surgical tools made there, involved a flight in daylight of more than 400 planes over enemy territory, probably at low level to escape antiaircraft fire. Wiesbaden first was raided on the night of August 24 along with Frankfurt and the Upper Rhineland.

Meanwhile, new evidance appeared to attest to the irreparable damage done to German industry by sustained bombing. R. A. F. photographs show great areas of destruction in the industrial heart of Germany and underground reports said that in many instances the enemy's strained manpower was unable to cope with the rate of destruction.

Spitfire fighters intercepted high-level enemy planes over the Channel and turned them back home three times this morning.

Two enemy fighter planes flew over this afternoon and dropped bombs at a place on the south coast, causing some damage and a few casualties. One of these raiders was shot down by British fighters.

Sidelights of War

Ex-French Fascist Joins De Gaulle

London Bureau of the Chicago Sun

London, Sept. 17 (by telephone).—Charles Vallin, vice president of the French Social Party, better known as the Croix de Feu, which was widely denounced for its pro-Fascist sympathies, has arrived in London to join Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

He is the first French rightist leader to abandon Vichy and escape abroad. His arrival was regarded as another significant chapter in the story of the French underground liberation movement.

Such leading French spokesmen as Andre Philip, former Socialist, have been repeatedly saying that all shades of political opinion were rallying to the cause of French resistance.

As vice president of the French Social Party, Vallin was second in command to the well-known Croix de Feu Leader Col. Casimir de la Rocque. Vallin's first word to confidants in London was that "a great majority of the colonel's followers have deserted him and the collaboration policy which the colonel continues to support."

Of these 7667 are known to have been captured in the Middle East, mostly in Greece and Crete, while 16,286 were taken prisone ror lost in Malaya.

Forde also announced that Australian married men up to 45 years of age would be called for military service in rear areas as required to release younger men for front line duty.

Forde said that men over 40 would be used only in auxiliary units, such as the Army Service Corps, Ordnance Corps and headquarters staffs.

Senate Passes Bill to Raise WAACS' Pay

The Senate yesterday passed legislation increasing pay of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps to the equivalent of that drawn by regular soldiers, with $50 a month as the base.

The bill, which now goes to the House, also creates administrative field directors of the WAACS and permits WAACS to make allotments of their pay to dependents, as soldiers do.

Director of the corps under its provision draws the pay of a full colonel, assistant directors that of lieutenant colonels, and the new field directors that of major.

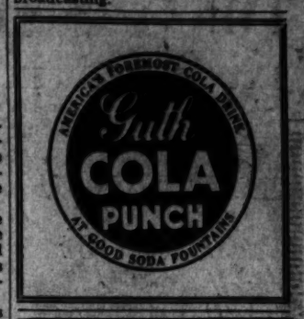

Although titles are different, the WAACS, rank for rank, will get the same as soldiers and officers all the way up.

Third officers of the WAACS, for instance, wear the gold bars of second lieutenants and now will draw the same pay. Second officers and first officer, of which the corps to date has none, ranks as first lieutenants.

Tokyo Signs Point To New Jap Move

MASAYUKI TANI
New Jap Foreign Minister

Toni, New Foreign Minister, Reiterates Foe's Aims in Orient

By the Associated Press

Tokyo (From Japanese Broadcasts), Sept. 17.—Masayuki Tani, 53, Japan's new foreign minister, reiterated tonight in his first official statement the Empire's three major objectives and urged the Japanese to make greater efforts toward realizing them.

Tani summed up the three objectives as:

1. Closer cooperation among the Axis powers.
2. Defeat of the United States and Britain.
3. Establishment of a new order in East Asia.

President of the board of information since Gen. Hideki Tojo became premier 11 months ago, Tani was appointed foreign minister today. He took over the post from Tojo, who held it provisionally since Shigenori Togo resigned September 1. He also will continue as head of the board of information.

(The resignation of Togo, who prepared last year's Soviet-Japanese Neutrality Pact, was widely interpreted as clearing the way for a renunciation of that pact and an attack on Siberia.

Other Signs Detected

(Further possible signs that Siberia may be attacked, or that a blow against British India may be imminent, were seen yesterday in a statement attributed to Gen. Shunroku Hata, Japanese commander in chief in China, that "the East Asia war is about to take an important step in cooperation with the European war.")

Other developments today included:

Emperor Hirohito received the premier in audience and was given a report on general administrative affairs.

Former Premier Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, former Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita and former Communications Minister Ryutaro Nagai left Tokyo for Nanking as special envoys on an official goodwill mission to the Japanese-sponsored Nanking regime.

The new foreign minister entered the Japanese foreign service in 1914.

He served in China, Germany, the Netherlands and France before becoming first secretary of the Japanese Embassy in Washington in 1927.

Was Aide to Nomura

He became director of the Asia Bureau in 1930 but three years later went to Manchukuo. He was minister to Australia and Hungary in 1936 but returned to Tokyo to become vice minister of foreign affairs under Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura in September, 1939.

(In January, 1939, eight months before he became vice minister of foreign affairs, Tani was nominated to be Japanese Ambassador to Paris—but the French government rejected him.

(The French charged that in the previous July, while he was in China, he had publicly cast doubt on formal French assurances that traffic in war supplies to China through French Indo-China had been forbidden. The Japanese government defended Tani—but had to nominate another ambassador for the Paris post.

Aoki Veteran Hand

(A Tokyo dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio said that Aoki, the new cabinet minister, would become head of the projected ministry for Greater East Asia, which is to be established to direct administration of Japan's conquests in Asia and the East Indies.

(This ministry will take over much of the authority now held by the foreign ministry, dispatches have indicated, and one reason given by Tokyo for Togo's resignation was that he resented such curtailment of his powers.

(Aoki, 52, came up through the finance ministry and was Japan's finance minister for a few months in 1939 before going to Nanking as financial adviser to the puppet regime there. He was also for a time head of the Tokyo cabinet's planning bureau, which works out details of imperial policy.)

Heroic Exploit Described by Ship Survivors

An East Coast Port, Sept. 17 (AP).—Ten survivors of a medium-sized British steamer which was sunk by enemy torpedo late last month in the Caribbean Sea told upon their arrival here of how a youthful shipmate stuck by his injured chum at the risk of his own life.

The seamen, who were picked up by a United States naval vessel one hour after their steamer had been blasted by a torpedo and sunk so swiftly that there was no time to launch a lifeboat, related that Robert Matthews, an able-bodied seaman, suffered a crushed arm when a piece of timber fell upon him just after the torpedo struck.

With his arm rendered useless he was unable to put on his lifejacket. His chum, Frank Hughes, who was brought up in the same neighborhood of Liverpool with him, went to school with him and enlisted in the navy with him, put his own jacket around him.

The two then jumped into the water, and, for an hour while awaiting rescue, Hughes held Matthews' head above water and kept him from drowning. They were both picked up but Mattehws died later.

Three Killed As Two Navy Planes Collide

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 17.—Fifth Naval District authorities tonight announced a naval officer and two enlisted men were killed late yesterday in an aerial collision between two Navy land-type planes near Kitty Hawk, N. C.

The announcement said all the victims were occupants of the same plane and listed their names as Ensign Thomas McGrath, Providence, R. I., pilot; Richard Wootton, seaman, first class, Danville, Va., and Thomas E. Watkins, aviation radioman, third class, San Diego, Calif.

The other plane was not seriously damaged and none of its crew was injured, the announcement said.

States submarines was not directly connected with the Battle of the Solomons, observers here say that these new blows at Japan's vulnerable supply lines should hinder any major offensive Hirohito may have in mind in the Pacific.

The text of the comunique, No. 128 of the war, follows:

"Far East—1. U. S. submarines have reported the following results of operations against the enemy in Far Eastern waters:

"(a) Two large freighters sunk. (b) One medium sized freighter sunk. (c) One small patrol boat sunk. (d) One large tanker damaged and left afire. (e) One large freighter damaged. (f) One large transport damaged. (g) One medium sized cargo ship damaged.

"2. These actions have not been announced in any previous Navy Department communique, and are not related to operations in the Solomon Islands."

Stalingrad Holds, Nazis Omit News

New York, Sept. 17 (AP).—The German radio and press stood by in vain today for a promised "special announcement" from Adolf Hitler's headquarters dealing with Stalingrad which was widely advertised last night.

The British Exchange Telegraph reported at 8:37 p. m. London time (3:37 p. m. Eastern War Time) Wednesday in a dispatch from Zurich, Switzerland, that the German propaganda ministry had informed the German press and foreign correspondents the special announcement would be issued within 24 hours.

But Stalingrad held; the announcement was not made, and the deadline ticked past without the fanfare of trumpets the Germans sound with their victory claims.

Scot Tells of Outwitting Japs While Fugitive in Solomons

By the United Press

Marine Headquarters, Solomon Islands, Aug. 15 (delayed).—Capt. W. F. Clemens of Scotland emerged from the dense mountain jungles of Guadalcanal today and told the American Marines how he had outsmarted the tricky Japanese and clung to his mountain-top roost ever since the Japs captured the island in May.

Bearded, limping, and considerably underweight after months in hiding, Clemens, 27-year-old member of the British Solomon Islands security force, revealed that he has spent more than five months watching the Japs' ships and planes come and go.

He had enough food, although it was running low when the Marines drove the Japs out.

His tricks against the invaders were pulled before they landed.

"When the Australian government decided that Guadancanal and Tulagi would probably be invaded, we were ordered to evacuate the white residents of the islands," he said. "We did this and the Japs had only to move in."

Tulagi was completely deserted, he said, but the Japs were wary. Their scout planes came over first.

Clemens then decided to make the place look inhabited and he went to Tulagi periodically to rearrange the oil drums and bales on the wharf to give the appearance of a city.

"The Japanese started bombing Tulagi," he said. "It was completely uninhabited but they came over several times and wasted tons of bombs on it. They finally arrived and took it over on May 3."

"Since the Japs arrived on Guadacanal, I've had quite a time of it," he said, "and was about ready to try an escape when you Marines arrived."

He had several narrow escapes from Japanese patrols.

Clemens said he had a ringside seat at the American dive-bombing attack on Japanese ships in Tulagi Harbor in the opening phase of the Coral Sea battle.

"The Japanese armada apparently had put into Tulagi when word was received of the American tank force and hoped to escape detection. The dive bombers found them and sank nine in two raids."

Britain, Portugal Negotiating 3-Way Trade Pact With U. S.

London Bureau of the Chicago Sun

London, Sept. 17 (By Telephone).—Britain and the United States are negotiating a three-power trade pact with Portugal and indications are that Portugal will do quite nicely in the proposed agreement.

It is assumed that Portugal will receive from the Allies such primary materials as coal, iron, oil, steel and a variety of other urgently needed commodities.

No information is available as to what Portugal will give in return, but it is believed that America and Britain will get certain Portugese minerals as well as cork—needed for mountings of heavy machinery and for many other industrial purposes—and colonial exports, including sisal.

John W. Nicholls, assistant secretary to the British ministry of economic warfare, has just returned from Lisbon to report to the government here on the progress of the negotiations. He has been carrying on the Lisbon discussions jointly with Walton Butterworth, representing the United States Board of Economic Warfare and the State Department.

Together they have been trying to come to terms with Col. Gomez Fernandez, economic adviser to the Portuguese ministry of foreign affairs.

It is known that wolfram is Portugal's economic trump card in this war. Deposits in northern Portugal are avidly sought by both the Axis and Allies.

Laval Tries to Placate Clergy

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 17.—The Roman Catholic Church in France is giving Pierre Laval acute concern in his program of deporting Jews and conscripting labor for Germany, and it was reported tonight he has made efforts to compromise with the clergy.

Whether the Vichy Premier would be successful appeared in doubt in view of the persistent and definite protests by French bishops and the Papal Nuncio, according to reliable information reaching here from private diplomatic quarters with French connections.

Laval's hope and efforts politically have been directed at trying to persuade the clergy, which exercises great influence, to cease its series of open protests, some of which have been sent directly to Chief of State Petain with the approval of Pope Pius XII.

The result of the ensuing struggle could not be foreseen but there is no doubt it had surpassed in its importance for the welfare of Laval and France any political questions with which the procollaborationist premier has had to deal in the past.

The Bishops of Lourdes and Montauban have been questioned by the police in the past few weeks after their protests against the treatment of the Jews.

The Jesuit assistant to Pierre Marie Cardinal Gerlier has been arrested for his reports on the situation.

U. S. Bomber Blasts Jap Sub Trailing Ships

By Jack Singer
International News Service Staff Writer

With the United States Pacific Fleet Off the Solomon Islands, Aug 25 (Delayed).—A Navy dive bomber early today attacked a Japanese submarine and threw a perfect "strike" that may have saved an American warship from a torpedo attack.

The sharp shooting dive bomber pilot, Ensign Glenn Estes, jr. of Franklin, La., was on patrol when he sighted two enemy submarines on the surface apparently scouting the course of our task force.

Estes, swooping so low he could read the numbers of the subs on the conning towers, planted his bomb squarely on the deck of one submarine and strafed the second.

"I came right between the subs," the ensign related. "The one on the starboard saw me and crash dived. I climbed and made a glide bombing run on the second sub. He was just starting to dive when I released a bomb.

"The bomb struck just abaft of the conning tower and a shower of debris splashed into the air. The sub immediately slowed down and started settling by the stern.

"I pulled around and made three strafing attacks. On my second attack I saw two Japs running toward the conning tower. I pulled up and gave the rear gunnner a chance to strafe them.

"Five minutes later the sub was sinking very slowly and oil was bubbling on the surface."

Estes then returned to his carrier, dropped his report and resumed his patrol. To his astonishment he sighted the second Jap submarine which had crash dived on the surface five miles from the spot where the first sub dived.

"I made one strafing run before the sub had a chance to crash dive again," he said. "I fired 100 rounds and could see tracers caroming off the sides and oil streaming out of the sub where the bullets struck."

When Estes landed aboard the carrier inspection of his plane revealed several holes in the fuselage from a burst of shrapnel.

News for Yanks

Leopoldville, Belgian Congo, Sept. 16 (Delayed) (AP).—For the benefit of American troops stationed here the newspapers Journal Avenir and Colonial Belge have begun publishing daily war items in English from the United States.

Murphy, Back From Training, Lauds Army

By James W. Douthat
Associated Press Staff Writer

Lieut. Col. Frank Murphy said yesterday the United States was training "the mightiest army of them all" which would "deliver the goods when the hour comes," and he called upon the civilian population to mobilize more effectively behind the war effort.

Tanned and in excellent physical condition after three months of Army training, Murphy said in an interview that he would go immediately to Harbor Beach, Mich., for intensive work on his duties as a Supreme Court Justice before the tribunal reconvenes October 5.

Asked whether he would remain on the bench for the entire eight-month term or reenter the Army, the soldier-jurist replied that with world conditions as they were no one could predict the future with any degree of accuracy.

"All I know is that I am prepared," he said, adding, "I will be on the bench October 5."

Was Reported Resigning

An informed source has said Murphy tried to resign from the Court last spring to enter the Army for the duration but that Government officials thought he should remain on the Court.

Commenting vigorously on what he thought should be done to mobilize the public, Murphy proposed three things:

No profit in war.

Take the "spoils" system out of governmental affairs.

"The country is not mobilized yet," he said. "Common sense should bring it about. Common sense should wake up the people to the fact that we are between two powerful enemy nations, and every effort is required. But something more horrible may be necessary before many civilians wake up—perhaps a long line of caskets."

High Praise for Troops

Glowing praise was given the Nation's mechanized army as seen by Murphy at Fort Benning, Ga., Fort Knox, Ky., and in manuevers in North Carolina and the California desert.

"There is a great spirit among these incomparable youths," he said. "And the people who say our Army is not thoroughly trained simply do not know the facts."

"And our Army is the cleanest morally of any on earth," he concluded.

Murphy visited the War Department yesterday for a conference with Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, and to give up his commission as lieutenant colonel.

German Troops Reported Interned For Not Fighting

London, Sept. 17 (INS).—Because they refused to continue fighting in Finland, several hundred German and Austrian soldiers have been interned in Norway and some possibly executed, the British Broadcasting Co. reported tonight.

The B. B. C. said it has been reported from Norway that "several hundred German and Austrian soldiers who rioted and refused to go on fighting on the Finnish front arrived, early in July, under heavy guard at Kirkenes."

They were placed in a concentration camp and forced to do hard labor, B. B. C. said, adding that "according to other reports, one out of every ten men has been executed."

Navy Force Leader a Jap Prisoner

By the Associated Press

Capt. Kenneth Mortimer Hoeffel, who commanded the American naval forces which fought at Bataan and Corregidor, was reported yesterday by the War Department to be a prisoner of the Japanese in the Philippines.

He was the first of the thousands believed captured in the Philippines to be definitely identified as a prisoner of war.

Officials said the information as to Captain Hoeffel came through the International Red Cross at Geneva, but were unable to explain why his name was reported alone.

Captain Hoeffel was included in a list of 30 Americans held by the enemy, of whom 15 were Army and Navy men and the remainder merchant marine personnel interned in Germany. Of the imprisoned service personnel, eight were Navy men interned at Frontstalag, Germany; four Army men held at Dulag Luft, Germany, and the other Army officers held by Italy and Japan. Aside from Captain Hoeffel, the names were released for local publication only.

Jeffers to Act

Tire-Saving Moves Due Next Week

Definite moves for conservation of civilian tires as a part of a concrete program for keeping passenger cars rolling on jobs essential to the country's wartime transportation are expected to be made next week by William M. Jeffers, the new rubber czar.

Responding to the warning of the Baruch committee that civilian transportation must be kept in operation for essential war needs, Jeffers it was learned yesterday, turned his attention immediately to this phase of the rubber problem.

The rubber administrator flew to New York late in the day for conferences with Bernard M. Baruch, chairman of the three-man committee named by President Roosevelt to lay out a program for most efficient use of available rubber stocks and for expanding and speeding up synthetic rubber production.

Jeffers told reporters he expected to announce a program for tire conservation next week

In addition to Nation-wide gasoline rationing as a means of keeping down motorcar mileages, the Baruch committee called for a national 35-miles-an-hour speed limit and compulsory tire inspection.

At the Capitol, meanwhile, Chairman Smith (Democrat) of South Carolina, of the Senate Agriculture Committee, told reporters that the Baruch report constituted a "kick in the pants" of farm bloc Senators. Declaring that the farm Senators should not receive the blow "lying down," Smith said he would ask his committee "what we'll do about it" at a closed meeting today.

Smith said the report "avoids the issue" in a bill passed by Congress and vetoed by President Roosevelt which sought to establish an independent agency to promote the production of synthetic rubber from farm products.

Base Specifications Are Agreed Upon For Rationed East

Representatives of the oil industry have agreed to the setting up of minimum specifications for gasoline and other petroleum products as part of a plan to pool storage and terminal facilities in the rationed East Coast area, Secretary of Interior Ickes disclosed at a press conference yesterday.

The setting up of minimum specifications would make possible the mixing of different brands of gasoline in storage and transit to eliminate costly cross hauls, delays and extra expense attendant on present individual company marketing methods, an ..ide to Ickes said.

The specifications and other regulations will be set out in a directive to be issued shortly by the Office of Petroleum Coordinator.

May Drop Brand Names

Although abandonment of the use of brand names for the duration of the war has not been agreed on as yet, the agreement "squints in that direction," Ickes said.

Another possible development might be action to reduce the number of filling stations in operation, although no such move is being considered at present, Ickes said.

An Office of Civilian Supply official stated that the question of reducing the number of gasoline stations had been discussed, but that it had been decided to allow "nature to take its course." He added that he expected many of the less well-managed and more poorly located stations to go out of business as a result of rationing.

Covers Fuel Oil

The proposed pooling order will cover kerosene, fuel oil for home heating and industrial heating oil in addition to gasoline, Ickes said. Under it "the industry will be asked to pool every physical facility that would make possible the handling of an additional barrel of oil to the East," Ickes said.

During the week ending September 5, 70,611 railroad cars hauled the all-time record average of 838,440 barrels of oil a day to the East, Ickes said. About two-thirds of these shipments were made in trainload lots.

Meanwhile, the Office of Price Administration made it illegal for a person to possess a ration book not issued to him as part of a move to curb "black market" transactions in gasoline coupons.

"The amendment expressly prohibits books or coupons from changing hands even though trey have not been issued as rations," Paul M. O'Leary, OPA deputy administrator in charge of rationing, explained. "Under the new order, action may be taken against persons holding improperly transferred books or coupons, even though the transfer may be hard to prove."

Persons finding lost books may hold them long enough to return them to a local rationing board without violating the regulation.

"In a raid on the Fascist base of 'K,' the port equipment was heavily damaged.

"A large number of bombs was dropped on bases 'S' and 'U.' Four artillery and five mortar batteries were destroyed, as well as two searchlight installations."

N. Y. Woman, McNutt Aide, Quits 'Big Pay'

By Allen Raymond

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, New York regional director of the Social Security Board, who told Congress last June she was earning $26,500 annually as a public relations consultant, aside from her Federal salary of $7500, yesterday was named by Paul V. McNutt, director of the War Manpower Commission, to a new job, that of New York regional director of his commission.

At the same time, a letter from Mrs. Rosenberg to Arthur J. Altmeyer, chairman of the Social Security Board, was made public, informing him that she was winding up all her paid activities outside Government service, and hereafter would confine her paid work to the Government. The salary of her new Federal job, it was said here, will be $8000 a year.

According to Mrs. Rosenberg's testimony before a House Committee last June 2, the three outside jobs she is quitting on December 31 are work for R. H. Macy & Co., and L. Bamberger & Co., paying her $20,000 a year; for Nelson Rockefeller, as president of corporate research, at $6000 a year, and for I. Miller & Sons, Inc., shoe dealers, at $2500 a year.

In her letter to Altmeyer, published today but dated August 21, 1942, Mrs. Rosenberg notes that she has received the assurance of both Altmeyer and McNutt that her continuance in private business as a public relations counsellor, while in Federal employ had been "entirely proper," and that in their estimation her outside activities had not interfered with her work for the Social Security Board. However, she wrote, "I believe that today the only matter of real significance is the successful prosecution of the war effort, and in that, I like every other American, would like to have a part."

Convention Officials Urge Legionnaires to Stay Home

By the Associated Press

Kansas City, Sept. 17.—The American Legion is begging members to stay away from its national convention.

As the Saturday opening neared, officials worried that habit might prove too much for many legionnaires and that they would show up despite advice to the contrary.

All rooms in both residential and downtown hotels were reserved. They already were taxed by soldiers, quartered here for technical training.

The arrival of every train put the housing committee in a dither.

"I hope," said Convention Chairman James Young, "that no one comes unless he already has reservations."

Boosters in Reverse

Even the Chamber of Commerce, hitherto anxious for overflow attendance at conventions, worried just a bit. It didn't have any idea, either, where it could put unexpected visitors to the convention.

Legion officials set out three months ago to streamline the convention by encouraging all of the 1,125,000 members except the 1500 delegates to stay home as an aid to wartime transportation problems. By doing that they figured they could hold attendance to 5000. Today it looked as though at least 10,000 would show up.

The housing problem was merely one of the problems of running a small convention which contrasted sharply with the old days when 100,000 thought nothing of dropping in.

National Commander Lynn U. Stambaugh, Fargo, N. Dak., attorney, said there probably would be more work done and less fanfare this year than any in the past.

Much to Do

The resolutions committee, headed by Edward L. Blake of Ronceverte, W. Va., was buried under 470 proposals dealing with war problems ranging from a plan to draft labor and capital to preinduction military training in secondary schools.

The constitution and by-laws committee members went to work on proposed charter changes that would have to be made if the organization opens its ranks to the present war veterans.

Harry Benoit, Twin Falls, Idaho, chairman of the committee, said of 48 of the legion's 58 departments acting on the question 39 had approved inclusion of the young men with the doughboys of 1917 and 1918.

The question will be decided by a convention vote.

G.A.R. Elects Californian As Commander

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis, Sept. 17.—The Grand Army of the Republic wound up its seventy-sixth—and maybe last—encampment today by electing as its commander-in-chief John S. Dumser of Oakland, Calif., who'll be 94 in November.

Dumser, who served three and a half years in the Army of Tennessee, said he was just a boy when he heeded President Lincoln's call for volunteers and "joined up" in 1861 at Elgin, Ill.

Unopposed for commander he succeeds George A. Gay, Nashua, N. H.

Other officers elected were Isaac N. Sharp of Warsaw, Ind., senior vice commander; Charles H. Perry of Minneapolis, Minn., junior vice commander; Eugene Owen of Grand Rapids, Mich., quartermaster. Thomas J. Noll of Des Moines, Iowa, judge advocate; Russell C. Martin of Los Angeles, Calif., adjutant general; Katharine Flood of Newton, Mass., national secretary, and Robert M. Rownd of Ripley, N. Y., chaplain.

The Mysterious Case of Mr. Smith

1. Mr. Smith had the gang guessing. Regular guy, owned a small home, had a wife and swell kid. Never made a lot of money. Never spent much. But—

2. Was Mr. Smith putting one over? Come 9 A. M., and there was Smiddy at his desk, always looking jaunty as a screen star. Dressed better than The Boss. Could it be—

3. No, perish the thought. Mr. Smith was honest. Mr. Smith had no rich uncle. Mr. Smith was just a smart hombre, that's all. Jim King hit the first clue that day in the washroom. Sneaked a look at the label in Smith's coat. And then—

4. And then, Mr. Smith confessed—told all. Seems he was an "all-wool" fiend. It was blue-bloods or nothing, for him. "Give me goods that's the real McCoy", he confided, "and I'll show you a suit that stays smooth under any kind of beating. With doggone little pressing, too. This one hasn't been under the iron in three weeks. A short rest on the hanger, and back she is in swell shape". And then Smiddy let go with this, "Of course, my store has a name for selling only good stuff". Foxy, eh? Particularly now, when all of us want good all-wool clothes that'll stand up longer. But wait—like all mysteries, this one has an ending with a wallop. Smith whipped it over like a bombshell. "Stop guessing", he chuckled, "I own just two suits. But you see, both of 'em are Bond's!"

Morgenthau Brands Tax Bill Inadequate

Secretary Asserts There Must Be Curbs on Spending and Greater Revenue

By Cecil B. Dickson
Washington Bureau of Chicago Sun

Branding the new tax bill "wholly inadequate" to prevent inflation, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau yesterday declared that Congress would have to pass another revenue bill early in 1943.

Morgenthau sent a statement to Chairman Walter F. George (Democrat) of Georgia, saying that the Senate Finance Committee's revision of the $6,291,300,000 House war revenue bill would bring in $6,851,700,000.

Thus, the Treasury chief asserted, after working from June 20, the Finance Committee had been able to increase the tax take by only $560,400,000.

Morgenthau used his press conference to make his attack on the tax bill, which is short by two billion dollars of raising the $8,700,000,000 the Treasury asked of Congress.

"The bill is inadequate," he said, "because its yield of less than seven billion dollars fails to meet the Government's purposes; it contains no restrictions on individual spending, and it fails to plug tax loopholes."

"There has just got to be more revenue," the irate Secretary said. "We here feel there will have to be enacted into law some kind of legislation to be a deterrent on spending and an incentive to savings."

George said the Treasury's estimates on the yield of the bill appeared "conservative." He pointed out that the committee had agreed to give Morgenthau's spending tax and compulsory savings proposition study immediately after Congress completes action on the pending bill.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, a member of the Finance Committee, charged in a statement to the Senate that Morgenthau was planning to use the Social Security tax-collecting machinery as a means of withholding pay from workers in order to prevent inflation.

Opposed to Raiding Funds

"I completely acknowledge the need for mobilizing every possible resource against inflation," Vandenberg said. "Certainly I completely acknowledge the unavoidable necessity for some kind of enforced savings to sustain the public credit in the face of our unavoidably tremendous war expenditures.

"But I am unalterably opposed to raiding Social Security trust funds for these purposes, or for any purpose not directly related to the social security benefits which these payroll taxpayers are presumed to buy for themselves with their assessments."

Vandenberg charged that besides the automatic increase in social-security taxes from one to two per cent in January under existing law, Mongenthau "will ask that the tax be further increased to five per cent."

As if replying directly to Vandenberg, Morgenthau said enforced savings and a spending tax were necessary to prevent inflation.

Vandenberg asserted that the "problem of financing the war is separate from social-security taxes.

"It must be candidly and courageously faced as a separate problem," Vandenberg said. "If we must have enforced savings or induced War Bond purchases, the order should be candid and courageous and, above all, it should be universal and not applied solely to the employers and the workers of the country who alone pay these social-security taxes."

Cites Senate Cut

Morgenthau's statement on the yield of the Senate bill, which committee members had said would produce mort than eight billion dollars net and up to $9,900,000,000 gross, claimed that the Finance Committee had cut the receipts from corporations from $2,640,700,000 in the House bill to $1,501,500,000, for a loss of $1,139,200,000.

The Senate Finance Committee reduced the House's 45 per cent normal and surtax levy on corporations to 40 per cent and allowed a 10 per cent postwar credit on the 90 per cent excess profits rate.

Morgenthau said the Senate Finance Committee, largely through the 5 per cent "Victory" gross income tax, had upped the take from individuals to $5,081,000,000, an increase of $2,208,700,000 over the House.

He also said the Senate Finance Committee had cut the yield of the House bill by $509,100,000, by eliminating the House's 5 per cent tax on freight hauling, elimination of the capital stock and many miscellaneous and excise levies.

Morgenthau expressed hope that his spending tax proposal, which was rejected by the Senate Finance Committee unanimously, would be given consideration in the Senate as an amendment. He said it would raise five billion dollars in new war revenue.

Norse Flier Speaks in Md.

By the Associated Press

College Park, Md., Sept. 17.—The brave story of Norway's valiant resistance to the invading Nazi armies was related today at the University of Maryland by Helge Holp, young Norwegian flier, who escaped several months ago to the United States.

Holp, addressing a special assembly of the university faculty, told how his countrymen were opposing their conquerors with a smile.

"Every time we smile at the Germans for an injury done to us," the tall, blue-eyed Norwegian related, "it is a victory for Norway.

"If we cry, then it is their victory."

Holp was clad in the coveralls of the Royal Norwegian Air Force, and has been in training with Norwegian units in Canada.

He described the stoicism with which his countrymen were facing the Germans.

He said girls who were friendly with German officers were shunned by their Norwegian acquaintances.

20 Seized as Shipbuilders Riot Over Ferry Tolls

By the United Press

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 17.—One man was tossed into the Pinto River late today and at least 20 men were reported arrested for "unlawful assembly" in consequence of shipyard workers' protests against elimination of a free ferry service to the Alabama Drydock and Shipbuilding Co.'s Pinto Island plant.

Work at the shipyard was reported seriously curtailed during the day, when 2000 workers marched to the city hall, and tonight the night shift reportedly remained away. Riot squads of police were called to an approach to the plant late today when company guards reported a group of men had barricaded a bridge.

Police said E. H. Cook, jr., a plant employe, was taken from his automobile and thrown into the Pinto as he left the shipyard. He was not injured. Later in the day, police were ordered to clear the Canal Street gate to the yards "until a strike has actually been called."

During this morning's demonstration workers demanded that a new 5-cent ferry charge be abandoned. Their reply was a plea by City Commissioner Harry T. Hartwell that they return to work to build ships "so needed in the war effort."

The demonstration resulted in suspension of work in some departments of the plant, and the summoning of two Alabama State Guard companies to the armory. Police, however, reported that State Guard assistance had not been needed.

G. M. Labor Granted 4 Cents Hourly Rise

WLB Overrides Its Panel's Proposal Of 5-Cent Increase for 225,000 Workers

By Ben W. Gilbert
Post Staff Writer

The War Labor Board yesterday applied its "little steel" wage stabilization formula to grant an increase of 4 cents an hour to 225,000 employes of the General Motors Corp.

The increase was made retroactive to April 28 in accordance with an agreement between the company and the two C. I. O. unions which represented the employes—the United Auto Workers and the United Electrical Workers.

Other important actions by the War Labor Board yesterday included the following:

1. The setting up of a five-man West Coast Lumber Commission to act as a "little War Labor Board" to settle all labor disputes in the West coast lumber region. WLB delegated its authority to settle wage disputes to the new commission but retained the right to review its decisions. The personnel of the new commission which will include one public member, two labor representatives and two management representatives, will be announced next week. The management and labor representatives will be from outside the lumber industry, WLB stated.

2. Asked 41 steel companies to show cause within ten days why the board's "big steel" decision should not be applied to them. The "big steel" decision which followed a pattern set by the "little steel" decision, provided for a wage increase of 44 cents a day retroactive to February 15, maintenance of membership, checkoff of union dues and a daily minimum wage guarantee.

The 41 companies employ about 200,000 workers who are represented by the C. I. O. United Steel Workers of America. As a result of the "little steel" and "big steel" decisions, 400,000 C. I. O. steel workers have already received the 44 cents a day wage increase. Largest of the steel companies affected by WLB's new action is the Jones & Laughlin Steel Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.

3. Ordered the Firestone Co. and the B. F. Goodrich Co. to sign maintenance of membership contracts with the C. I. O. United Rubber Workers. A total of 24,000 employes in Akron, Ohio, are affected.

4. Granted a wage increase of 6.4 per cent to 1800 employes of 114 motor freight companies in the Pittsburgh area in accordance with its "little steel" formula. The A. F. of L. Teamsters had asked an increase of 25 per cent.

5. Granted a night-shift bonus of 4 cents an hour to 250 employes of the Frank Foundries, Moline, Ill.

In granting the General Motors wage increase, the War Labor Board formally rejected the reasoning of the majority of a three-man panel which had recommended an increase of 5 cents an hour—1½ cents under the "little steel" formula and 3½ cents to equalize wage rates with those of the Ford Motor Co. which pays the highest in the auto industry.

Instead WLB decided that the panel miscalculated the increase permitted under the "little steel" formula and found that an increase of 4 cents an hour instead of 1½ was merited under the formula. Equalization with Ford was also rejected by the board.

A split board ordered the wage adjustments by a vote of 6 to 3 with labor members dissenting. In recommending 5 cents an hour, the panel had split 2 to 1 with the employer member dissenting. The two unions had demanded an increase of $1 a day or 12½ cents an hour.

The WLB decision also provided for application of the board's standard maintenance of union membership formula to the company's 95 plants, most of which are now engaged in war work and for maintenance of the present 5 per cent night shift bonus.

The union maintenance plan provided a 15-day escape clause during which workers may withdraw from the union. The panel had suggested that the maintenance clause be made retroactive to last January 1 to make it apply to workers who withdrew from the U. A. W. during the period when G. M. was shut down because of the conversion of the automobile industry to war work. On this issue the final vote was 6 to 3 with employer members dissenting. On an earlier vote the labor members voted against including the escape clause.

Split on Differential

On the night shift differential question, the board split 5 to 4, with Wayne L. Morse, public member, joining the three labor members in a dissent in favor of a 10 per cent differential—the amount recommended by the panel.

The board was unanimous in directing that the principle of equal pay for equal work be adopted in setting the pay scales for men and women. The parties were directed to negotiate a contract provision applying this principle.

In examining the wage recommendations of the panel, the board decided the panel had erred by including upgrading of wage rates for individual employes, merit raises, special bonuses and other individual increases in determining the application of the "Little Steel" formula.

In refusing to allow for an equalization with Ford, WLB left its hands untied in applying the "Little Steel" formula to Ford wage rates in a pending case. A case involving the Chrysler Motor Co. is also before WLB.

The lumber action was suggested to the board by Public Member Morse, who conducted a special investigation of conditions in the West Coast industry. First act of the new commission will be to decide 17 lumber cases involving a total of 100,000 workers.

To Be Board Employes

The five members of the commission are to be WLB employes. In cases where it is unable to make a unanimous decision, the chairman will have the power to make a final decision.

In acting on steel, WLB took steps to assure a speedy decision of wage disputes involving the 41 steel companies. Ordinarily, the board would allow disputes to go through the process of mediation before a panel followed by board consideration in the event that the parties before the panel are unable to agree among themselves. In the General Motors case, the process started on April 27 when contracts between the company and the two unions expired and it continued for many tiresome weeks before the panel in Washington and in Detroit. The full board, itself, has held two public hearings on the case.

Senators Agree On 15% Wage Rise Limit

Wagner of the Senate Banking Committee on a revised price bill draft acceptable to the Administration, meantime obtained tentative Senate committee approval of a series of changes in their original bill draft.

Outstanding change was the decision to write specifically into the bill the principle of the "little steel" wage decision which WLB Chairman Davis already has announced he intends to apply as a flexible ceiling over all wages.

Based on Living Costs

The 15 per cent wage increase in the steel company case was awarded on the basis of living cost increases occurring between January 1, 1941, and May 15, 1942. Davis, Tuesday, advised the committee that once the remaining one-fourth of industrial workers are brought up to that level it will hold as a ceiling.

Before agreeing to 90 per cent of parity as a basis for crop loans, the Senate group modified the original bill's guarantee that no farm prices could be fixed below the highest market price prevailing in the last nine months.

To prevent seasonal and sectional price "peaks" being used as a farm price guide, the committee substituted the following language in Section 3 of the bill:

"The highest price received by producers for such commodity between January 1, 1942, and September 15, 1942, adjusted by the Secretary of Agriculture for grade, location and seasonal differentials."

The bill's original broad authorization for the President to suspend any "inconsistent" provisions of existing laws on prices, wages or salaries, was narrowed. This section was modified to give the President power to suspend existing law only insofar as they conflict with the provisions of the bill.

Another amendment gave weight to "any compensation customarily paid" as a guide in determining ceiling salary levels. Under this formula, special war bonuses would not be counted as salary, but ordinary Christmas and other bonuses customarily paid could be considered such.

Exempted from wage controls were establishments employing 25 workers or fewer.

Senate bill managers last night were considering substitution of September 15 as the pivotal date around which farm prices and wages would be stabilized "so far as practicable" instead of August 15, now in the bill. Organized labor spokesmen advocated this change.

Minority Pledges Cooperation

Early in the day Senate Republicans pledged cooperation in the price-control effort at a conference called by Minority Leader Charles L. McNary. Senate minority members resolved:

"That the Republican conference recognizes the present situation with respect to living costs, that it believes action is necessary, and will cooperate in an effort to work out a wise solution of the problems presented to the Senate and the country."

Following the conference, Senator Taft (Republican) of Ohio introduced his second price control bill since the President's message. His new measure followed in pattern the Brown-Wagner bill, with variations. It would write the "little steel" formula into law. Taft proposed to ban pay increases above September 15 levels unless approved by WLB or in cases where the wage was less than 50 cents an hour. The President under his draft could exempt certain classes of labor such as domestics and agricultural workers.

The President called bill managers to the White House after conflicting interpretations of his anti-inflation message started the farm State drive to revise the parity formula to include farm labor costs. The President in his message said parity included production and labor costs and farm State members had insisted he meant "farm" production and "farm" labor cost. The President told them clearly what he meant at yesterday's conference, attended by Senators Barkley, Wagner and Brown and Representative Steagall. Barkley called it an "honest misunderstanding." Government officials, including Henderson, Wickard, Davis and Presidential Advisers Harry Hopkins and Isador Lubin sat in on the conference. Steagall was told that his bill might increase living costs more than 12 per cent.

Later the President dictated the following letter to Wagner and Steagall:

"My attention has been drawn to proposals to revise the parity formula in connection with the legislation I requested on September 7. I understand that it is proposed to include certain allowances for farm labor in the index of prices which farmers pay that is used in computing parity prices.

"I should like to make clear my unalterable opposition to any recomputation of parity at this time. In my message of September 7 I stated: 'In computing parity, we should continue to use the computations of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics made under the law as it stands today.' This will continue to be my policy.

"Earlier in my message I stated, 'after all, parity is by its very definition, a fair relationship between the prices of the things farmers sell and the things they buy. Calculations of parity must include all costs of production, including the cost of labor.' By that I meant what the language states—that parity is fair and it is fair because it now includes the labor cost incorporated in the prices of the things which farmers buy. It is this which brings farmers into a fair relationship with other groups. This is the purpose of parity. This the present formula does.

"The parity principle for which this Administration has stood since 1933 was a good standard for peacetime—it is a good standard for war. To recalculate parity now and to offer the public 100 per cent of a new and higher parity would be to offer stabilization yet destroy the possibility of achieving it."

Boy, 11, Collects Enough Scrap To Sink Jap Ship—Single-Hand

If the firm of Hitler, Hirohito & Mussolini ever gets around to bestowing dill pickles on its enemies, it would be well to save one of the largest for Billy Barrett.

Single handedly, 11-year-old Billy has rounded up enough scrap metal—2800 pounds by 3 p. m. yesterday—to sink a battleship or so, once his offerings have been transformed into a torpedo or big shell for one of Uncle's battle wagons.

The youngster, who resides at 915 Evarts Street Northeast, first heard about the scrap drive at the Langdon Park playground. When his instructors said that unless Americans turned to with a vengeance and dug out their scrap it might be too bad for this country, Billy took their declarations at face value.

Beginning Monday morning, he embarked on a mission which since has proven itself to be a grimly earnest task, not a childish, schoolboy undertaking.

He made a house-to-house canvass of his neighborhood. Three calls yielded as many old Model T motors. Calls at other homes produced hot water tanks, tire rims, sheet metal, pipe, old radios, auto springs, clothes wringers, baby carriages, iron grates, auto fenders, and various other pieces of scrap.

The pile at the Langdon Park Playground, where he is depositing his collections, is now taller than Billy, and yesterday while Jack Belote, playground instructor, was weighing his latest wagonload, Billy vowed that he was not yet done.

"What's play?" he asked, a bit indignantly, when someone inquired if he took time out for a bit of relaxation. "I've got a job to do and I want to get it done." The lad even takes his lunch with him on his daily rounds so he won't lose any more time than necessary.

"They're going to collect this stuff Sunday," Billy added, as he started out again with his wagon, whose rear tires are worn through almost to the rim. The youngster thinks he can make the wheels hold up until he's finished his job.

a number of diamonds, displaying particular interest in a $400 stone. He left after telling Kahn he would return later with his fiancee.

Yesterday morning he returned to the store, but Kahn was out, and he told employes he would return in the afternoon. This he did, coming back about 1 p. m. A few minutes alter, after Kahn had opened the wallet in which are kept the unmounted stones—each individually wrapped in soft paper—the young man suddenly grabbed the wallet and fled.

In the store at the time were four other employes and firm members, including I. N. Oppenheimer, who was just returning from lunch as the young man dashed through the door, bumping into him on his way out.

Three women customers were in the store at the time.

Auditor Returned On Check Charges

Fred H. Drewes, 45, who until mid-May was employed as an auditor on a George Hyman Construction Co. project at the Naval Air Station, Anacostia, yesterday was returned here from Cincinnati to face charges of forgery and uttering.

He is accused of drawing company checks made payable to him and signed by the company vice president, in the amount of $1669.60 and depositing them to his account in a Miami, Fla., bank. Similar checks, totaling $128.70, were cashed for him by District merchants, police said yesterday.

Churches Support Sunday Scrap Collections

a misunderstanding regarding the association's stand on the Sunday collection.

"We did not make any protest about the scrap collection being on Sunday," he said, "but merely expressed disappointment that the celebartion of Rally Day on September 27 coincided with the day for scrap collection in the Northwest and Southwest sections." The association has 15,000 members.

Busy working on church basements were Dr. John K. Cartwright, pastor of Immaculate Conception Catholic Church at Eighth and N Streets Northwest, and the Rev. J. Luther Holcomb of Temple Baptist Church at Tenth and N Streets Northwest, both of whom have put their sextons to work in ferreting out scrap.

In addition the Rev. Mr. Holcomb said he was considering building his Sunday sermon around a theme of scrap.

Appeals for the support of Jewish worshipers will be made at Sabbath services here tomorrow, and also at the Yom Kippur—Day of Atonement—services beginning Sunday at sundown.

Montgomery Clerics in Support.

The religious indorsement of the drive is not confined to the District. In Montgomery County clergymen were reported wholeheartedly behind the drive with most of them prepared to make statements regarding the campaign from their pulpits on Sunday.

In response to a few complaints which have been made over using the Sabbath for the collection of metal, Commissioner John Russell Young yesterday declared there was no reason why residents cannot put their scrap on sidewalks in front of their homes by 8 a. m. and still have time to get to church, Sunday school or mass. The complaints, he said, have led to no change in collection plans.

For those who came in late, the collection details are printed below:

Beginning this Sunday, September 20, at 8 a. m., 220 trucks—half of them supplied by the District refuse department and the others by business firms—will canvass the entire area of the District which lies east of North and South Capitol Streets and east of the Anacostia River.

Pile It on the Sidewalk

Persons residing in that area are asked to place their scrap on the sidewalks, near the curb, in front of their homes.

The trucks will pick it up and then haul it to centrally-designated depots where junk dealers' trucks will call for it throughout the day.

The same collection procedure will be folowed on Sunday, September 27, for the Northwest and Southwest sections of the District.

Junked automobiles will not be collected nor will piles of scrap weighing more than 1000 pounds. Persons with such donations are asked to call the District Salvage Committee, RE. 8488, and necessary arrangements will be made for collection.

Meanwhile the Interior Department was ordered to join in the Nation-wide scrap campaign by Secretary Ickes, who said that department "led the way in the rubber scrap collection. Now it will exceed that performance in the scrap metal drive."

With Assistant Secretary Oscar L. Chapman in active charge, national parks, recreation areas Indian reservations, reclamation projects, construction sites and other areas will be combed for metal. Scrap from discarded equipment left over from some of the department's greatest projects, such as Boulder and Grand Coulee dams, are expected to yield vast quantities of metal, Ickes said.

Actually, the drive will be an intensification of a continuing operation in the department which during the last few months has assembled and sent to blast furnaces more than 3000 tons of scrap, the secretary said.

The letter was turned over to Judge George D. Neilson, presiding in Traffic Court, who said he already had announced a "crackdown" policy on speeders but did not intend to be too hard on them "until they have been educated regarding the new speed limit."

Usually, Judge Neilson said, he fines speeders at least $20, but he believes drivers should be given time to accustom themselves to the lower speeds before imposing more severe fines.

Meanwhile Arlington County motorists holders of B and C gasoline rationing books who are convicted on charges of speeding or who forfeit collateral face the danger of losing further supplemental gasoline books as a result of an order issued yesterday by County Judge B. M. Hedrick in the County Court.

Judge Hedrick isued orders for Chief of Police Harry L. Woodyard to notify all members of the police force to take the number of B and C gasoline rationing books of all persons violating the county speed laws.

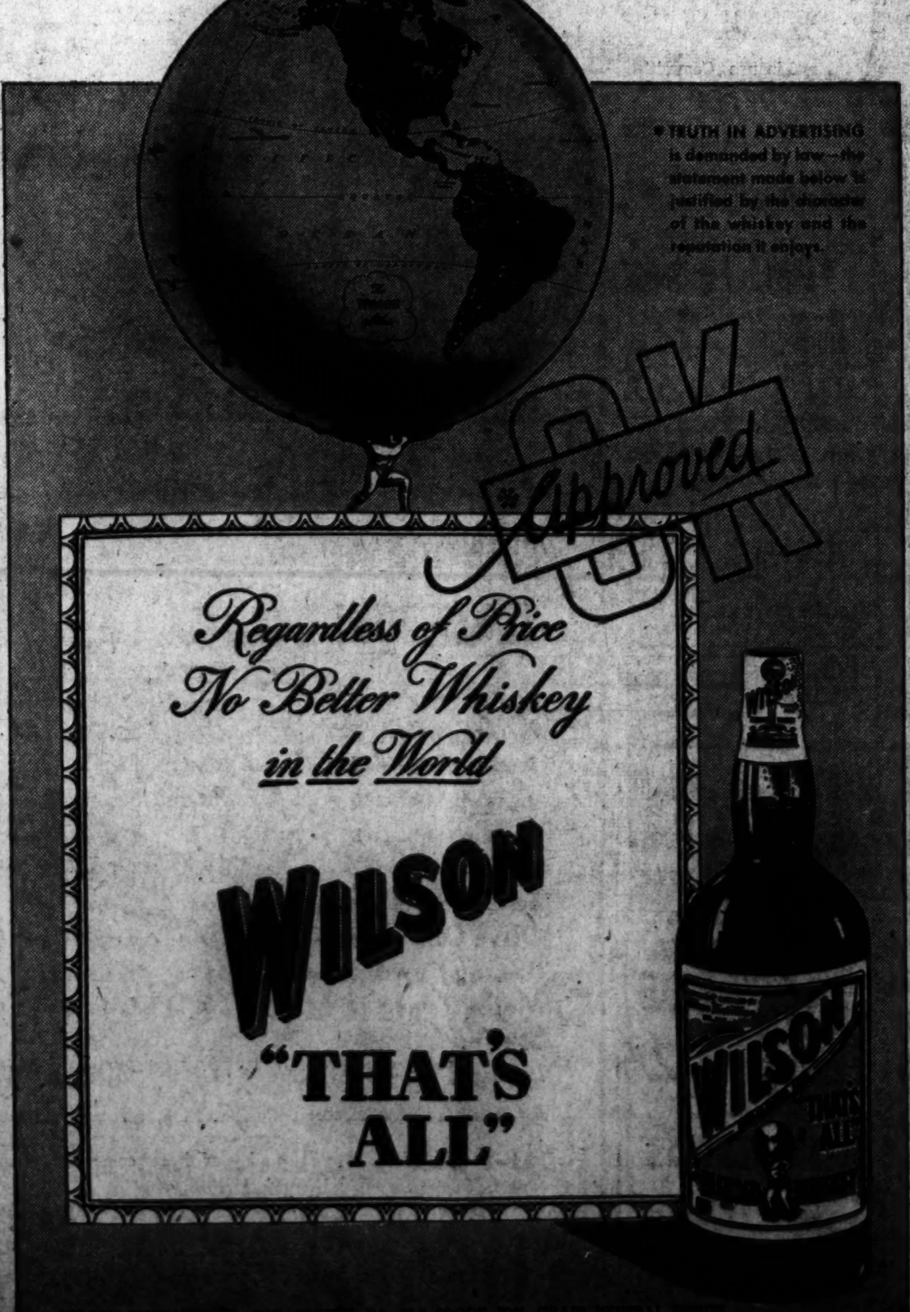

Those convicted or who forfeit collateral will be reported to the County Rationing Board by the clerk of the court.

The first person coming under the court's ruling was a holder of a "C" gasoline book who was fined $10 and costs totaling $14.35—in County Court for speeding.

U. S. Puts Curb on Film For Movies

By the Associated Press

Motion picture producers and distributors, during the year beginning October 1, must get along with 10 to 24 per cent less film than they used during 1941, the War Production Board announced yesterday.

Harold Hopper, chief of the WPB's motion picture and photographic section, said that despite the reduction there "should be no change either in the quality or length of films to be produced."

Voluntary conservation measures, Hopper predicted, would make possible the same production volume "as we have been accustomed to."

Principal savings of film were expected to result from fewer "retakes" and less "cutting."

WPB based the reductions in the amount of 35-millimeter film to be received by producers and distributors on the quantities of linear film consumed in 1941.

Producers and distributors of entertainment films for the theaters will receive the following percentage of their 1941 consumption:

Those who used 150 million linear feet of film or more, 76 per cent; 125 million to 150 million feet, 77½ per cent; 100 million to 125 million feet, 80 per cent; 75 million to 100 million feet, 82½ per cent; under 75 million feet, 90 per cent.

WPB announced that issuance of "re-releases" (revivals of old films) would be limited to the extent of film consumption for this purpose in 1941.

There will be no restriction on allocation of film for the armed forces, for newsreels, for pictures approved by the Office of War Information's motion picture bureau, and for essential scientific and research films.

In an order issued August 20, the WPB froze all film stocks in the hands of manufacturers. Since then film has been allocated as required in the production of pictures.

4 Others Accused In Nation's Biggest Recap Sales Ring

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 17.—A former Army colonel and four other men stood accused today of operating what the Government termed the largest ring in the Nation organized to sell illegally recapped automobile tires. Three of the defendants are in custody and the other two were being sought today.

Federal Attorney Mathias F. Correa said the "black-market" operators disposed of the tires by declaring them to be used, not recapped. Although ration certificates are necessary for the purchase of recapped tires, they are not needed for the sale or shipment of used tires.

Operated in D. C.

Correa said the ring operated by sending out circular letters to taxicab companies, trucking concerns and dealers in auto accessories in Virginia, Maryland, Tennessee, Washington, D. C., and New York.

The three defendants arrested and arraigned in U. S. District Court were Leo Handler and Michael J. Cryne of Brooklyn and Richard Guest of Manhattan. Correa said Guest was a former confidence man convicted of mail fraud in 1934 and now wanted in Boston on another mail-fraud charge. Each was held in $5000 bail.

The other defendants are George A. Lynch of Freeport, former Army officer and Martin Mandell of Brooklyn.

Sold Above Ceilings

OPA officials said that the ring sold recapped tires at prices substantially above ceilings established by the Government. Tires were sold by the syndicate for prices ranging from $17 to $50, they said, including recaps which, before the war, were worth no more than $6 or $7.

As many as 50 tires were sold to one buyer, they said. There was no explanation as to where the defendants obtained the tires.

Irving C. Rutter, OPA official, said that the offense was "a crime which constitutes so great a sabotage as to be of material aid to the enemy."

The defendants face a maximum penalty of two years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine each, since they are charged with ordinary conspiracy to violate the war powers act.

D. C. Dispute Ends

Carpenter Foremen Win Raises

An agreement providing a $1-a-day wage increase for union carpenter foremen has been reached by the Master Builders Association and the Carpenters District Council, ending a six-mon'h dispute, marked by occasional walkouts on defense projects in this area.

The agreement becomes effective November 16 and will remain operative until April 30, 1943.

The dispute arose last April upon the expiration of a contract between the carpenters and the master builders. Early this month, 65 carpenters and their foremen refused to continue work on a Navy Yard job until the situation had been settled.

O. W. Blair, a representative of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, Inc., represented the carpenters in their negotiations with the master builders.

Western Union Drops Singing Wire Service

New York, Sept. 17 (AP).—Singing telegrams have sung their swan song.

After midnight tonight, Western Union announced the warbled birthday greeting will go on the wartime casualty list, along with other bargain telegraphic services.

Company General Manager Alexander Simon said all flat-rate telegraph services in the United States were being cancelled to prevent interference with the handling of urgent war communications. Postal Telegraph said it would discontinue similar services as of midnight tomorrow.

Both companies said they were limiting, for the present, "bulk matter" distributions, a service hitherto available to anyone.

New Vice Chairman Of WPB Named

chairman of the Maritime Commission.

Although Wilson's appointment was the first high-ranking addition to WPB's staff since Nelson enunciated a policy of greater labor participation in WPB several weeks ago, there was no immediate indication that the selection would bring any protest from union leaders.

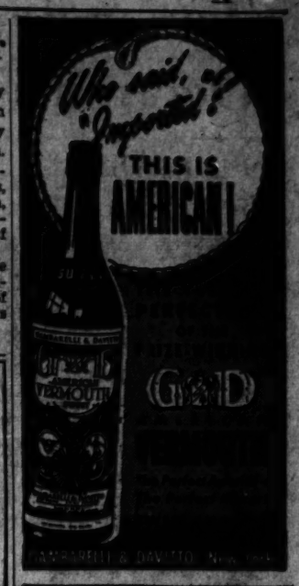

In a recent meeting with Nelson, President Philip Murray of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, and President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, suggested that the WPB chief appoint two vice chairmen of WPB from labor. Nelson made no definite promises, but did agree to the general principle of giving labor a greater voice in WPB counsels.

Usually well informed WPB sources yesterday stated that Walter Reuther, vice president in charge of the General Motors division of the United Automobile Workers Union, C. I. O., and Harold Ruttenberg, research director for United Steel Workers, C. I. O., are being considered for key WPB positions.

Three important WPB posts are now vacant: the position of deputy chairman in charge of program progress and the chief and deputy chief of the iron and steel branch. A new iron and steel chief is expected to be named in a few days, as the acting head, David Austin, will leave the Federal service today to repair his health in a rest of at least two months.

Wilson's selection marked the second time within a week that Nelson has dipped into the ranks of America's self-made business leaders to fill a vital war role.

McConkey Firm Faces Charge of Short-Weighting

The W. H. McConkey Co., Inc., commission produce merchants of 1205 Maine Avenue Southwest, was charged in Municipal Court yesterday with short-weighting, by 192 pounds, a sale of mustard greens to the District Government for use by the Glenn Dale Tuberculosis Sanatorium, Glenn Dale, Md.

Judge Walter J. Casey set the case for hearing September 30 to give W. H. McConkey, president, time to employ an attorney.

According to the corporation counsel's records, the firm represented the truckload of greens to weight 442 pounds, but an investigation by George E. Lavalley, purchasing agent for the hospital, and inspectors of the Department of Weights and Measures, revealed that the consignment weighed 250 pounds.

Chief Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward W. Thomas, who issued the warrent against McConkey, said the alleged short-weight sale was made August 27.

D. C. Board Also Refuses to Change 1-A Status of 21

Swinging in with Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey's order to grant occupational deferment only to "necessary men," the District Selective Service Board of Appeals denied requests of 10 registrants for reclassification on basis of occupation for the week ended September 4, it was announced yesterday.

Also rejected by the board were 21 appeals for reclassification from 1-A to 3-A. Eight like appeals were granted. Seven appeals were returned to local boards for additional information and one asking reclassification as a conscientious objector was referred to the United States attorney.

Marines Train To Beat Japs At Own Game

By Charles P. Arnot

United Press Staff Writer

Pearl Harbor, T. H., Sept. 17.—United States military leaders in Hawaii are not missing a trick these days. They now are training Marines who will be able to out-jujitsu the Japs and creating a battalion of Army "commando" engineering experts in destruction and construction.

The aim of the Marine group is to surpass the Japs in their specialty of close fighting, a type of combat which they used effectively in the PPhilippines and Malaya.

The second group comprises only volunteers, 98 per cent of them brawny, experienced construction workers. Many of them have fought in previous wars and quit high-salaried jobs to get in this fight. Their job will be to construct or destroy all types of facilities and at the same time fight shoulder to shoulder with advance combat units.

Frank N. Souza, 32-year-old Hawaiian expert, is instruction in the advanced jujitsu courses, all of which are in charge of Lieut. Richard A. Gard, an instructor of military Japanese at Pearl Harbor until the language courses recently were discontinued.

Souza's courses, designed to give the Marines a weapon they can use defensively against saboteurs at navy yards such as Pearl Harbor or offensively in hand-to-hand fighting, closely follow "pure" Japanese methods. This jujitsu differs materially from American versions, which combine wrestling tricks, and from judo, which is primarily a sport technique, Souza said.

"We are not bothering with parlor tricks," he explained. "The men are taught to fight to win—to fight dirty, perhaps, but to come out on top."

Souza emphasizes split-second timing, perfect balance, and constant alertness. He teaches 50 fundamental movements, but estimates there are more than 2700 holds, breaks, throws and defenses, including combinations.

Marines now in training will become instructors so that eventually large numbers of Leathernecks will be able to meet the trickiest Japanese on equal grounds.

Mr. Delano Resigns

The important part which the National Capital Park and Planning Commission has played in the development and the beautification of Washington is in no small measure a tribute to the efforts of Frederick A. Delano, since 1926 a member and since 1929 chairman of the commission. As the resolution approved by the commission aptly says: "Mr. Delano's 25 years of activity in the development of today's Washington have seen a far greater improvement of this city than any other similar period in its history and this accomplishment may, in large part, be justly accredited to his skillful guidance."

Fortunately for the District and the Capital area as a whole, Mr. Delano's interest in the labors of the National Park and Planning Commission will not end now that he is no longer to be its chairman. And fortunately, too, a worthy successor has been found in Brig. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d. Not only was General Grant instrumental in getting Congress to pass legislation creating the Planning Commission; he also served as its executive officer from 1924 to 1933 and is thoroughly familiar with its policies. There is every assurance, therefore, that the fine work done by the commission under Mr. Delano's chairmanship will be continued under the chairmanship of his successor.

Wage Spiral

A perfect illustration of how difficult it is to arrest the spiral of inflation once it has been set in motion is given in the recommendations of the War Labor Board mediation panel in the case of the Western metal miners. Considering this case alone, the wage increases of 2½ to 15 per cent approved by a majority of the panel seem to be justified. For the mines have been drained of labor because of the more favorable wages paid by the shipbuilding, construction and aircraft industries of the Pacific Northwest. Copper production in Utah and Idaho is said to have dropped 5 per cent in July because of a loss of 20 per cent in the number of miners on the job. Obviously that is a serious threat to the war-production program.

Of course, the War Manpower Commission now compels miners in this vital industry to obtain "separation certificates" before leaving their jobs. That order may halt the migration from mines to other employment. But the panel majority points out that "over 6000 men must be found for the mines and mills and over 2000 for the smelters in order to maintain production for the balance of the year, without any allowance for future withdrawals, and still more men must be found if plans for the expansion of copper production in 1943 are to go forward." In the absence of compulsory recruiting of labor, the mines must have a higher wage scale to regain a reasonable quota of workers.

Working conditions are not favorable in many of the submarginal mines that have been reopened to supply war industries with vital materials. If morale in those mines is to be preserved—and the panel suggests that a high degree of morale is necessary for efficient production—the miners must not be denied benefits that have been accorded to other groups.

It is at this point, however, that the real danger of the policy being followed by the WLB becomes apparent. That agency finds it necessary to allow wage increases to correct an "emergency war problem" because wages in other industries competing for a limited labor supply had not previously been held in check. As labor shortages become more prevalent, acceptance of the panel majority's reasoning would probably lead to numerous increases. "If generally accepted," as Almon E. Roth, dissenting member of the panel said, "it would wreck our internal economy."

The basic fact which the WLB has not yet candidly faced is that this spiral of increases must be stopped at some point if the disasters of inflation are to be avoided. Sound arguments for wage increases even above the formula laid down in the "little steel" decision can probably be found in many individual cases. But this is a time when group interests must give way to a sound national policy that will keep our economic system functioning smoothly under the strains of wartime. It is up to the Manpower Commission to outline a policy for stabilization of employment and effective use of our manpower, without relying upon inflationary wage increases to attract men to essential jobs. The best that can be said for the panel's recommendations, therefore, is that they constitute a stop-gap which points to the need for more satisfactory mobilization of our manpower.

Farm Bloc Runs Amuck

President Roosevelt has administered a sharp rebuke to the farm bloc in Congress for its latest attempt to inject price-lifting devices into the anti-inflation bill. His letters to chairmen of the Senate and House Banking Committees should be sufficient to rout the irresponsible elements that are attempting to abandon the concept of "parity" for agriculture in favor of a more inflationary policy. But Congress still has a long way to go before the enactment of a satisfactory anti-inflation bill will be in sight.

Farm-bloc legislators had seized upon a statement in the President's message to justify their new inflationary raid. They wanted to boost farm prices even above their present high levels by injecting into the parity formula an amount to offset farm wage increases. "Parity" under the present law is designed to restore about the most favorable balance between agriculture and industry that the farmers ever attained. But the farm-bloc legislators now want to boost agricultural prices both coming and going. The attitude they have taken is so thoroughly selfish and so utterly out of keeping with the national interest as to be a grave reflection upon their patriotism.

There is really only one issue before Congress in connection with this legislation. That is whether the President shall be given adequate authority to stem the tide of inflation. This is an issue which should bring overwhelming support for any reasonable formula. But the farm bloc is making every effort to evade this issue by demanding inflationary amendments or substitutes for the anti-inflation bill. In effect they are pouring gasoline on the flames of inflation.

President Roosevelt asked for lower ceilings over farm prices. Chairman Steagall of the House Banking Committee responded by suggesting a floor that would push some farm prices upward. Apparently he is willing to jeopardize our national economy in wartime and further undermine the faith of the people in Congress for the sake of playing farm politics to the last. Congress has been extremely tolerant of such obstructive tactics in the past. It has no reason to be tolerant any longer. The farm-bloc leaders are in effect giving aid and comfort to the enemy. Unless Congress firmly and promptly meets this threat to its own dignity and prestige as well as to the national welfare, the shadows of darkness will inevitably close in upon our system of representative government.

How To Save Landmarks

The announcement that the Government wishes to acquire the Blair House on Pennsylvania Avenue as a permanent guest house for distinguished visitors ought to be gratifying news to many older residents of Washington. Aside from its numerous historical associations, the Blair House is one of our finest examples of American domestic architecture at one of its finest periods. Barring bombs, conflagrations, earthquakes and so on, its purchase by the Government should insure its physical preservation.

Such buildings acquire in the course of generations a dignity and charm never achieved by any Government edifice originally designed for official purposes. No matter to what uses they may be put, buildings like the Blair House never, unless radically altered, utterly lose their acquired character. The household genii, though they may be frightened into hiding by the noise of typewriters or the gabble of clerks, can never be expelled until the house is razed. But it is doubtful whether any self-respecting genii will ever take up residence in any of the expensive neo-Potsdam and neo-Versailles edifices now flanking Pennsylvania and Constitution Avenues.

There are some who think that the great and perhaps necessary Federal building programs of the 1930's took away a good deal of visual interest from Washington and added a great deal of visual monotony, while leaving relatively untouched that part of the city which had neither interest or charm to begin with. Those programs also left untouched some of our choicest examples of medieval squalor unredeemed by any medieval picturesqueness. A character is something which a city can acquire only by decades or even centuries of slow growth, but is also, alas, something which can be destroyed almost overnight, as almost any of the older and larger Eastern cities now bear witness. Only the smaller and relatively isolated cities such as Annapolis have been able to preserve their character relatively intact in the age of land and realty development introduced by rapid transportation systems. It is hard to say whether the thought of ancient European cities destroyed by bombs is more pathetic than the thought of American cities destroyed by speculation, too sudden expansion, the vagaries of tax assessments and the mere passion for novelty.

In The Aleutians

In a recent Tokyo broadcast, Gen. Shunroku Hata, commander in chief of the Japanese forces in China, announced that "the east Asia war is about to take an important step in cooperation with the European war." This rather cryptic remark is being variously interpreted. Some believe that it presages a Japanese assault on India which would be part of an Axis effort to form a junction somewhere in the Middle East. Another school of thought is convinced that Japan intends to strike against Siberia rather than India. That certainly would be directly "in cooperation with the European war" and immediately in line with Hitler's interests. On the other hand, we should recognize the fact that, whichever direction Japan may move next—and inner compulsions as well as external necessities compel her to continue on the offensive—General Hata's statement was primarily designed to arouse fear and create confusion in the ranks of the United Nations.

Japan may attack India or Siberia. Neither possibility can be discounted. India's present state of tension would seem to be almost an invitation for the Japanese to step in. Yet Allied power in India is not inconsiderable and is steadily growing. Moreover, the heavy naval and merchant shipping losses suffered by Japan during recent months may deter her from such a venture, since an attack on India would have to be an amphibious operation.

An attack on Siberia, on the other hand, would require relatively little shipping. The land and air forces Japan would need are already on the spot in Manchuria. And while such an assault would create the danger of an attack on Japan's cities from the air—Vladivostok is only 650 miles from Tokyo—the Japanese strategists may be reckoning on the possibility of a successful blitzkrieg against the maritime provinces of Siberia before they could be used by the Allies as a bombing base.

In this connection Japanese activities in the Aleutians have more than a passing interest. The Japanese have been entrenched in the western Aleutians since last June. Mounting evidence indicates that the primary purpose behind the seizure of the three islands was to enable the Japanese to establish air and naval bases astride the route from Northwestern United States to Siberia. To achieve this end they have apparently been prepared to pay a heavy price. And the fact of the matter is that they have paid and are paying a heavy price for their venture into the Aleutians.

American submarines have sunk a goodly number of Japanese destroyers engaged in convoy activity off the Aleutians. American warships have shelled Japanese shore installations at Attu and Kiska, and last Monday, the Navy Department has reported, a large fleet of Army bombers and escorting fighter planes swooped down at Kiska and blasted enemy warships and transports. Extensive fires were started ashore.

This action is encouraging. It is not yet encouraging enough. The fact remains that, however great a price the Japanese have paid for their foothold on the western Aleutians, they have managed to retain that foothold. On the other hand, the increasing offensive power we are beginning to manifest in that area suggests the possibility that the day may not be far distant when, as at Guadalcanal, Tulagi and other islands in the Solomons, the invaders will be forced to relinquish their ill-gotten gains in the Aleutians. With the threat of a Japanese invasion of Siberia becoming very real, that day cannot come soon enough.

PLACES WITHOUT NUMBER

Now through a myriad heads that turn to slumber
The city, like a vast and dreamy brain,
Remembers far-off places without number
And country roads it will not walk again.
Tired Mario, who peddles tangerines,
Before he dozes in a crowded room
Feels the Sicilian morning on the vines,
The stony coolness of his father's home.
Hermann above his little tailor store
Breathes a Bavarian ho-field soaked in dew;
Nora the servant sees forevermore
The rock-bound Irish village where she grew
And smells the baking of its hoops of bread

Soldiers Without Supplies?

When Selective Service or some other department not responsible for supply and transportation talks airily about an army of 10 or 12 million men it would seem to call for a greater coordination of our war effort than is at present the case. There is no denying that it will be possible for us to raise a force of such numbers, but who will take care of the efficient and prompt supply of these numbers? It certainly won't be Selective Service, which today is in a very large measure dependent on volunteers to keep it running.

With our many "commitments" increasing in places outside the territorial limits of the United States and the U-boat menace not yet overcome, with our shipbuilding facilities just keeping ahead of current demands and clothing and equipage only being kept current, in what position will we be when we ship more thousands of troops off the American continent? Will Selective Service give us the answer?

In spite of the theories of armchair generals and applause-seeking politicians all warfare is based on supply in all its ramifications. That an army moves on its stomach is as true today as in the time of Napoleon Bonaparte. Temperate Zone troops in the tropics can combat in sarongs or moochas in default of regulation uniforms; but unless they can be seasoned to rice, dried fish and local foodstuffs, there must be proper supplies of Temperate Zone rations to keep them going. Ball cartridges, trench mortar projectiles and other implements of war do not yet grow on bushes nor have vines bearing spare parts for the jeep and light tank been found prevalent in any islands or continents yet landed on by American troops.

Some responsible central agency should control such part of our war information as can be given the public, and the spotlight-seeking bureaus should be censured when they break out with their largest, biggest, or what you will, "in American history." We can prepare for victorious campaigning to end the present war without the tooting of small horns, the wheezing of kazoos or hollering down rain barrels.

Book To Reread

Just because I like it, think it one of the truest, finest little books American literature can treasure, I have been rereading Stephen Crane's "Red Badge of Courage."

Warfare has changed in toto since the conflict of which he writes. But human nature has not. Its philosophy and ethics, its weakness and strength, its indifference and critical criticism are just the same as experienced by the youth Henry. And it is in know his great transformation.

"He became not a man, but a member. He felt that something of which he was a part—a regiment, an army, cause, a country—was in a crisis. He was welded into a common personality which was dominated by a single desire."

It is the welding into a common personality, dominated by a single desire, that has saved Britain. If it could come to America, possess and dominate, it would regenerate and save us to.

Liberty's Birthplace

According to a United Press dispatch in The Post of September 10, Jules Jeanneney and Edouard Herriot, presidents of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies of the suppressed French Parliament, have accused Petain of assuming unauthorized dictatorial powers in a letter to the Chief of State and his partner in puppetry, the despicable Pierre Laval.

In the accusation against the marshal the heads of the two chambers wrote, inter alia, "It is impossible that liberty will die in the country of its birth, whence it spread over the world."

All honor to these courageous French patriots for their brave declaration in the face of the severe punishment that may follow their temerity, but their claim on behalf of La Patrie as the birthplace of liberty is too much for even their good friends and well-wishers on his side of the water to pass by without question or demur.

Invoking the shades of Thomas Jefferson and the rest of that gallant company, yclept the founding fathers, in the name of 1776, and all that, and in memory of the immortal achievements of that never-to-be-forgotten period, I denounce this allegation and asseverate that liberty was born here in those days at a time when in France the old regime still prevailed and liberty was merely being spoken of or written about.

In today's Post Mr. Barnet Nover, with his usual felicity of expression, has characterized the indictment against the Chef d'Etat as "a damning one" and writes that its reference to liberty "is a reminder to us if any were needed that the spirit of France is not dead," in which I heartily concur, but fails to take exception to the assertion that its birthplace was in France.

It has been said that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." It would seem now that it needs to be declared also that such watchfulness is the cost of preserving the truth as to its birthplace.

Salvage Trains

With all the attention being given to scrap metal, this idea may seem too obvious to be useful. But too many obvious things are overlooked these days.

As one who occasionally rides on railroads and looks out of the windows of passenger cars, it seems to me that the scrap metal of the United States is to a large degree located on or adjacent to rights of way. Riding to New York the other day I saw much abandoned equipment, a half mile of rusty, unused 10-inch pipe, several signal towers decommissioned and much miscellaneous junk.

To collect this would be far easier than gathering the bits and pieces located in private back yards. Heavy equipment to smash and load the junk can be moved along the rails, and the scrap loaded in cars for immediate transport to the right places.

If our scrap situation is as desperate as reported, why not order out salvage trains on all rail lines immediately?

Nurses' Complaint

Who is appealing for nurses to care for the civilian population? Just because some superintendent of a hospital says "please come work for me" all nurses or one-time nurses are supposed to go rushing up and say, "It is my patriotic duty to work for you for less than living wages because once upon a time I gave three years of my life learning to be a nurse."

Nurses are humans too. We like to eat and live in a nice home and have a few pretty dresses just as well as the Government girls. But even with the slight increase in pay that we have recently gotten, that is next to impossible. Sure we want to be patriotic—many of us give a great deal of our spare time teaching home first-aid classes, etc.—we are patriotic. We buy war savings stamps and bonds whenever we can, the same as others. But after we have bought the necessities that we must have we don't have much money left from our paycheck to buy with. White stockings are almost next to impossible to get and those that are on sale cost a small fortune—and we can't go barelegged or wear sox—we are "professionals." Laundry has gone up, uniforms cost more, we don't get a discount on food or rent or clothes because we are nurses—then why aren't we making at least as much as the untrained people here in Washington and all other places? If we are so important and so necessary why isn't something done to show appreciation for those of us who work day after day, week after week, doing tasks that others shudder at the thought of doing—dirty work, hard work for which we have to be trained for three years? How about showing us some appreciation in the form of larger pay checks?

Soldier Votes

Public men like to prate about the sacredness of the American ballot, but when I read about the Secretary of War declaring that soldiers' ballots rank no priority whatsoever insofar as overseas shipment is concerned it strikes me that men in high places actually have little enthusiasm for the American voter.

General Pershing allowed New York soldiers to vote in 1917 at their overseas posts, under conditions similar to what they are today. A lot has been said about the military authorities opposing votes for soldiers, but the fact of the matter is that the opposition is centered in the civilian offices of the War and Navy Departments just as it was in 1918. Headquarters A. E. G. in 1918 recommended just the kind of voting legislation for soldiers that was passed by Congress the other day, the General Staff here in Washington approved the recommendation, and the Office of the Judge Advocate General prepared a bill with a recommendation that Congress put it into effect. But the Secretary of the Navy in 1918 suggested in a memorandum that can be seen in the War Department that voting would not be a good thing for soldiers out of the country in 1918, to which Undersecretary of War Benedict Crowell shortly after subscribed. It was not the Army that killed votes for soldiers overseas in 1918; it was the politicians.

Secretary Stimson is quoted as being opposed to voting by soldiers overseas because it takes too much space on ships to carry the ballots. Well, why not print the ballots overseas and have them counted over there by a commission representing all the States, and send the results home by cable?

The Post Impressionist

First Evening Gown

There are undoubtedly many thrills in a girl's life that she never forgets, but I think the most spine-tingling and heart-shaking is the one that comes with the putting on of the first evening gown. Not just a long party dress with puffed sleeves and round, high neck—no, I mean the real McCoy, a full-skirted, low-backed and tight-bodiced dress plainly calculated to wow the stag line and leave it in a dishevelled heap. The other night our neighbor's little girl (although she'd poison anyone who called her that to her face) stepped out in hers, and I happened to be on hand to witness the metamorphosis.

"Reminds me of my first evening dress," I said with all the symptoms of approaching middle age instead of middle twenties. The belles of the evening did a few twirls and said blithely, "That must've been ages ago, wasn't it?" On the point of hotly refuting this supposition, it suddenly occurred to me that it had, indeed, been a matter of some eight years gone by, though this seemed hard to believe. However, memory is no respecter of distances, and in half a second I was remembering another night, another year, and another girl—myself, dressing for THE dance.

By an unprecedented stroke of lightning good fortune, my secret passion had at last become slightly aware of my languishing devotion and had deigned to ask for my company at a definitely formal and fabulous dance where "everybody who was anybody" would, of course, be present. I was in a tremor of fear at first that my family would not understand the pressing need for a formal dress, but it took less persuasion than I had imagined and I have an idea now that it was something my mother looked forward to almost as much as I did. After consultations over the telephone with various girl friends, repeated trips to town with my mother, and a nightmare of vacillation in different stores, the dress and I made each other's acquaintance and found it a case of love at first sight. It was aquamarine taffeta with a sweeping, swishing skirt, a drop-shoulder neckline, and a tightly fitted waist. It had dash and charm and richness, it was a dream come true, it was Heaven wrapped up in cellophane and dangling from a Christmas tree as far as I was concerned.

I had but one gnawing worry, that someone would give away the fact that it was my first and only formal. I had a horror of appearing unworldly and naive (at fifteen!) to my escort of the evening, and I begged the family with tears in my eyes to appear nonchalant and make no remarks when I came down dressed for the dance.

Mother helped me get ready, and when I faced the mirror a finished product, I wouldn't have traded places with Jean Harlow, Marlene Dietrich, or the Queen of Sheba. To add a final gleam of perfection to the whole occasion, I was sent a corsage—also my first—of pink roses. I tried to spend an hour getting dressed, but it was done in 30 minutes despite my best attempts to dawdle, and I sat gingerly in front of my dresser, like a butterfly on a pin, scarcely daring to breathe lest I mar the glory of polished nails, scented ears, waved hair, and camouflaged countenance.

When at last my hero arrived, breathtaking in a "tux" which he wore with casual indifference, I came downstairs as calmly as I could only to squirm in anguish when my brother emitted a long whistle, exclaiming, "Boy! Some punkins!" The escort widened his eyes a little. "Sharp-looking outfit," he said, and I answered at once, "I started to wear a red one, but thought this color might be better." Behind me I heard my mother's gasp of surprise, and I shooed my dream man out the front door before any word could spoil the aura of sophistication which I felt sure enveloped me by this time.

The dance was as perfect as the dress, although there were a couple of rough moments when a girl friend pattered up during intermission and said, "Oh, is that the dress? Gosh, it's swell!" I started to change the subject, when a somewhat older girl whom I had hitherto admired came near me and observed, "I always knew you'd knock their eyes out in an evening dress—guess there'll be no stopping you now, will there?"

I could have chewed off both her ears without compunction at that instant, but instead, crimson with shame, I began chattering inanely about the music, and wasn't "Stardust" a perfect piece, and did you see So-and-so doing the shag right out of this world, and so on, till the moment passed somehow and my date seemed unaware of the fatal implication that I was not all I had cracked myself up to be.

After a while I was not so conscious of the dress as I had been at first, and when at 1 o'clock someone spilled a chocolate milkshake on the skirt as we sat in the Connecticut Avenue Hot Shoppe, I only giggled and threw a glass of ice water over the spot. By this time I actually believed that the dress was one of a dozen formals and that I wore one every night in the week. I reached home almost an hour later, yawning and tremulous with excitement, and as we paused at my door while I delved into my evening bag for a key, my date ran his finger inside his collar and sighed with the shattering honesty of males in such matters, "Will I be glad to get this thing off! First time I ever wore one, and it's been giving me fits all night."

For a moment the world rocked back and forth uncertainly and his figure seemed to dwindle before my eyes while my ideas of sophistication underwent a forced and sudden readjustment. Then I said, sympathetically, "Oh, I know, boys always do feel that way about it. I guess formal clothes can be kind of a bore at times!"

I ducked inside then, feeling that I had clinched my crown of superiority for all time to come, and only the soft, shushing rustle of my taffeta skirt and a couple of tattered roses remained to bring back memories of my perfect evening.

I noticed the other night that our neighbor's girl wore a dress that was quite a bit more decollete than mine—which I had thought to be the last word—had been; but I knew by the look on her face that though the styles had changed, Iris hadn't and never would, and in some locked-up and dusty part of my mind I envied her, just a little bit. She had such a wonderful night ahead!

War Taxation

By Walter A. M. Cooper

For Postwar Readjustment

The author is a member of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., in charge of tax work; chairman Committee on Federal Taxation, American Institute of Accountants; member and former chairman of Federal Tax Committee, New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants, and author of numerous articles, speeches, etc., on taxation.

TOTAL WAR lays a heavy burden on all of us whether we serve in the armed services or behind the lines producing the material and paying the cost. When a major part of our production is war goods we cannot hope to live as well as in peacetimes when all efforts are devoted to the things that make life worth living. We cannot eat bullets nor wear machine guns. Tanks are not for joy riding and the ships we are building are not for pleasure cruises or fishing trips.

What we pass out in the form of money as a measure of the value of services in production must in large measure be returned to the Treasury in the form of taxes direct and indirect; that is the principal means by which we attempt to balance the increased monetary income with the reduced quantity of civilian consumption goods. Indeed in the long run it is the only means, because the issuance of bonds merely defers the taxation.

High tax rates, continued high tax rates, cannot be avoided—but any taxing scheme we adopt should seek to preserve the democratic American way based as it is on individual initiative and the driving force inherent in untrammeled effort. We should not kill from within that which we fight to protect from outside attack. Let us endeavor to end this war with our Nation in position to carry on our industry able to carry the burden of transition to peacetime operations and our people able to stand on their own feet financially, rather than as dependents on Government doles.

We can tighten our belts to adjust ourselves to the conditions we know we must endure, but our taxing scheme must take care of the following three requirements, which are beyond our personal control:

1. To meet unexpected losses or expenses.

2. To meet obligations or commitments which, incurred in good faith, cannot be met and still keep going, if accompanied by the imposition of high tax rates.

3. To accumulate sufficient reserve funds to take care of postwar readjustment.

Such results should be accomplished on a voluntary, not compulsory, basis, for that is the democratic way. A comprehensive, interrelated plan is required. This article will present a proposal to meet the third objective just listed, as others have dealt with the first two.

Incentive Saving Bonds

The situation we must cover—namely, accumulating reserves for postwar adjustment—relates to the future more than the present, but it is our future for which we fight. We, individually, should be in position to meet postwar readjustment needs. If not impossible, it will be difficult to do that if all or many of us are financially destitute. Let it not be said that the operation was successful but the patient died in the process.

The plan proposed to meet this problem first envisages the issuance of a new type of Treasury obligation, in the form of incentive saving bonds, which should be noninterest bearing until after the cessation of hostilities, and nonnegotiable and nonassignable, with the exception that certain reservations will have to be made for cases of bankruptcy, death or other situations wherein a transfer by law is involved. Such bonds should become negotiable a short time after the cessation (say six months after a declaration of the end of the emergency period as required for amortization purposes), and at the same time should become interest bearing at a low rate, say about 2 per cent. The bonds should become payable in installments, commencing with the making of the proclamation described, over a period of from five to ten years. If they are then negotiable and assignable and are not payable over too long a period, the cash may become available either through payment by the Treasury or by sale. It should also be provided that a certain minimum amount per person, say, $2500 annually, be payable on the specified installment dates, this suggestion being made to cover the situation of wage earners, discussed later.

The law should then be amended to permit all taxpayers, corporate or individual, to deduct amounts paid or commitments made within the taxable year or up to the ordinary due date of the return, for the purchase of the aforementioned bonds, the amount deductible being limited to a stated maximum amount or a percentage of income, whichever is greater. It is suggested that the limitation be $2500 per annum per person or corporation, or 20 per cent of the amount of taxable income, whichever is greater.

The purpose of the percentage limitation is to prevent abuse while the purpose of the dollar limitation is to permit wage earners to purchase a larger amount of these bonds. Behind this suggestion lies the fact that many wage earners are today earning from $3000 to $6000 per annum, whereas they used to earn half or less of their present earnings. The greatest potential source of inflation lies in that extra income. If that excess can be siphoned off, one inflationary threat is removed, and if the individual is earning $5000 the 20 per cent limitation will permit the purchase of only $1000 of bonds. Such individuals should be permitted to purchase a larger percentage if they so desire in order to make the plan effective.

Furthermore, in the postwar readjustment, many wage earners are likely to find themselves out of work. The higher wages are being paid in war industries to a much greater extent than ordinary industries, but the war industries will be the first to suffer. Thus, by providing these wage earners with a backlog of saving bonds, which, as previously suggested, should be payable after cessation of hostilities in the minimum amount of $2500 per individual per year, there will be less need for work or other forms of relief during the readjustment period and less demand therefor.

However, in order to avoid overlapping, the provision permitting the purchase of bonds should be tied in to such provision as is made for the payment of debts. Assuming a similar limitation, there should be only one 20 per cent (or $2500) for debt payments and/or reserve savings bond allowance purchases—not 20 per cent (or $2500) for each.

1. Net income, on which tax would otherwise be payable $6000
2. Deduct:
   (a) Payment on mortgage $250
   (b) Purchase of bonds—limited to 2250
   — 2500
3. Balance on which tax is payable $3500

If the worker were married and without children the tax on the $3500 under the pending revenue act would be $425, whereas on the $6000 the tax would be $992. The wage earner pays $567 less tax, but the Treasury receives $2250, or about four times as much, and the wage earner will have that $2250 available in case of need or to spend for his own benefit after the war ends and civilian goods again become available.

In summary, it is believed that if the suggested interrelated plan were adopted these would be the results:

1. The difficulties of debt retirement would be alleviated.
2. The Treasury would receive currently much more cash, though, of course, not as much in the form of current revenue.
3. Considerable inflationary pressure would be removed.
4. Government postwar expenditures would certainly be reduced, as our people and business would be more self-sustaining.
5. Postwar revenue would be greater, as there will then be more business activity to pay taxes than if we so weaken our industrial structure that it cannot survive, and
6. The last two results may more than offset the current revenue loss.

We want private enterprise to live and prosper, just as we want our people to be on their own resources as far as possible—not on a dole. This plan will further both ideas.

Loss of Submarine Admitted by Rome

Rome (From Italian Broadcasts), Sept. 17 (AP).—The high command announced today that an Italian submarine had been lost in war operations.

"Enemy planes dropped a great number of high explosives and incendiary bombs on the town of Bengasi, causing limited damage to some houses," the high command said.

Three persons were reported killed and several wounded.

Axis fighter planes and antiaircraft shells were declared to have shot down seven British fighters.

Under Your Hat

By Kenneth Ruble

(Reprinted from the Minneapolis Times)

(Memo from K.D.R.—Something a bit different in guest columns will take over this space while I finish my vacation. You've been reading here some letters written back by several Daily Times men now in the armed forces. You, and present-day servicemen, will be interested in comparing them with a few to follow, for they are similar letters written back from France during World War I to my boss, by men then on his staff on the old Journal. Today's letter was written from "Somewhere in France," September 29, 1918, by Pvt. Alexander F. "Casey" Jones of the A. E. F.'s hospital train No. 58. He's now managing editor of The Washington Post.)

"I AM WRITING you tonight because I want to talk to someone and it is so still here. Not exactly still, either, but there are none of the welcome noises or the sound of a friend's voice. It is about 2 a. m., and we are rolling south with a capacity load of the lads who gave you such good reading yesterday. I am here in the office, watching with one eye an approaching station where I can get some telegrams off and with the other, and all my ears, unusual sounds from the fracture ward, which is in this car. The lad on duty has bobbed off to get a little sleep. I feel that I never can sleep again, nor do I want to.

"I was wondering tonight what you and all my friends would have said and thought if you had been with me today. Not that anything out of the ordinary happened—the run through the beautiful country below the front, the hundreds of trains carrying ammunition and troops up, the regiments swinging along the roads, bound for the line; nearing the line and the sight of two observation balloons plunging in flames, the black puffy barrage of the Archies as they fell and the squadrons of planes in the air a second later pursuing the raider. The front-line hospital with its tent wards and its mud-caked, bloody, game-to-the-end patients. The speed with which the boys are taken from the field, patched up and loaded aboard the train...

"I KNEW I would never be able to finish this letter last night. Things began to happen at the end of the last paragraph. We are now on the way up for another load. Our destination is farther up this time. Every time it is farther. Some day we are going into Metz, and then Strasbourg and Mulhausen and—well, the possibilities are interesting....

"We have just finished loading. Quite a bunch of officers, all wounded, aboard. And I was just thinking that a buck private and a colonel look just about the same on a hospital bed. They suffer the same pain for the same cause and it makes little difference what the rank... While we were loading I watched a ceremony that I wish all the folks at home could see just once, just for their soul's sake. They were burying the dead.

"This hospital is on a hillside. Our train lay a little below. At the crest of the hill I could see a number of the familiar white crosses. Over to the left a number of men were nailing together long white pine boxes. Then out of the ward came eight men carrying one of those boxes, draped in an American flag. They were strange pallbearers. Some of them were dressed in overalls—"blues" we call them; some in regulation uniform. As they passed up the hill a group of slightly wounded lads passed the procession, if it could be called that. They all stood at salute—all except one, and he had his arm in a splint. He tried hard but couldn't make it. It is hard to bring a shattered right arm to salute...

"AND THEN the procession gained the top of the hill and I saw it against the skyline. As they lowered away a man in black raised his arm. It was evidently a chaplain saying a prayer. The lads digging other graves in the plot stopped until the hand fell, then resumed their digging. Again and again the procession wound its way to the top of the hill. Again and again that hand was raised and lowered. And again and again the diggers stopped and then resumed their digging. A common sight, most anyone up here will tell you. I simply mention it.

"But when I turned away from this scene I saw one of our nurses feeding a wounded Boche hot chocolate. He had a low forehead, protruding lips and the meek eyes of the easily led. A born serf. If he wasn't a serf, perhaps those lads in the boxes would be back home now with their sweethearts, holding hands and laughing at Charlie Chaplin in some bedimmed movie. And maybe that is what it is all about. Maybe that is what Wilson means by making the world 'safe for democracy.' Maybe these serfs have got to be led out of the desert, even if processions have to go up the hill with American lads in white boxes."

And maybe that is why this time the United States intends to climb into the driver's seat to make certain that those processions will not resume again in another 24 years.

St. Lawrence Project

By Ernest Lindley

Postponement A Matter Of Course

THE PRESIDENT'S HINT that the St. Lawrence seaway and water power project should perhaps be deferred is in accord with the present war plans of the United Nations. These call for taking the offensive on a great scale at the earliest practicable moment. The great offensive against Germany from the west will be launched next year, if not earlier. When Germany has been cleaned up, the United Nations can apply a gigantic nutcracker to Japan, although further small offensive operations, such as that begun in the Solomons, may come earlier.

The war may be long. Some of our preparations, especially some of our naval construction, appears to be predicated on a long war. This may be regarded as a hedge against the failure of the present strategy, which is to strike as soon as we are strong enough to strike hard, with the hope of bringing the war to a successful conclusion in two or three years.

The St. Lawrence development would require three to four years for completion. The President questions whether the material should be diverted to that project now. And the same question, of course, arises with regard to the manpower required for the actual construction, as well as to the electrical generating equipment.

HARNESSING the water power of the St. Lawrence has been a project especially close to Mr. Roosevelt's heart for at least 14 years—since his first campaign for Governor of New York. For 15 years prior to that the development, in various forms, had been under consideration. It had been a subject of controversy in half a dozen New York State campaigns. Mr. Roosevelt's first major proposal as Governor was to take the question out of the realm of political debate and actually get started on the project.

But every attempt to get the work under way has been blocked, not always by the same obstacles. There have been differences of engineering opinion, difficulties between the State and Federal governments, and lapse of interest in Canada, as well as the perennial struggle between the economic and political groups in the United States favoring and opposed to the development.

The project should have been completed years ago. A year and a half ago the President renewed his efforts and an understanding was reached with the Canadians. If work had been begun then, the project would now be half completed. The electric power is needed and could be used to good advantage, and the seaway would be a definite asset to the war effort.

IF THE PROJECT could be completed in a year and a half it might be of great value, even if the war can be won in two or three years. If the war goes beyond three years, we may regret that construction of the project was not pressed in 1942 and 1943. This is a striking example of an alternative which runs through much of the war-production program. It is impossible to maintain maximum military power for a long period. If more metals are used in 1943 to build tanks and guns, there will be less materials for new steel plants and for the machine tools to produce still more tanks and guns. If more steel plate is used to build battleships which will not be ready for action until 1944 or 1945, there will be less steel plate for destroyers and merchant ships to be used in 1943. With the passage of time, weapons become obsolete, and, therefore, much of the equipment used in making them becomes obsolete. The best weapons we knew how to produce in 1940, 1941 and early 1942 are those with which the battles of 1943 and 1944 will be fought.

In 1940 and 1941 we set out to build an all-purpose Army. Considering the various climes in which a global war must be fought, this may not have been wasted motion. But now the training and equipment of the Army must be directed toward the fighting of particular actions. Other factors being equal, a military force intended for all purposes and all times cannot expect to be as powerful as one for action at a particular time and place.

Someone must decide when and where our maximum power should, if possible, be exerted. That is one of the gravest duties of the President as the Commander in Chief, with the advice of the professional high command. And, it was recently revealed, a military understanding has been reached with Prime Minister Churchill and the British high command. The decision apparently was unsatisfactory to the Russians, but it was undoubtedly made with their plight thoroughly in mind and with a view to finding the most promising way of assuring the ultimate victory.

It is by no means clear that all of our war production has been geared to an effort to take the offensive next year, if not earlier, against the Nazis, and to the hope that the United Nations will be able to be concentrated on the Pacific in 1944. There probably should be some hedges against a longer war.

But to the decision made, the whole national economy must be made to conform. It is too bad that the St. Lawrence project was not completed long ago. But if its construction now requires materials and men needed elsewhere under a strategy which calls for powerful offensive actions during the coming two years, its postponement follows as a matter of course.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

A Winter Suggestion

The winter threatens to be tough
With heat a scarcity;
You'll have to heat by coupon with
A card marked "A" or "B."
But I've a plan and this is it—
A plan that's hard to beat:
Let neighbors form in Furnace Clubs
And through them Share the Heat!

Get in a Share the Heat Club now
Before the snows begin!
Don't be a hoarder of your heat—
Let some cold neighbor in;
If your oil tank is nearly dry
Don't feel downcast or blue—
Just move next door and sweetly chirp,
"I've come to live with you!"

Since Share the Car Clubs went so well
There is no reason why
A Share the Warmth Club will not be
A project worth a try;
Is your flat feeling cold and bleak?
Remember war is war,
And plan to pass the winter with
Some well-oiled man next door.

Has Jimmy Smith a tank that's full
While yours of oil is clear?
The old communal spirit will Invite a workout here;
Pack up a bag, or maybe two,
And then descend on Jim,
Proclaiming that when you get oil
You'll do as much for him.

Is Wilbur Jones a dry-tank guy?
Then he can join a group
And share the heat with neighbors who
Are not left in the soup;
This is the true democracy
So if you're in a spot
And have a fuel problem go
And live with one who's not.

Perhaps a schedule may be framed
In neighborhoods quite bleak
So each may find the warmest house
To spend the coldest week;
The Browns and Smiths will calmly live
On Jones' oil supply,
And Jones can live with Brown and Smith
When their tanks are not dry.

This Share-the-Heat plan is a wow—
I think it is a gem;
My neighbors have their tanks so full
I can move in on them;
I give my warm approval to
This project, for you see
I am so short of fuel that
No one can live with me!

What Parity Price Is

By Mark Sullivan

A Factor In The Spiral

BY REQUEST I reprint in substance something that appeared in this column last year. It is an explanation of "parity price." The phrase is currently in the headlines in connection with the present high spot of Washington news — the attempt to restrain cost of living and avert inflation.

SULLIVAN

"Parity price" applies to farm crops—and to no other prices. But it has an influence on other prices and on wages—and hence lies at the bottom of the present controversy.

"Parity price" was put into effect some nine years ago, early in the first Roosevelt Administration. Those who devised it set out to find a price for crops which would be satisfactory to farmers. Surveying the years far back, they decided that the period 1909-14 was one in which farmers did well—it was a golden age of farming. So they picked out 1909-14—they call those years the "base period." And the return which farmers received for their crops during those years is what is meant by "parity price."

OBSERVE I use the word "return"—the "return" which farmers received. But it is not the actual price, in dollars, that the farmer received during 1909-14. Parity price is more complex than that.

Those who devised parity price made an intricate calculation. They inquired, first, just what the farmer received, in dollars, for the crops he sold. Then, second, they inquired just what the farmer had to pay for what he bought—for farm implements, for example. A computation based on these two is parity price. Parity price aims to put the farmer in the same position in which he was during 1909-14—with respect to what his crops would buy for him. For example: If in 1909-14 a hundred bushels of wheat would buy one mowing machine—then today the price of wheat must be such that a hundred bushels will again buy a mowing machine. And so as to all the crops a farmer sells, all the goods he buys.

If I seem awkward in striving to express what parity price is, those who devised the term had the same difficulty. Their official definition, as expressed in the 1938 Triple-A statute, runs:

"That price for the commodity which will give to the commodity a purchasing power with respect to articles that farmers buy, equivalent to the purchasing power of such commodity in the base period..."

SO FAR, the statute is fairly simple. This first part of the statute is the original and basic conception of parity price. Later, something was added, as follows: "...and which will also reflect current interest payments per acre on farm indebtedness secured by real estate, tax payments per acre of farm real estate, and freight rates as contrasted with such interest payments, tax payments, and freight rates during the base period."

Observe that this statutory definition takes the whole farmer's outgo—the cost of what he buys, plus the interest payments on his mortgage, plus taxes, plus freight rates. Taking all these into account, the parity price statute declares that the farmer today shall receive such a price for his crops as will put him in the same position he was in during 1909-14.

For simplicity, I have spoken as if 1909-14 was the base period for all crops. It is the base period for all except two. Those who devised the parity price formula apparently found that while most farm crops did well during 1909-14, there were two that did not. The two exceptions were tobacco and potatoes. So, one infers, the devisors of the parity price idea looked about for a period during which tobacco and potatoes sold for a good price. They found such a period—it was from 1919-29. So, for tobacco and potatoes, 1919-29 is the base period.

At present, by several successive statutes, farmers are in effect assured parity price for every crop they raise, including fruits and vegetables. This assurance the farm leaders in Congress are determined to keep. Their determination is at the bottom of the present pulling and hauling in Washington.

Until recently, there was no serious popular opposition to this assurance, for most prices of farm crops were below parity. Recently, however, a new condition has arisen. It may be expressed thus:

(1) Some crop prices—that is, costs of food to consumers—have leaped high, some much above parity. (2) Because food costs have gone up, labor has demanded and received higher wages. (3) Because wages have gone up, costs of manufactured goods have gone up. (4) At this point the farmer must pay more for what he buys. (5) A new and higher parity price for crops becomes necessary.

In short, we are in an upward spiral. Parity price causes higher wages, and higher wages causes still higher parity prices—and so on upward. How to stop the spiral is what Washington now labors at.

Primary Vote Cast by Third Of Eligibles

By the Associated Press

An unofficial tabulation of 1942 primary voting in 35 States revealed yesterday that scarcely more than a third of those registered and eligible actually exercised the privilege of casting their ballots.

The total of those who voted was 14,937,426. The total of those who might have voted was 42,191,779. The percentage of those who did was 35 per cent.

Officials here who watch elections closely said several factors were responsible. Voting always lags in a year in which there is no presidential contest. The World War demonstrated that in war time the voters are apathetic. The absence of acute issues in many States contributed.

Many on the Move

In addition millions of voters are away from home—in the Army or Navy. There has been much migration of defense workers from State to State, and undoubtedly many of these have not been in their new homes long enough to be eligible to vote.

Long hours of work in the war factories, too, tend to keep voters away from the polls, although Donald M. Nelson, the director of war production, announced that voting was one of the few good excuses for a worker's absence from a defense job.

Despite, these apparent reasons for the light vote, some were of the opinion that it was unduly apathetic, and held that the voters should, in the interest of the country, maintain a more intense interest in who represents them in Congress.

Miss Marguerite M. Wells, president of the National League of Women Voters, issued a statement asking the voters to "expiate" their neglect at the primaries and shoulder full responsibility from now to November and "send the best men to the most important Congress in history."

South Makes Best Showing

In general the Southern States made the best showing, due, it was believed, to the fact that the Democratic primary elections there determine who the office holders shall be, and to the additional fact that there were hot gubernatorial and other contests in some of them.

Nevertheless, Wyoming topped the list with 84 per cent of its eligibles voting. Texas was second with 82 per cent, Kansas followed with 66 per cent, Georgia was fourth with 65 per cent, South Carolina fifth with 62 per cent and Tennessee sixth with 50 per cent.

Utah was lowest, with 13 per cent, and Idaho, Iowa and Ohio showed 19 per cent each.

By comparison with the total who voted in this year's primaries in the States in question, a total of 28,939,447 cast their ballots in the general congressional elections of 1938, the last year in which an election was not accompanied by a Presidential contest.

Slight Majority Now Favors Law to Compel 10% Deduction to Purchase War Bonds

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 17.—One important difference has existed in recent months between the attitude of the Government and the attitude of the people so far as the war program is concerned.

The difference—which symbolizes that the majority of Americans that while the Government has up to now been endeavoring to keep the civilian program largely voluntary, the people are ready, and have been ready for some time, to make many parts of it compulsory.

The latest evidence of this fact is that the mapority of Americans are ready at this time to see the Government put into effect a program for the compulsory purchase of war bonds in place of the present voluntary one.

The views of the country were sounded by the Institute on this issue in a coast to coast survey:

"Should all people receiving wages, salaries or other income, be required by law to put ten cents out of every dollar of their income in war savings bonds and stamps?"

Turnout Problem Faces Democrats

By Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 17.—The strength shown by the Republicans in the Maine elections Monday emphasizes again the importance of one special factor in the political situation this year.

That factor is the turnout.

In Maine the turnout of voters at the polls was the lowest since 1934. Usually the Maine vote has run between 290,000 and 320,000, occasionally dropping as low as 250000. But this time the vote in the governorship race was around 180000 and in the Senatorship race, 170,000—the first time since 1931 that it has gone below 200,000.

When turnout is low, the Republicans stand to benefit. A higher proportion of their ranks generally take the trouble to vote.

That is clearly illustrated in the Maine State-wide results. With the turnout lowest in 12 years, the Republicans ran up the highest percentage of votes in the senatorial and gubernatorial races since 1928.

Maine is but the latest of many instances this year when the turnout was low; virtually all the primaries to date have shown a light vote.

If this tendency on the part of many voters to stay away from the polls continues in the November elections, the Democrats may face a tough fight to keep control of the House.

War Inventions Fail to Surprise Council

MODEL GUN—Mrs. Robert C. Starkey sights a working model of a proposed new machine gun

SHIP SCREEN—Leonard Handling, Inventors Council engineer, looks over model of torpedo screen for ships

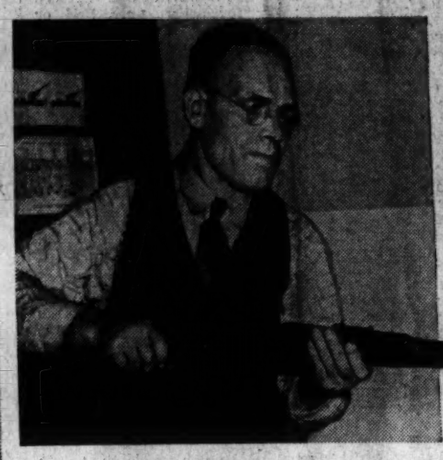

By Scott Hart
Post Staff Writer

Back in 1893, when Cosimo Spagnola of 28 Foster Place, New York City, was at the tender age of 12, he undertook a profound investigation into how an opposing soldier might be bayoneted while not suspecting that a bayonet was even in the county.

Yesterday, 49 years later, Spagnola, with rifle, bayonet, lawyer and a sympathetic friend pinned his excited eyes into a narrow-slitted gleam and charged across an office in the National Inventors' Council section of the Commerce Building.

Reaching a desk, charging, while two experts wondered, Spagnola emitted a deep belly grunt and, presto! a bayonet flashed on the rifle's muzzle. A trip of the finger had produced it from under the barrel.

A real opponent would only have thought that

COSIMO SPAGNOLA demonstrates his rifle bayonet

Spagnola meant to shoot him, when, of a flashing sudden, it would become clear that Spagnola had cutting designs to boot.

The inventor emphasized his contribution to mayhem's finer deceptive practices by a couple of lunges at the room, in general. It was just a pale episode of an average morning in the council. There work the people who have passed beyond surprise. They thought, however, that Spagnola may have something and fixed him up on an appointment elsewhere.

Since the council was organized two years ago, some 98,000 "inventive conceptions" have been contributed. The mails bring about 600 a day, while, ordinarily, 20 inventors elect to appear in person, as did Spagnola. The percentage of ones considered practicable for war use or any purpose isn't disclosed, but the trends of inventive thought can be discernible to anyone who reads the newspapers these days.

When an unusually large number of ships is being torpedoed, it's a safe bet that the council will receive a deluge of torpedo shields, which, alas, in all cases made public, at least prove that the cure would be more threatening than the torpedo. The tire shortage set off the inventors. All manner of firearms long have been their concern. Strangely, they have not tinkered much with heating furnaces, despite the fuel oil situation.

The council has received some good things, and otherwise. It doesn't want any models. Sketches and descriptions are enough, it was said. Taking space, at present, is a terrific four-foot bomb with air vents which open at the proper moment and discharge maybe 50 little bombs like a fighting old man throwing all his children into the fray. Torpedo deflectors litter the offices; there are scrapbooks loaded with new tire designs, some with leather treads, or wooden and canvas sides. One had an emery top that lasted 20 miles under test. There is a machine gun that sprays bullets from a revolving muzzle, and a workable milkweed floss to replace prime Java kopak for life preservers in wartime and for use as a plant land conserver in peace. Genius is a wonderful thing, and sometimes it works, sometimes it doesn't. There is a sign on the wall saying, "You don't have to be crazy to work here, but it surely helps."

Wickard Warns of Crop Shortage in 1943

This harvest season U. S. crops are breaking all records for the third successive year. But despite this, earnest, hard-working Secretary of Agriculture Wickard has issued a very potent warning to war chiefs that next year's crops will fall far short of requirements.

DREW PEARSON

The American farmer, Wickard has warned, is expected to feed the world, and he just can't do it without (1) farm labor, and (2) machinery. Furthermore, two other factors are now becoming difficult: Fertilizer, because of the large amount of nitrate going into munitions; and insecticide, much of which used to come from the Dutch East Indies.

Wickard's battle to secure more farm labor is pretty well known. He has been warning Selective Service Director General Hershey that not all farm labor can be drafted, and he has been battling with Manpower Czar Paul McNutt to keep farm labor from going to city industries.

But Wickard's struggle for farm machinery is not known. It has been waged backstage with Donald Nelson and WPB moguls to whom the Secretary of Agriculture has pointed out that farmers must have tractors, plows, cultivators, etc., to offset both labor shortages and to increase farm production.

On July 22, Wickard wrote a letter to Nelson suggesting that agricultural machinery to the value of $140,000,000 be manufactured for 1943. This figure represents 38 per cent of the 1940 production. Wickard also recommended a much higher production of repair parts, including plowshares—namely 151 per cent of the 1940 production. This was to permit farmers to repair outworn machinery where new machinery was not available.

This program was okayed by the Food Requirements Committee, on which the War Production Board is represented. But it got no action from the WPB. Instead, another branch of WPB, acting quite independently, drew up a program calling for production of farm machinery up to 27 per cent of the 1940 levels. This was the WPB's Civilian Supplies Branch, and its program in turn was rejected by the Food Requirements Committee.

To make matters still more confused, the War Department at this point entered the picture. It demanded that no critical materials be used for agricultural machinery during the next quarter. This would completely cripple the Wickard program, since the machinery to be used by farmers next spring must be produced in the next three months—in other words, in the next quarter.

So while farmers face a shortage of labor, machinery, fertilizer and insecticides, action in Washington is delayed by conflict and duplication among bureaucracies.

Birth and Price Control

Congressional leaders showed the President a rough draft of the new wage-price control bill before the legislation was introduced, and he heartily approved it. However, the leaders didn't tell the President about one proposal, relative to price control, which was discussed while the bill was being written in Speaker Sam Rayburn's office.

At this meeting, Rayburn remarked that the problems of cattlemen should be kept in mind in fixing meat prices.

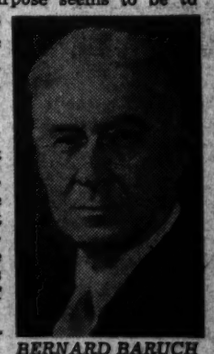

"I have some cattle myself on what I like to call my ranch in Texas," Rayburn said, "and I know from experience what it costs to raise them. It requires 27 months and a lot of hay before a heifer is ready for breeding."

"You forget to add on the period of gestation, Sam," someone observed "Maybe we ought to ask the President to do something about this. He could issue an executive order, shortening the length of time required to bring baby cattle into the world."

"Well, the President is a farmer himself and ought to know about such things," grinned Majority Leader Alben Barkley. "However, I doubt that this would come within the scope of his powers as Commander-in-Chief."

Nelson Challenges Baruch

Now that the Baruch fact-finding report is complete, supposed to end all further fact-finding on rubber, it looks as if the War Production Board was going to do some more fact-finding. The purpose seems to be to find out whether Baruch was right about all the facts which he found—particularly about alcohol. This will be of considerable interest to Midwest Senators.

BERNARD BARUCH

One of Baruch's recommendations was that there was not enough alcohol to make rubber, and therefore distillers would have to cut out whiskey and convert immediately. He also recommended that in order to make alcohol from rubber, new plants be erected to produce a total of 100 million gallons.

This recommendation was clear and unequivocal.

But now, Donald Nelson's WPBoys are secretly setting up a commission of their own inside the WPB to ascertain whether there isn't enough alcohol without converting all the distillers. Apparently they don't take the Baruch Committee's word for it.

And what is particularly interesting is the fact that chairman of this new private fact-finding committee on converting to alcohol is the head of a big whiskey distilling company.

A President Wilson Story

Cabinet members who turned out for Eddie Dowling's new show in Washington—and most of them were there—recalled another instance when Dowling opened a show in wartime Washington. That was in the last World War, and Woodrow Wilson, a great theater-goer, was there.

Wilson came behind scenes to congratulate Eddie and noticed lying dead-to-the-world on the floor in the dressing-room a private in uniform.

"It was Henry Dowling, Eddie's brother, who had been on guard duty all the night before at Camp Meade."

"Let him sleep," suggested Wilson. "I'll give him an extension of leave so he won't have to get back until tomorrow." So he scribbled on the back of the theater program: "Private Henry Dowling is extended until 12 noon. (Signed) Woodrow Wilson." But when Private Dowling reported for duty he was called upon to explain why he was AWOL. "I had an extension of leave," he said. "From whom?" "From the Commander-in-Chief," and he showed the theater program. Whereupon incredulous officers locked up Henry on the charge of mental derangement and it required Admiral Cary Grayson, aide to the President, to get him out.

Dodgers Fold, Lose by 3-2 as Cardinals Win

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

That Army task force of 55 men commanded by Col. Bob Neyland needs one more victory before it will be entitled to advise headquarters: "Mission accomplished." Neyland's all-Army football team, hand-picked for a three-game job of beating the New York Giants, Brooklyn Dodgers and Chicago Bears, has attained two of its objectives.

POVICH

The third is, of course, Sunday's battle with the Bears at Boston. And here and now the temptation is very strong to predict that Neyland's men won't win that one. They'll disband immediately after that game and, win or lose, they will have done all right, but the evidence is that they won't retire with an unbeaten record.

Neyland's team didn't look as if it had the stuff to beat the Bears during the other evening at Baltimore when they came from behind to slap down the Dodgers, 13 to 7. They were widely outplayed by the Brooklyn pros in the first half. Until the Dodgers were overpowered by sheer force of fresh Army reserves, they bottled up big Norm Standlee and broke up Capt. Johnny Pingle's passes.

The same plays that didn't work for Neyland's team in the first half fetched them two touchdowns in the last quarter. Against Brooklyn's second string line in which big Bruiser Kinard was conspicuously absent, fresh Army men punched their way home. The Army had reinforcements that the Dodgers lacked.

Dodger's 7-0 Lead Contained Irony

As Redskin Coach Turk Edwards, who was scouting the Dodgers for future reference observed at the finish, "the Dodgers needed Kinard in there. Your club is in pretty bad shape if you can't give a key man like Kinard a short rest without risking a touchdown."

It was the flashy running and pass-catching of Bobby Robertson, the ex-Southern California halfback, which sparked the Dodgers to the second-quarter touchdown that gave them a 7-0 lead, and therein lay an ironical twist for Colonel Neyland.

It seems that Neyland and his coaching aides had heard about young Robertson's football ability. But they had also been given a bum steer. They had been told that Robertson had been inducted into the Army in the early Summer. A general order went out to find Robertson in whatever Army camp he was stationed. It got no results, because Robertson wasn't in the Army. When he popped up in the Brooklyn line-up the other night, Neyland knew he had the right dope at least as far as Robertson's football ability is concerned.

Even in the intense heat of the other night, the Dodgers were more than a match for Neyland's big squad until the final quarter. Consider then, how the Bears will react to a battle with the All-Army team. The Dodgers succeeded in gaining a 7-0 lead before they were worn down in the last 15 minutes. It is logical to presume that the Bears, with their more effective T-attack, won't be content with one mere touchdown in the first three periods.

We think the Bears, too, will feel the effects of Army's superior manpower at Boston on Sunday, but not until Army reinforcements will be too late to sway the decision. The Dodgers, with Dean Mc Adams doing the passing, exhibited no aerial attack to compare with what the Bears can show off their T-Formation. The Bears figure to score quickly, and frequently and then defy the Army, with great success, to wear 'em down.

Army Lacks Bears' Deception

Neyland's team is seemingly handicapped by a lack of deception. When Capt. Johnny Pingle is directing the club, the Bears will know that Pingle in the tail-back job means a pass, as he isn't much of a ball carrier. Without Pingle, the Army's passing attack isn't much, and the Bears will know that, too.

And on the subject of passing, both the Brooklyn and the Army passers were horribly inept the other night. Balls were being thrown to the wrong side of receivers and otherwise missing their targets by a dozen yards. That impression, though, should be qualified perhaps. Perhaps Sammy Baugh has spoiled us in the matter of passing accuracy. Most passing looks bad to any customer who has been accustomed to Baugh's skill.

The Bears may not be at peak strength against Neyland's team at Boston. There are reports that Sid Luckman is not fit; that he suffered a separated shoulder in the game with the Redskins. Luckman is an all-important cog in the T-Formation, but happily for the Bears he is not indispensable this season.

With Luckman out of there, Coach George Halas will give Charley O'Rourke the quarterbacking job, and O'Rourke is a better passer than anybody the All-Army team has exhibited. The more we think about the Bears vs. the Army, the more pronounced seems the Bears' edge. They could win the game without much trouble at all, and probably will.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Sept. 17.—Missing in action in the fight for the Solomons are half a dozen former athletes, notably Col. Frank Goettge.

Veteran of the last war, once an aide to the commandant of the Marine Corps, and a swell officer, Colonel Goettge probably was one of the greatest bull-dozing football players who ever lived. He was an outstanding back at Ohio State but it wasn't until after the first World War, when he joined the Quantico Marine team, that he reached his peak.

CONSIDINE

We'll never forget one thing we saw him do. It was in a Marine-Georgetown game in the early 1920's. A burly Georgetown ball-carrier climbed up the backs of his snarled linemen and was going over the top in A. E. F. style when Goettge came in fast, over his own prostrate linemen's backs, stuck a big paw in the face of the Georgetown runner and flung him backwards with one great heave.

Walter Camp, the late dean of American football, saw Goettge play in the Marine-Army game at Baltimore about that same time. This was his lead on his story the next day:

"Today I saw a football player who, for today at least, was greater than Jim Thorpe. His name is Goettge. He's a Marine."

Known to be still alive in the Solomons, despite the frenzied efforts of the Japanese to recapture the bases, are Capt. George Stallings, Capt. Harry D. Torgenson and Maj. Justice M. Chambers.

Stallings boxed professionally in Florida, Georgia and North Carolina. He hoisted the first flag after the American invasion. Torgerson, the man who dynamited a host of caves in which Japanese snipers were operating is a former pro gridder and hockey player. Chambers, wounded in both wrists, refused to be treated until a superior officer was informed and ordered him to a hospital tent. He was a prominent softball player in Washington, D. C., which increases mightily our regard for that game.

Also still slugging in the Solomons are Commander Don S. Knowlton, Navy surgeon, a skeet shooter of national renown; Capt. Rex. R. Williams, former University of South Carolina boxer; Capt. Mike Lombardo, former University of Maryland boxer; Lieut. Harry F. Volkman, a District of Columbia ring referee; Sgt. Sid Fischel, co-manager and trainer of Georgia Abrams and such ex-boxers as Maynard Daniels, Joe Temes and Jimmy Tighe.

Speaking of the Marines, if Mike Jacobs wants to put a first class Marine heavyweight fighter on his big Louis-Conn charity card he should look no farther than Corpl. "Whizzer" White (not the ex-gridman) of the Marine Barracks, Naval Operating Base, Norfolk, Va.

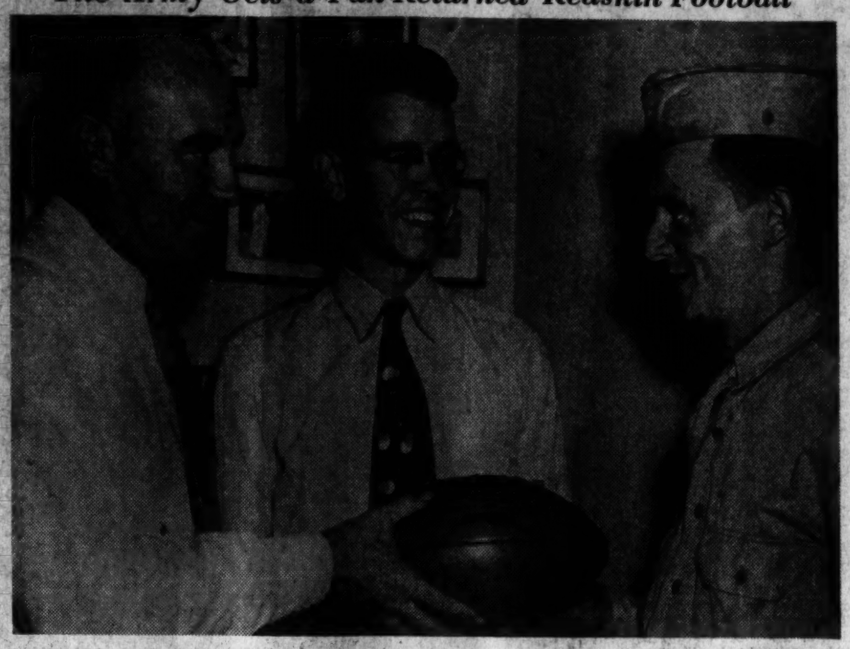

White weighs 235, won the Detroit Golden Gloves heavyweight championship, was undefeated in 50 fights when he entered the service and is said by competent authorities to be the "makings" of the Gene Tunney of World War II. He can be contacted through Maj. Joe Ward, USMC, at the base named above.

A Brooklyn posse is said to be forming to move against the citizens who called Dixie Walker all those bad names the other day. Dixie himself did some pretty fair moving, scrambling up over the roof of the Dodger dugout to get at his tormentors.

Dixie Walker assailed in Ebbets Field? Unthinkable! Durocher? Yes. Medwick? Yes. Camilli? Maybe. Wyatt? Upon rare occasions. But Walker, never? He's too close to the heart of Brooklyn baseball. He seems perpetually in the doghouse, like many a Brooklyn great of the past. And almost without fail, when he is stuck back in the game, he comes through with a fine batting performance. He made four-for-four on the day when he had to go up into the stands.

The Society of Rooters for Brooklyn, Irregardless, Inc., believe that the booing of Walker was the work of baseball fifth columnists. The addresses they gave might have been in Brooklyn, but the loyal fans figure that these were blinds. They must have come from some alien region, like Manhattan or Denver. Anyway, the loyal fans are up in arms. Take away their tires and their lump sugar, and even blow the pennant to them bums, the Cards, but booing Dixie Walker is too much for human flesh, Brooklyn variety, to bear.

Defense Work, Skull Sessions For Redskins

Nearly two hours of work against the Pittsburgh Steelers' offense in the morning and an hour and a half skull drill last night occupied the Redskins yesterday for Sunday's league opener at Griffith Stadium. The kickoff time of 2:30 p. m. will be observed throughout the season.

The 'Skins have looked at pictures of last Sunday's Bear game and last year's Steeler games twice in night sessions at their hotel quarters. Another defensive session will follow this morning on the stadium turf and they will taper off tomorrow morning. The Steelers will take over the stadium for an afternoon workout tomorrow.

The Redskins are showing more concern over the Steeler game after reports on the Brooklyn Dodgers' showing against the Eastern Army All-Stars Wednesday night. The Dodgers have proven to be a good ball club, even better than expected, and although they play the Packers and the Redskins do not they appear as the team to beat in the Eastern Division race. The Redskin coaching staff and four players watched the Dodgers and brought back word that they cannot let a team like the Steelers even get close to an upset.

Dick Poillon, Steve Juzwik and Joe Zeno, three of the rookies, have been practicing place kicks for possible duty when Bob Masterson is not in the ball game. Willie Wilkin and Fred Davis have been working on kickoffs, which showed room for improvement last week when Davis was continually missing his stride and allowing the Bears to pickup valuable yardage.

More than 12,000 seats remain on sale at the Redskin office for the first game of the season.

The Bears left their University of Maryland quarters yesterday for a short stopover at Annapolis before continuing to Boston for Sunday's Eastern Army All-Stars game. The Redskins hope they will be back—for the championship playoff in December.

Cards' Wild Spree In 9th Ups N. L. Lead

6-4 Margin Over Braves Is Result Of 5-Run Ninth; Brooklyn 3 Games Behind

By the Associated Press

Boston, Sept. 17.—After hanging on by their fingernails for eight innings, St. Louis' stubborn Cardinals seized their first real opportunity with both fists and cut loose a five-run rally in the nitnh today to pull out a 6-4 wn over the Boston Braves and go three games up on their Brooklyn Dodger pennant rivals.

The Dodgers were beaten, 3-2, by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Until that late stage, the Cards appeared ear-marked as Al Javery's thirteenth victims of the season. Up to then, that able right hander gave them only five hits and started the final frame with what appeared to be a safe 3-1 lead.

Cards Open Victory Drive

When Catcher Walker Cooper launched the Cardinals' victory drive, few of the crowd of 4347 were impressed. As leadoff batter, he reached first base by poking a feeble bunt down the third base line that took an erratic hop as Javery tried to field it. This apparently shook the confident Javery slightly, for he then passed Johnny Hopp.

When Cooper was forced at third as Whitey Kurowski reached on a fielders' choice, Manager Billy Southworth set out to outsmart Javery. The Cards' pilot sent in Ray Sanders to pinch hit for Marty Marion, who had scored the first St. Louis run after tripling in the fifth. Sanders hit the first ball pitched to right for a single to score Hopp and advance Kurowski to third.

Then Southworth put in Erv Dusak to run for Sanders and Ken O'Dea to bat for Southpaw Howie Pollet, who had relieved Starter Johnny Beazley with none out and two on in the third.

O'Dea caught the Braves flat footed with a squeeze bunt that pushed Kurowski across with the tying run—and still the panic went on. Ernie White, who beat the Braves yesterday, went in to run for O'Dea and was forced at second by Jimmy Brown. But Sebby Sisti bobbled Harry Walker's grounder and Dusak came all the way home to put the Cards in front.

Lefty Will Donovan took over and was greeted by a single by Coaker Triplett, pinch-hitting for Stan Musial. This pushed Walker home with the final run, for Triplett was picked off first base to end the spree.

The Braves came right back in their half of the ninth and sent Max Lanier, who replaced Pollet, to the showers in a hurry with a single and a walk. Harry Gumbert came in and was tagged by a single by Nanno Fernandez for a run. But at that point, with the tying tallies on base

Yanks Take 100th Game Over Tigers

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Sept. 17.—The New York Yankees, already crowned American League champions for the sixth time in seven years, smashed one of their own long lists of major league winning records today by whipping the Tigers, 7 to 4, for their 100th victory of the season.

It was the eighth year in which the Bombers have won 100 or more games, adding another season to the mark they already had in the books. No other club has ever come through with as many "centuries."

Stretching their current winning streak to six straight games, the Yanks backed up Atley Donald's steady 10-hit elbowing with a 12-hit attack of their own to give Donald his tenth victory of the year.

The pay-off rally came on a four-run spree in the fifth, the feature of which was Joe DiMaggio's twentieth homer of the year with two mates aboard.

Bucs Boost Bums' Deficit To 3 Games

Ed Head Blasted In Early Innings; Brooklyn Rally Falls Far Short

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, Sept. 17.—Just when it seemed opportunity was knocking for the Broklyn Dodgers today, they were out.

Aware that the St Louis Cardinals were trailing the Braves until the ninth inning, the Bums, visioning a chance to cut the Redbird lead to a single game, apparently tightened up like a kettledrum and stumbled their way to a 3 to 2 defeat at the hands of the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Cards came on to win their game eventually, and Dodger fans gazed mournfully at the three-game margin of the St. Louis team and shook their heads hopelessly.

The 34-year-old Truett Sewell was the villain of the play as far as the Dodgers were concerned today. Two or three times he was in more trouble than a draft dodger, but on all but one occasion he eased out of the jams unscathed. Three of the eight hits he allowed came in the fourth inning and accounted for Brooklyn's two runs.

A Poor Selection

Ed Head was the Dodger starter, and he was the wrong man. The Bucs plastered him for six hits and all their runs in less than two innings, and by the time Max Macon started to southpaw the Pirates into submission the damage had been done. Macon allowed only two hits in the 7 2-3 innings he worked.

The crowd of 11,658 had a premonition of what was coming when three cheap hits brought the Bucs one run in the first inning. Pete Coscarart and Jim Wasdell beat out bounders toward third base, and Coscarart scored on Bob Elliott's blooping double along the right field foul line.

The Dodgers filled the bases in their half of the first on a brace of walks with Pete Reisner's double sandwiched in, but that's all they did, while the Bucs came right back in the second to add two more scores on a single by Al Lopez, Sewell's double, and Coscarart's second single, which drove in both men.

Macon came in to relieve Head after Coscarart's blow, and he had the Bucs nibbling out of his hand the rest of the way.

Singles start

The Dodgers' big fourth inning saw two runs coming in on singles by Mickey Owen and Pee Wee Reese and Dixie Walker's double. They never got more than one man on base in any one inning thereafter, although it took a great one-handed stab by Wasdell of Reese's drive in the eighth to keep the champions from registering at least one more run.

In that frame the panic really was on for the Dodgers. Seeing their chance of victory fading inning by inning, and still convinced the Braves were beating the Cards, Leo Durocher went to the bench for aid. Lou Riggs was sent in to hit for Mickey Owen, who already had one hit to his credit. Riggs popped out. Augie Galan went to the plate for Billy Herman. He singled to center, but Wasdell's fine catch proved all hopes were false.

Indians Defeat Nats In 11 Innings, 6 to 5

Sid Hudson Walks In Winning Run in Extra Frame; Scarborough's Work Wasted

Special Dispatch to The Post

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 17.—Ten competent innings by Rookie Ray Scarborough were wasted here today when the Cleveland Indians scored a 6-to-5 victory over the Nats in the eleventh—at the expense of Sid Hudson.

With runners on second and third and two out in the top half of the eleventh, Manager Bucky Harris removed Scarborough for Pinch-hitter Frank Croucher, who was called out on strikes.

Ken Keltner and Jeff Heath greeted Hudson with hard, successive singles. Les Fleming was passed intentionally but Pinch-hitter Buster Mills walked to force across the winning run.

Scarborough gave up 12 hits in 10 innings, but was most effective when trouble threatened.

The Indians scored a run in the first inning with a pass to Hank Edwards, a single by Ken Keltner, a pass to Jeff Heath and a fly by Les Fleming laboriously promoting the tally.

But the Nats slapped Chubby Dean, the Tribe's starting pitcher, for five hits and four runs in the second. Singles by Johnny Sullivan, Jake Early, George Case and Bruce Campbell figured, but Roy Spence's two-run triple was the major punch.

Allie Reynolds, a right-handed rookie from Wilkes-Barre, replaced Dean and shut off the bombardment. After a long delay caused by the weather, the Indians tied the score in the third, when Les Fleming hit a three-run homer. Three passes and a stolen base by George Case sent the Griffs ahead in the fourth, but the Indians deadlocked matters again in the fifth with singles by Keltner, Heath and Pinch-Hitter Eddie Robinson supplying the punch.

Edwards smashed a double off the wall in right center to open the last of the ninth but the effort was wasted.

Ken Keltner moved Edwards to third with a long fly, and after Jeff Heath and Les Fleming had been walked intentionally, Oscar Grimes forced Edwards at the plate and Manager Lou Boudreau flied out.

Reynolds was removed when trouble threatened in the sixth, and Al Smith held the visitors in check the rest of the way.

Here's National League Race At a Glance

By the Associated Press

The St. Louis Cardinals are three full games in front of Brooklyn in the National League pennant race today, and it appears that only a major collapse can keep them from the championship.

By knocking over the Boston Braves, 6-4, yesterday, while Brooklyn lost a 3-2 decision to Pittsburgh the Cards boosted their lead by one full game and showed two games in front of the all-important losing side in the standings.

Bedwell's Sollure Paces Big Day for Favorites at Graw

Shelhamer Scores on $5.40 Shot

Cowland Is Second On Featureless Card; Double Pays $36 On Second Choices

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 17.—Backers of public choices had their best day of the meeeting on the Thursday program. The card was featureless and the fourth race probably was the best offering. It was in the role of a $5.40 favorite that H. G. Bedwell's Sollure proved the winner. This juvenile led eight other 2-year-olds to the wire in the test of 5½ furlongs. Four lengths behind the winner came W. W. Vaughn's Cowlan to take a picture decision from Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Anthem. The winner was capably handled by Jockey Al Shelhamer and was clocked in 1:06 4-5 for the short sprint route.

Several of the members of the field had excuses. Only one horse, Happy Lynn, outbroke the favorite. The others were pumping and bunching. Sollure disposed of Happy Lynnn immediately to open a good lead. From that point to the end Shelhamer saved ground on Sollure. Bullrushes and Lucy's Lass had early speed and made mild challenges, only to drop out of it. In the final stages, Cowlan and Anthem, both in trouble early, came boldly, but their efforts served only to make the place decision a close one.

A pair of second choices figured in the afternoon's $36.20 daily double. H. C. McGehee's Trace Heart, close up in his debut, made his second start a winning one in the first race. The Trace—Call colt came willingly through the stretch to dispose of Fire Kabo, one that opened a long lead early. Trace Heart paid $5.90 in his own right.

Indian Gift, carrying the seldom (these days) seen C. V. Whitney colors, was the winner of the second event. Indian Gift came with a rush through the stretch and won by a half length over Steel Beam. The latter had gone to the front approaching the stretch. Indian Gift was a $6.20 shot.

Selections at Havre de Grace

Dear Al:

The Army has its eyes on former Jockey Alfred J. (Whitey) Abel. The trainer and owner has been called to New York for a physical exmaination. Willie Gillespie, third leading rider at Camden, has lost his "bug" which means henceforth he will be minus the 5-pound allowance given apprentice jockeys. Gillespie became a graduate with the Wednesday program here. Trainer Sid Boniface, doing the conditioning for E. G. Hackney and brother of Bill Boniface of the Baltimore Sun, goes into the armed forces next week. So does George Howell, trainer of the horses owned by Miss Helen Hickman, including Aonbarr, winner here Wednesday. Norman Stanton, the jockey agent, will take charge of Jockey George Acosta at the coming Pascoag (R. I.) meeting. The chart callers get a half-day in two races on today's card. Only five horses in the third and fifth events. After being right on top of the horses at the half-milers for four months, the bangtails here look as if they are hardly moving at the far turn. Which reminds me of the time, years ago, when Shirley Povich and I went to Bowie. The Post columnist, at a Maryland track for the first time, said "Why these horses don't run as fast as those in Maine. And up home, they pull sulkies." When he compared the times that night he got a laugh. The Bryson Stable's Knickerbocker, pacemaker here the other day, broke down very badly. Aonbarr, third to Whirlaway and a winner here, is the likely choice for the $15,000 added Havre de Grace Handicap, the closing day feature. See you on the rail here or at Laurel.—BILL.

First race—MOST ALERT came off the half-milers to whip a fair field here last Monday. Should come right back with another victory. SLOW MOTION, classy once, likes this track and will be dangerous if in action. BETTY BUDDY for the show.

Second race—LIBERTY CAP is a fair sort and belongs in the thick of contention with these. I'm going to string along. ELDER has a good last as a recommendation. SPECTATOR should take part of the pay.

Third race—SABOTEUR looks like the best bet of the afternoon. Needs only the right ride. GALA LIGHT and STRICTLY TRUE to take care of the place and show positions.

Fourth race—WAR REWARD seems the best of the 3-year-old maidens gathered for this sprint. Seems capable of carrying the 118-pound assignment. PATHFINDER promises to be close. SHOOTING COMET was off poorly last out and can do better.

Fifth race—BEST OF ALL gets my call in this field. Gets in with steadying weight and seems well placed. CHALLOMINE likes this oval and will be right there. PLAYFIELDS for the show end.

Sixth race—DRIVEN SNOW breaks from the outside and should have clear sailing. Needs only a little saddle help. FAD has speed, but may get tangled in that No. 1 post position. WAR KNIGHT for the minor award.

Seventh race—BUNNY BABY was good at Camden and may be ready to turn back CHARLENE, one that galloped here last out. CHEER ME should account for the show position with this kind.

Eighth race—BASILEUS and DOLLAR DAY are good ones in the day's finale and I perfer them in the order. LITTLE BOLO gets the call over the others.

Relief Match Opens Week Of Golf Here

The District's first War Relief golf match of the season Sunday at Columbia Country Club ushers in six consecutive days of tournament golf in the last big week of the season.

Bobby Jones and Fred McLeod will play an 18-hole exhibition at 2 p. m. Sunday against Craig Wood and Chick Evans in a charity match featuring four former National Open champions.

Monday a Pro-Lady is scheduled at Kenwood, the pros taking the Class B players as partners, and Tuesday the Manor Women's Golf Committee will hold an invitation tournament. Players are requested to bring caddies to Manor.

Wednesday the District Seniors will play for the Henry Litchfield West Memorial trophy to crown a city champion among the golfers 55 years of age and over.

The Washington Open Championship will be played Thursday at Indian Spring for a purse of $150 added. Entry fee for pros is $5 and amateurs $3. Play will be over the 36-hole medal play route.

Entries close Tuesday with Mel Shorey, host pro.

Friday the District Golf Association's Handicap Mixed Scotch Foursome tournament for the benefit of the Red Cross will be played at Columbia. The entry fee is $3 per team and all proceeds will go to the Red Cross. Prizes will be donated by Washington merchants.

The Maryland State Women's Medal Play Championship for the Payne Trophy was cancelled. Baltimore's women golfers plan a protest on the cancellation of the tournament.

Baker Ponders Starting Team Of Colonials

Keeping his fingers tightly crossed and with a vigorous knock on wood Coach Johnny Baker, George Washington University mentor, yesterday began formulation of his starting lineup for the Colonials' opening 1942 football game with Western Maryland next Friday.

The main cause for Baker's shaky attitude is that so far his team has been devoid of injuries. In the past injuries have annually cut into the Colonials' hopes, in several cases causing the loss of key performers for the whole season. An outstanding example was Johnny Picco, an All-District selection, who missed all last season after being hurt.

So far only three players have been injured at all this year. Halfback Johnny Pollock was out of action for one or two days with some arch trouble; Bill Hicks, sophomore guard, missed the rough work in only two workouts, and Joe Bernot, fullback, is now nursing a badly twisted and swollen right wrist.

Guard Grefuro Sancelona, a product of St. Johns, returned to school this year, but won't play ball due a trick knee that he developed in prep school. Horace Vaniglio, a tackle, likewise will give up the game for this year due to a back ailment.

Though any injuries would be hard felt because of the small squad and small number of lettermen, Baker is somewhat fortunate in that his strength is evenly distributed. In the line he has eight ends, seven tackles, five guards and three centers. In the backfield, he has 11 men, enough to compose almost three complete combinations.

Yesterday the Colonials held another heavy scrimmage. A relatively light workout is scheduled for today and another heavy scrimmage tomorrow.

Two Army All-Star Teams Will Not Meet

By the Associated Press

Secretary Stimson said yesterday that the two Army football teams—the Eastern All-Stars and the Western All-Stars—would not meet each other.

As soon as their present schedules with non-Army teams have been completed, the teams will be disbanded and the men will return to their military duty.

Hughson Wins 20th; Red Sox Beat Browns

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Sept. 17.—Tex Hughson joined the 20-game winner class today as he pitched the Boston Red Sox to a 5-to-1 victory over the St. Louis Browns. Tex has lost only six contests.

Ted Williams hit his thirty-third home run of the season for Boston in the first inning and George McQuinn got his twelfth homer in the seventh for the Brown's only run.

Williams also doubled and scored on Bobby Doerr's single in the fourth. The Browns presented the Sox with their third run in the eighth on a wild pitch, pased ball and an error. They also scored the final two tallies in the ninth without the benefit of a hit.

Bear-Middie 'T-Party' Develops Into a Real Grid Battle

Navy Scores Twice, Irks Mighty Pros

Slow-Motion Lesson In Workings of "T" Brings Out Fierce Football at Annapolis

By Pete Zurlinden
Associated Press Sports Writer

Annapolis, Sept. 17.—The Chicago Bears—en route to Boston—dropped into Annapolis today for a "'-party" with Navy's A-building 1942 varsity.

The Bears and the Middies both understood that today's Navy practice session, starting first with individual drills for each squad and winding up with a "dummy scrimmage," was to be more on the clinical side than on the matter-of-fact business side of rough-tough football.

The Bears, it was agreed, were to demonstrate their famous "T-formation" to the Middies—who'll see it aplenty between now and December—while Navy, as its contribution, was asked only to provide a bit of exercise for the Windy City's gridiron behemoths.

Everything Is Ducky

So much for that . . .

The individual warmups over the squads faced each other on the Thompson Stadium turf. The ball was Chicago's to put in play on its own 40-yard line.

The Bears swung into the "T," shifted slowly so the 11 Midshipmen opposing them could see what was going on and what makes the "T" the "T." The ball went to Bear Fullback Johnny Petty and the lines before him converged mincingly as Petty slowly chugged toward a hole at center. He made four yards before he was gently laid to rest on the spongy gridiron.

It was very nice . . . educational, too. And coaches on both sides were pleased. Comdr. John E. Whelchel because his Navy laddies were going to learn something; George Halas because Petty and the boys were going to work off some of the effects of their four-day vacation since playing the Redskins last Sunday in Washington.

Then the Trouble Starts

But something happened on that opening play that changed the course of the afternoon for everybody, including the several thousand midshipmen and officers who turned out to see the Bears at close range. What happened?

Well, it seems that football being the game that it is and football players the type of men they are, both coaches overlooked the fact that it can't be played in slow motion.

From the first moment the Middy forwards ground their shoulders against the Bears, they were ready to play football for keeps. Simultaneously, the Bears, who have risen to the peak of professional football via a slam-bang style, decided that perhaps they could perform their "clinical" chores just a mite better if they let the bars down a little. Not too much, understand; just a little.

So the Middies and the Bears had themselves as good a game of football as anybody could have asked, although Whelchel and Halas did their best to slow them up to avoid injuries.

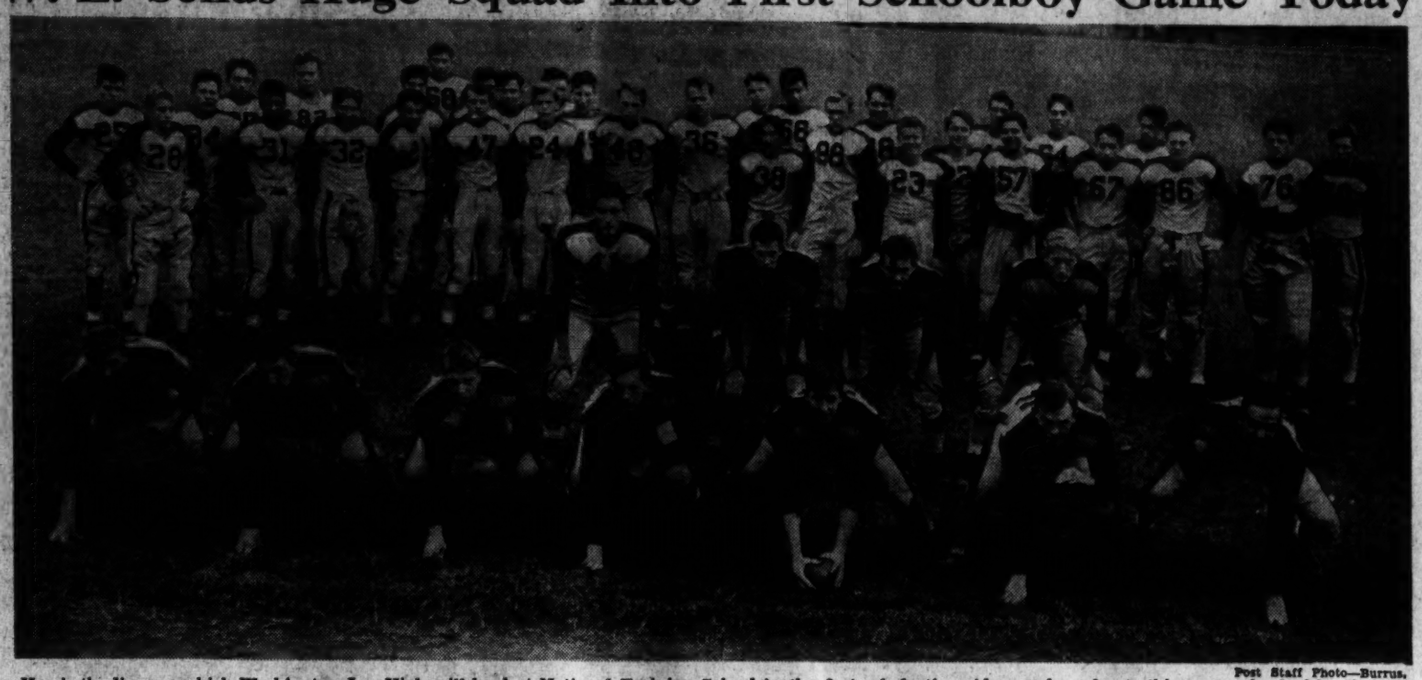

The Bears Become Bears

They went at it for two full hours, the Bears putting on a sprightly exhibition throughout and Navy responding the only way any Middie squad knows how to respond—by carrying the battle to the foe.

And, although the Bears obviously pulled their punches quite frequently, like any champion they don't stand for anybody taking liberties with them. So when Navy sneaked off to a couple of touchdowns, the big boys came rocking back down the field with everything they had—except Big Bill Osmanski, who sat on the sidelines.

The Navy saw the "T," all right, like they won't see it again this year. But those two touchdowns tickled the Middies plenty and they easily forgetting that the Bears tallied a few of their own.

487 Fans See Wolff Stop Chisox for A's

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Roger Wolff turned in a two-hit performance today while the Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Chicago White Sox, 1 to 0, in their final appearance of the season at Comiskey Park. Only 487 persons witnessed the game.

Wolff's victory was earned at the expense of rookie Left-hander Len Perme, who made his first start for the Chicago team and allowed only four hits. It was Wolff's twelfth victory against 16 defeats.

Chicago's two hits occurred when Perme singled to right in the third and Val Heim beat out a hit to Pete Suder in the fourth inning.

The A's put over the winning run in the eighth when Hal Wagner singled to short center, took second on Wolfe's sacrifice and scored when De Miles bounced a hit off Jimmy Grant's glove. The ball took a high hop and soared over Luke Appling's head for a single.

10 Lettermen on Club Which Faces N. T. S. on Arlington Gridiron Today

He doesn't have much to worry about this year, so Coach Harry Deming, who will send his Washington-Lee High eleven into the first schoolboy game in this vicinity today, has already started his 1943 worrying.

Deming fears a shortage of seasoned material in 1943. For that reason he will have a uniformed squad of 51 players available today when the Little Generals play host to National Training School at 3:30.

"We'll carry these boys all year," the soft-spoken former G. W. U. linesman promised, "in the hopes of giving them experience. My only requisite is that they keep trying."

In all the cumberson squad numbers ten lettermen, including four key men from last year's first team. Tops among these are Eddie DeCelle, the smart little signal-caller who holds down the fullback post, and Jimmy Sprinkle, the clever runner and passer who is making W.-L. fans forget his famous brother.

Back at the center post is Johnny Grinnell, All-Metropolitan pivotman of 1941, and at one wing is Melvin Winfield, an exceptionally good pass receiver. These are the first-stringers left over, but other letterwinners are Dan Grimes and Max Jones, tackles; Myron Gerber and Johnny Gardner, halfbacks; Steve Long, quarterback; Jerry Leister, fullback, and Walter Warner, guard.

The presence of Long, in particular, pleases Deming. The slender ace got into only two plays last season, suffering a broken arm in the second. His blocking is expected to help atone for the loss of Leo Urbanski and other graduates.

Today's starting lineup will be notable in that Bob Phillips, in his first try at the game, will hold down the right end position. The chunky youngster last year was one of the outstanding basketball players in this section.

LaChappelle Tops Arena Rassle Card

Maurice LaChappelle, the Flying Frenchman, was signed yesterday to headline next Wednesday night's wrestling show at Turner's Arena.

Promoter Joe Turner's immediate objective was to rematch him with Michele Leone, the "V for Victory" wrestler. The two grappled to a 30-minute draw Wednesday night.

LaChappelle petitioned Turner for a longer distance. If Leone agrees, he'll want a finish or one-hour bout, and possibly a new referee. He was disqualified by Referee Vogt, but LaChappelle refused to accept it and continued with the match.

Maury Eleven And G.W. High Clash Tonight

Alexandria, Sept. 17.—Old man football makes his 1942 debut here tomorrow night when the George Washington Presidents, and the Maury Commodores of Norfolk clash under the arcs at Moncure Bowl at 8 o'clock.

Close to 8500 fans are expected and judging from pregame reports a classy brand of football will be served to the addicts in this belt.

The Maury Commodors were runner-ups for State honors in 1941, and this year they have a more experienced outfit, and are eyeing the top honors. Ed Bangs, and Jack Cloud, two triple-threats, are the aces with the invaders. The Commodors will bring a squad of 30 players here.

The Presidents are in tip-top condition, and although the squad is green, they are out to extend the Commodores to the limit. Marty Foltz, captain of the Alexandrians, injured his ankle in scrimmage, and may play only a portion of the game.

Coach Doran's W.-L. line has been bolstered by the addition of Henry Grimm, all-Stater, at guard, and he has Howard Rovenberg and Charlie Campbell, two big tackles, to look out for the forewall.

Neyland Exudes Pessimism as Game With Bears Nears

By International News Service

Boston, Sept. 17.—The Eastern Army Squad arrived today and worked out briefly on Boston College's alumni field in preparation for Sunday's tilt with the Chicago Bears.

Though the soldiers have defeated both the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers, Coach Bob Neyland was anything but optimistic as he gave out a variation of the "too little and too much" formula.

"I don't think we have a chance against the Bears," he said. "We have too little time and they have too much power."

Worsham One Down as Play Is Halted

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 17.—Weather halted the semifinal round of the Baltimore Match Play Open Golf Tournament at Green Spring Valley Club today, with young Ed Johnston of the Country Club of Maryland, one up over Lew Worsham of Burning Tree at the sixth hole, and Andy Gibson of Bonnie View, one up on Jimmy Duke, unattached.

Carroll MasMaster, chairman of the tournament committee, ruled the course unplayable for the balance of the day. Play will be resumed tomorrow morning at the point where play ceased, and the finals will be cut from 36 holes to 18.

Worsham Beats Barnett

In the second round matches ployed this morning, Worsham downed the veteran Bob Barnett of Chevy Chase, comedalist in the tourney, 4 and 3, due largely to some excellent putting and a couple of stymies.

Gibson took Al Jamison of East Potomac, 3 and 2, with a 1 under par round. Gibson birdied 8, 9, 13 and 15, to sew up the match.

Duke put Professional Leo Kernan out of the tourney by a 2 and 1 score. Young Johnston downed Johnny Bass of Clifton Park at the nineteenth, when Bass missed his putt, which would have kept the match alive.

Johnson Sinks 8-Footer

In the semifinals, Johnston took the lead over Worsham at the first hole, when the Washington professional was trapped and failed to recover. Lew evened matters on the fifth, when he reached the green in two shots, but went one down again on the short sixth, when Johnston sank an 8-foot putt for a deuce and he missed from 10 feet.

Gibson took the first two holes from Duke in the afternoon with pars, but last half of his advantage when he drove out of bounds on the fifth. Then play was halted.

Women Enter Tennis Finals

Mrs. David Gray, stellar newcomer to local tennis, came within one match of the United States Government net title yesterday on the East Potomac Park course as she downed Eleanor Fishburn, 6—0, 6—3.

Tomorrow Mrs. Gray gets her final test when she meets Sara Moore, who gained the finals with a 7—5, 6—3 margin over Dorette Miller, in a 4 p. m. match.

The men's singles final also will be staged, involving Don Leavens, victor by 6—1, 6—1 over Gene Hermann yesterday, and the winner of a Bob Bensinger-Austin Rice engagement today. In the men's doubles today Leavens and Bud Chandler will tangle with Hermann and Henry Sweeney, and John McDairmid and Don Bent meet Hugh Trigg and Stan Haney.

Music for Players

The Army Air Force Band, 72 strong, will leave Washington this morning at 8 o'clock to furnish music at the Western Army All-Star versus New York Giants game in Syracuse tomorrow.

These Redskins Play Ends:

Six Pro Flankmen Who Are Flashy and Dependable

JOHN KOVATCH ED CIFERS BOB TITCHENAL BOB McCHESNEY AL KREUGER BOB MASTERSON

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Post Staff Writer

(This is the fourth in a series of pictures and thumbnail sketches on the Washington Redskins presented before the opening of the league season on Sunday. Today, the ends.)

JOHN KOVATCH—Coach Ray Flaherty was a little worried over the Redskins' end situation when he took his squad to training camp. Now he is standing pat on his original sextet and is right proud of them. Kovatch, just out of Notre Dame, is one of the principal reasons for his change of heart. He's developed into "quite an end," Flaherty will tell you with pardonable pride.

The 6-foot-3 flankman who, at 22, is the youngest player on the squad, is the only rookie end. He's the replacement for Joe Aguirre. Kovatch is one of the few South Bend High School products ever to make good at Notre Dame. He lives there and works in the Studebaker Aviation plant. Holds a degree in journalism and wants to master in English. Single.

ED CIFERS—One of the sports historymaking Tennessee players who appeared in the Rose, Orange, and Cotton Bowls on successive years. In his second year with the Redskins. Born in Church Hill, Tenn., lives in Kingsport and naturally followed up at the State university.

Cifers is a good, tough defensive end. Take comparatively few passes. Gets in his share of the blocks. Can take plenty of knocks with his 6-feet-2 and 225 pounds. Married, one child. Rather quiet and prefers to remain in the background.

BOB TITCHENAL—Shifted from center to end this year and is just becoming acclimated. Still hesitating in waiting for the play to develop as he did at center instead of rushing in as he must do at end. Is confident he will master this phase of end play in a week or two, however.

Playing his third year with the Redskins. Another West Coast product, from San Jose State. Captained his college team in 1939 and in upsetting San Francisco, ran 80 yards to a touchdown on a pass interception. Plays basketball and is a record threat in a swimming pool. His conversion to end may be a masterful stroke by Flaherty. Married. Makes his home in Glendale, Calif. Good build for an end with 195 pounds, 6-feet 2.

BOB McCHESNEY—Seemingly a Redskin institution. Bob has been playing end for the Redskins for seven years. He's been on the receiving end of many a Sammy Baugh pass and is an excellent defensive man.

Captained the University of California at Los Angeles gridders. Was connected with the boxing, swimming and rugby teams in college. "Mac" has been living in nearby Virginia for several years with his wife and two young daughters. Always getting banged up, but insists on playing with his assorted injuries. Fairly fast on the field, but always the last man dressed after practice. Salesman in the off season.

AL KRUEGER—Equipped with one of the principal requisites of an end, a great pair of hands. Has a knack of getting out in the open and has the reputation of a pressure pass catcher. Played three years of varsity ball at Southern California before coming to the Redskins last year. The fact that he caught the pass which beat Duke, 7-3, in the dying seconds of the 1939 Rose Bowl game is brought up at least once a day. He also caught the second touchdown pass against Tennessee in the big bowl the following year.

Was likened to Don Hutson when he joined the Redskins but played little last year. Scored one touchdown. Should play a prominent role this year. Is a native Californian. Married.

BOB MASTERSON—The placekicking specialist. Has scored 94 points in four seasons in touchdowns, field goals and conversions. Good defensive end, fair pass catcher.

President of the sophomore, junior and senior classes at Florida's University of Miami. Captain of the football team. Was all-Southern end in '37 and all-American mention when Miami was a rookie school in big time football. In 1936 gave Georgetown a touchdown on a fumble and then beat them with a dramatic pass catch, 9-6. Born North Branch, N. J., now a District resident. Married, two children.

Buy War Stamps—and help make the going "velveted"

1. Speed the victory! Remember, this is a war of the production lines—and production costs money. The more you invest in War Savings Stamps...War Bonds...the shorter this war will be... the easier for our side to win.

2. And "velvet" your own future! Name one other investment that combines so good a return with such overwhelming security as does the U. S. War Savings Bond! It's the buy that's "great—for two big reasons!" So, at the liquor store...at the bar...always take your change in War Stamps... and see how quickly they add up into War Bonds!

Rails, Low-Priced Specialties Rise Slightly As General Market Remains in Groove

New York, Sept. 17.—Low-priced specialties monopolized the bidding in today's stock market although rails gave them considerable competition.

Leading issues, on the whole, were hesitant at the start and the majority never managed to get anywhere in particular. There were scattered gainers of a point or so, but minor variations ruled at the close.

It was a case of individual situations so far as demand was concerned. Tax confusion, the anti-inflation wrangle and cloudy war bulletins continued to put brakes on speculative and investment operations.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 36.9. Sizable blocks of issues selling under $10 helped put the day's turnover at 407,650 shares compared with 378,-120 Wednesday.

Rails had the benefit of a compilation placing August gross revenues of 89 Class 1 roads at 36 per cent above the like 1941 month.

Talk of a nearby consolidation of U. S. Distributing with the parent concern, Pittston Co., was given as an explanation of the run-up during the past several weeks of Distributing senior stock. Brightening prospects for both International Telephone, the day's heaviest traded stock, and American & Foreign Power in Latin-America attracted attention to securities of these corporations. Panhandle Producing & Refining, most active stock of the preceding session, continued the second liveliest performer on rumors of cheering oil developments on property to which it holds options.

Carrier loans were the best in the bond department. Commodities were mixed as the President opposed any move to change the present parity formula for farm prices. At Chicago wheat was off ¼ to up ⅛ of a cent a bushel, corn up ⅛ to ¼ and hogs steady to 15 cents higher. Cotton lost 30 to 40 cents a bale.

In the Curb modest improvement was retained by Electric Bond & Share, Humble Oil, Lake Shore, Pennroad and St. Regis Paper. On the offside were Aluminum of America, Mesabi Iron, Sunray Oil, and Phoenix Securities. The aggregate here was 79,975 shares versus 87,680 yesterday.

WPB Aide Sees Ample Supply Of Footwear

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 17.—Assurances that the public need not feel unduly apprehensive over its essential needs for footwear because of Government regulations were given to more than 3000 shoe manufacturers and dealers by W. J. Spring, chief of the shoe unit of the War Production Board at a meeting here.

"The conservation measure under which the industry will function hereafter is by no means drastic," Spring said. "It has set a limited goal based upon a conservative appraisal of needs and available resources. With full cooperation that goal can be reached, thoroughly ample supplies of footwear maintained for consumers and really drastic dislocations avoided."

One of the principal things the conservation program will do, he said, was to restrict drastically the choice of styles available and this may be expected to be felt strongly by the spring of 1943.

Fighting the War On Trade Front

The Office of Price Administration yesterday broadened typewriter rationing eligibility regulations, increasing the number of classes of persons able to buy standard and portable machines.

Under the amendment, effective Monday, groups eligible to buy standard machines will include:

Persons engaged in the operation of merchant ships; prime contractors with the Army and Navy who are conducting air transport of military personnel and supply to foreign countries; the national office of the United Service Organization; the national office of the United Seamen's Process Service; the national office of the Red Cross, for use in connection with its services to the armed services; labor unions and employers' organization, 70 per cent of whose membership is engaged in production of war materials; and establishments manufacturing aviation and lubricating oils and high octane gasoline.

The regulation provides that the producer's maximum for types 1 and 2 Portland cement should be the price the producer charged or would have charged a purchaser between March 1 and March 15, 1942, plus any increase in freight rates since March 17 for shipments to the purchaser.

For other grades and types of cement, the regulation provides that the producer must add or deduct from the maximum prices fixed for the two basic Portland cements the average differential which prevailed on March 15 for white cement, oil well cement, masonry cement, etc.

'Fixed Text' Telegrams To Stop at Midnight

After midnight tonight the young men and women who, via Western Union Telegraph Co., have been warbling birthday greetings at regular tariff rates will be permitted to rest their vocal cords for the duration.

Alexander Simon, Western Union general manager, said that cancellation of all flat-rate telegraph services in the Nation had been decreed by the company to prevent any possible interference with the efficient handling of the large and growing volume of vital war communications.

Postal Telegraph Cable Co. announced that it, too, would discontinue similar services as of midnight pursuant to a tariff filing made with the Federal Communications Commission last month. The commission suspended for 90 days action on tour rate telegram service, Postal said.

Commodities Irregular in Nervous Deals

By the Associated Press

Commodity futures prices were mixed at the close yesterday after traders reacted nervously to anti-inflation debate in Washington.

The Administration's opposition to any change in the definition of parity caused New York cotton values to break from previous steady levels to close 30 to 40 cents a bale lower. Wool tops were unchanged to .1 of a cent a pound off.

Chicago wheat finished ¼ of a cent a bushel down to ⅛ cent higher, while corn was ⅛ to ¼ up. Hogs were up 10 to 15 cents a hundredweight, while cattle and spring lambs were about steady.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot staples declined to 99.84 per cent of the 1926 average from 99.98 per cent the previous day.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Sept. 17 (AP).—The grain market, vitally affected by the farm price control program now before Congress, showed extreme nervousness today as traders sought to keep up with developments in Washington.

Limitation of trading volume, with most dealers chilled into inactivity pending working out of definite legislation, brought about a day of erratic price fluctuations in all pits.

Wheat and rye moved within a range of about a cent a bushel, alternating above and below previous closing levels, the price range of other grains was smaller. Wheat closed ¼ lower to ⅛ higher compared with yesterday, September 1.23¼, December 1.26⅛@1.26¼; corn ⅛@¼ up, September 82⅞, December 85⅝; oats unchanged to ⅛ higher; soybeans ⅝ lower; rye unchanged to ¼ off.

Current High Earnings of Rails Seen Godsend To Meet Transportation Upheaval After War

By Meryle Stanley Rukeyser
Economic Commentator

After the war, there will doubtless be vast changes in the Nation's transportation system. Already technical minds are dreaming about mammoth civilan transport planes and freight carriers.

The tempo of movement of men and things will be quickened to a spectacular extent. Perhaps out of this impulse will come opportunities for postwar employment in reconverting expanded airplane plants to the arts of peace.

But when and if these changes materialize, what will happen to the Nation's railroads, in which well above 20 billion dollars has been invested?

These projected revolutions in transportation will undoubtedly step up the rate of obsolescence in railroad property and equipment.

Already before this war, significant changes in streamlining railroad equipment were under way. Light stainless steel cars and diesel locomotives were opening a new and changing era in railroad transportation.

In addition, vast changes were under way in making passenger sleeping much more comfortable and modern. Likewise, there was a trend toward modernizing and beautifying dining cars, lounge cars and coaches.

These trends toward lighter equipment were already before the war fast rendering obsolete the character of old rails, equipment and other railroad facilities.

Under the aegis of Federal regulation, many rail executives had long been living in a fool's paradise, kidding themselves as to railroad earnings by making insufficient write-offs for depreciation and obsolescence.

Now, with the imminent postwar radical changes in transportation, the railroads should put their financial house in order.

They should avoid long-term debt against ephermal types of property.

The rails are now in the midst of a boom in gross earnings incidental to the war. They are carrying colossal quantities of freight and an unbelievably heavy passenger load. In addition to regular business and traffic growing out of the armament boom, the rails are involved in heavy troop movements.

If the rail management were both prudent and unfettered, they would take advantage of current peak earnings to make drastic write-offs for the obsolescence which is surely taking place.

It is bad bookkeeping for the rails to deplete themselvs of cash through excessive wartime distribution of dividends and taxes.

But unfortunately rail management, even if as wise as Job, has no discretion over tax liabilities.

In fact, the railroads are not only subject to regular corporate income taxes and all varieties of local and State property and miscellaneous taxes, but also to the Federal excess profits taxes.

It is a mistake to apply the yardsticks intended for war profiteers to the railroads which should, in all fairness, be permitted to use current windfall earnings to escape from the dilemma of great obsolescence and depreciation.

In the hearing on the tax bill, little has been said about this subject.

Yet in war and in peace, it is essential to the welfare of 35 million families to keep the nation's transportation facilities efficient and their operators solvent.

It is bad finance to blink our eyes at the facts and assume the railroads are facing a bonanza. What they really are confronting is a potential opportunity in current peak gross earnings to bale themselves out of a fix caused by quickened depreciation and obsolescence of their facilities.

Coast Guards Fire On Beach Prowler

Man Is Seen Running From Raft Cast Up on Long Island Shore

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 17.—A Coast Guard patrol fired on a man seen running from a wooden raft discovered on a Long Island beach last night, but a search of the vicinity failed to uncover any unusual occurrence, the Army and Navy reported today.

The site of the encounter was on a south shore beach near Westhampton, approximately 25 miles from the spot where four Nazi saboteurs came ashore from a submarine at Amagansett Beach two months ago.

The Eastern defense command and the Eastern sea frontier command reported jointly that the patrol came upon the small raft at about 10 p. m., Eastern War Time, and that the patrol reported seeing a "prowler running along the beach in that vicinity."

"A shot was fired in an unsuccessful attempt to halt the prowler," the announcement added.

Subsequently an Army beach patrol, police and other coast guardsmen searched the beach without avail.

Throughout the morning a widespread search was conducted by military, Federal and municipal authorities over most of eastern Long Island. Motorists were stopped and asked to identify themselves and trains of the Long Island Railroad were boarded by authorities.

While there was no official comment, an inspection of the poorly constructed raft tended to lend support to a theory that it might at one time have carried survivors from a ship sinking.

It measured about 10 feet long and 5 feet wide and had been crudely put together with planks and timbers of varying sizes. It appeared to have been afloat a long time.

His Rumba Band To Make Debut

HERBERT CURBELOS, whose truly brilliant rumba orchestra will make its Washington debut tonight at the opening of exotic La Conga on the Baltimore Boulevard

Ack-Ack Shell 'Scares' N. Y.

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 17.—An antiaircraft shell accidentally discharged from a craft in New York harbor today landed in the garden of a residence at Westerleigh, Staten Island.

The Eastern Defense Command announced that no damage was done and no injuries were caused when the shell exploded.

The shell struck in the garden of Mrs. Selma Dohlmar and drove into the ground three feet. Mrs. Dohlmar described the incident as a "loud thud." The shell exploded in mid-air.

For a while there was considerable excitement among citizens of the small village in the interior of Staten Island, which is in New York harbor.

Today's incident was the second of its kind in New York City. Last March 13, an antiaircraft gun accidentally discharged eight rounds, one of which chipped a corner of the 40-story Equitable Building in the heart of the financial district. Debris and shell fragments fell to the street, but no one was injured.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

"GOOD NEIGHBOR NIGHTS" will be celebrated every Tuesday in Del Rio from now on until all of our Good Neighbor countries have been saluted individually by Enric Madriguera's orchestra. The ambassadors and ministers of the Latin-American republics will be guests of honor at these events and special entertainers typical of the countries honored will be imported from New York for the occasions. Next Tuesday will be "Cuban Night" with Ambassador Aurelio Concheso and the charming Senora Concheso as guests of honor. A notable Cuban dance team probably will supply some added Cuban atmosphere while Enric Madiguera's band will offer a special program of songs from the "Pearl of the Antilles."

Snazzy a-plenty will be the fall opening of the Cosmos Room tonight with Ray Morton's orchestra. Formal attire is required and the doings start at 9:30 in deference to the wartime need of partying earlier in order to get to work earlier.

HAIL LA CONGA! With a conga, a rumba and a samba beat, the new La Conga out on the Baltimore Boulevard will throw its doors open wide tonight for all lovers of Latin rhythm. La Conga will duplicate the atmosphere of Manhattan's famed Havana-Madrid, present only the cream of Pan-Am entertainers. You'll dance to the impeccable rhythms of Herbert Curbelos' band, listen to the Castilian chants of Pepita, watch the sleek stepping of the Cansinos and the gyrations of the South American beauty chorus.

VALUED VISITORS. When Tommy Dorsey visited Balalaika the other eve the band dedicated a Russian military song to him. Judge George Neilsen and his beauteous wife were doing rumbas of professional finish at the same spot . . . Jesse Jones greeted dancers Consolo and Melba at the Shoreham as they finished their act. On the Shoreham Terrace we saw Oveta Culp Hobby, director of the WAACS, enjoying a cigarette with ladylike nonchalance . . . Gen. Walter B. Pyron is a regular visitor at La Salle du Bois . . . Mysterious but highly impressive was a recent party at Olmsted's. It included a high Government official and four Latin-American bishops. Also at Olmsted's we saw Senators Alben W. Barkley, Robert M. La Follette, jr., and W. Warren Barbour . . . The world of sports was represented in Hi Hat recently by George Marshall, owner of the Redskins, and Jimmy Braddock, former heavyweight champion.

"Thar's gold on that thar Island!" We mean Treasure Island where we understand the cash register meters were overheated as crowds poured in for last night's opening of this gala spot.

INSTRUMENTS UNIQUE. Edith Caldwell, saucy singer with Chick Floyd's band at Uline's Summer Garden, shakes rumba rhythm with a "guerro" of Pan-Am origin. It looks like a feverish and overgrown sweet potato with tassels . . . Peggy Norton of the Anchor Room plays the instrument least often found in night spots—the harp.

TRAVEL DEPARTMENT. Sidney of the Mayflower is back from the University of North Carolina where he journeyed with his son, Sidney, jr., who has just entered the alma mater that produced Hal Kemp and Kay Kyser . . . And "Buddy" Harmon of the Rainbow Room is giving his drums an extra martial bang because he's back from entering his 9-year-old Buddy, jr., in military academy . . . Maitre d'hotel Jack Hauser of the Hamilton Hotel has been refreshed by a South Carolina vacation . . . Violinist Jane Marlow of Restaurant "823", has returned from a good-time jaunt to New York. Her piano pals, the Heintze Brothers, vacationed in the mountains . . . Maestro Dick Abbott and Ed Shapley of the Mayfair are figuring out the best way to approach Manager Peterson with a request for time out for a hunting trip—"Justa week, Mr. Peterson, please, and we'll bring you back a bear."

Trickstress Norma Krieger at the Lotus produces missing cards from inflated balloons . . . Troika's Russell Swann has selected cards delivered by his trained cobra!

CASINO ROYAL CARRYINGS-ON. Billy Romano made a red-and white balloon dog for some of our friends the other night. They're fattening the pup every day with a bicycle pump . . . The girl half of the Cortez and Marquis dance team looks like Gloria Swanson . . . Emcee Bob Preble is growing a moustache, and a vurra handsome one . . . Those li'l pepper-steppers, the Taft-Kretlow Dancers, will be back at C. R. next week.

EXPANSION AND DECORS. The Dubonnet Room management is planning to enlarge the spot. Some way must be found to accommodate all those folks determined to hear Adrian Rollini's music . . . Both airy and tropical is the atmosphere of the new Fan and Bill's. The ceilings are super-high and the walls are lined with Caribbean murals . . . The dining room of the Burlington Hotel is being redecorated in tones of silver gray, stone pink and canary.

The "musical cake" luncheon given by Bertis Hellman at the Neptune Room turned out to be an eight-course dinner wrapped up in two cakes. The dessert was baked Alaska.

EAR DRUM TEASERS. Larger every night are the music-loving crowds who applaud Michel's gypsy orchestra at the Plymouth. Michel's library of classical music includes 10,000 numbers . . . A smart little trouper as well as a fine singer is Peggy Paul with Joe Ricardels band at Crossroads . . . So perfect are the harmonies created by Sid Willoughby and Durward Bowersox at Burt's Trans-Lux that people always are asking them how many years they've played together. Truth is they've been associated for only four months, never even bother to rehearse . . . Stephanie and Carol of Restaurant "400" play that lovely but seldom heard Strauss waltz, "Voices of Spring" . . . You'll never hear the "Song of the Islands" done with such finesse and delicacy as when it's played by Ray Kinney's orchestra in the Victory Room . . . Charlie Frankhauser's new band at Paul Young's is the top note in 1942 jive . . . Come to think of it, this also should be said about the redoubtable Washie Bratcher band playing in the Washington Hotels Hall of Nations on week-ends . . . The Miles Hallett band in Cafe Caprice has a super-version of "The Angel's Serenade" . . . El Patio's Little Jack Little is playing the trickiest new war number, "Ten Little Soldiers" . . . Eddie Whitesell and his accordion, piano and trombone are highly approved additions to Pete Macias' Lounge Riviera orchestra . . . Maestro George Stein of River Bend is playing every World War II war song ever written in tribute to the loads of men in uniform who crowd the spot on week-ends.

Julius Richards, owner of the Louisiana and the Old New Orleans, has named Herman Scharmer to manage the former spot. You'll remember the cordial and capable Herman as greeting you at the old Viking.

Hull Blames Japan For World War II

Says Mukden Incident Was Initial Step Toward Conflict

By Michael Chinigo
International News Service Staff Writer

Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday blamed Tokyo for starting World War II way back in 1931 with the "Mukden incident" and assured China the Allies will "defeat and destroy the military caste that controls Japan."

The Secretary's grave indictment of Nippon's warlords and forecast of total victory for the United Nations were voiced in response to press conference requests that he comment on the 11th anniversary of Japan's initial drive against Chinese Manchuria.

Coincidentally, they followed by only a few hours Tokyo's radio announcement that Masayuki Tani, Japanese "Goebbels" who previously had been a prominent pro-militarist "stooge" in engineering the aggression against Manchuria, had been appointed foreign minister, succeeding Shigenori Togo.

Personalities familiar with the sequence of Sino-Japanese events recalled that Tokyo launched its first offensive against Chinese territory after a section of the South Manchurian Railway had been blown up on September 18, 1931, causing the death of Warlord Chiang Tso-lin.

Referring to it as the "Mukden incident," Tokyo charged the Chinese government with Chiang Tso-lin's death. China retaliated that the whole thing had been a Japanese plot. Tani, favoring aggression against Manchuria, played a prominent part in its execution and in setting up the Manchurian puppet government.

His appointment as foreign minister was regarded in some quarters as yet another indication that Japan's militarists, whose aggressive views he shares, are planning an attack against Soviet Siberia.

Hull's statement, highlighted by a glowing tribute to Chinese resistance, was thus phrased:

"September 18th, as the whole world knows, marks the eleventh anniversary of a fateful step of aggression in Manchuria by the Japanese warlords.

"The course of aggression there embarked upon was followed by successive aggressions in Asia, Africa and Europe, and has led step by step to the present world conflict.

"The American Government and people admire sincerely the gallant resistance offered by the government and people of China to the ruthless and lawless Japanese aggressor.

"We are confident that the military efforts of free peoples which have been the inevitable answer to brutal and predatory Japanese attacks upon peaceful populations will defeat and destroy the military caste that controls Japan."

Girls Assume Motor Duties At Lowry Field

By Leif Erickson
Associated Press Staff Writer

Denver, Sept. 17.—The girls, 109 of them, have taken over the wheel as truck, staff car and jeep drivers at Lowry Field and sent that many soldiers back to military classrooms and airplane shop lines.

In a month's time, Capt. Thomas Harris of Lowry Field's automotive section has replaced his soldier motor pool crew with women who used to be, among other things, fashion experts, cooks, stenographers, Red Cross instructors and seamstresses.

"It's a stelli job, and such a change from siting in an office, and you meet so many interesting people," says Barbara Mills, 19, whose father, Col. Harry A. Mills, was taken prisoner on Bataan.

The women were hired through Federal Civil Service, at $110 a month, under a War Department policy of putting women and civilians in all Army post jobs not directly concerned with "hitting the enemy whenever and wherever we can reach him."

Typical of motor pool crews at Army posts throughout the Nation, the Lowry Field girls serve as chauffeurs for officers, drive troop convoys to trains, and haul supplies and equipment in trucks.

Mrs. Jane Shelby, 24, wearing turban, sweate and denim pants, pilots a "recon," the motor pool's idiom for a reconnaissance car used in hauling sentries to their posts and leading troop convoys to train embarking.

Mrs. Shelby used to run college shop style shows in a Denver department store. One of her two brothers in the Army was wounded at Pearl Harbor.

"I feel I'm doing something worthwhile in this job," she says.

Another Lowry driver, Mrs. Mary Bresnahan, instructed Red Cross motor corps classes before taking her assignment as a staff car chauffeur for officers.

"The way I feel," she said, "if women are going to be drafted for war work, I'd rather do this than work in a factory. I know more about it."

White-Slavers Are Sentenced

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Sept. 17.—Four men charged with operating a five-State white slave ring pleaded guilty today and immediately were sentenced to prison terms as high as 12 years.

Federal Judge Emerich B. Freed, terming the four defendants "the lowest type of humanity," fined each man $10,000 and imposed these sentences:

Louis P. Morel, 51, Cleveland, 12 years.

Frank Bruell, 29, Canton, Ohio, seven years.

Jack Johnson, 38, Amsterdam, N. Y., and New York City, 10 years.

The other defendant, Vera Silt, alias Vera Miller, about 45, charged with operating a house of prostitution at Lorain, Ohio, did not join the guilty plea, and her trial was ordered to proceed.

"You are the lowest type of humanity," said Judge Freed. "I did not believe people could sink as low as you have. You are not entitled to any consideration whatever."

Auto Race Promoter Learns War Is Really — on Wheels

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 17.—If you think the war, with gas and sugar rationing and taxes, has imposed some perplexing individual problems, just consider the woeful plight of J. Alex Sloan, jr., of Chicago.

Sloan is the son of the late J. Alex Sloan, who pioneered dirt track auto racing.

Exactly 70 days ago, young Sloan was a flourishing promoter of auto racing with contracts for $139,000 signed and sealed for 21 State fairs, 30 smaller ones.

The next day, July 10, he was out of business, broke.

Then he conceived the idea of exhibiting top-ranking professional golfers in smaller communities. He signed four—Denny Shute, Ky Laffoon, Mike Turnesa and Ralph Guldahl, at $150 weekly each.

Business was no good.

So, the ever-trying Sloan dropped another bundle of folding money and still owes them $600 because their contracts do not expire until a week from tomorrow.

Meantime, Sloan, 38, married and with three children, had decided to join the Navy. His rating came through—as a machinist and also his orders—to report to the air station at Jacksonville, Fla., "at once," which, in terms of the Navy, means within four days.

The bewildered Sloan, tall, lean and handsome, now is six days "overdue" in reporting because he's trying to find a way of paying off the golfers.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Part-Time Work For Wives Studied

Part-time Government work by housewives is reported to be under consideration by the Civil Service Commission. The Government is hard-up for stenographers, typists and clerks. It prefers to hire local residents for these low-paid jobs instead of bringing people here from the outside, which adds to the already pressing housing and transportation problems. Hundreds of former Government clerks and stenographers are now housewives and they'd be glad to return to work on a part-time basis. A committee of women talked the plan over with Civil Service officials earlier in the week and it was indicated that something would be worked out whereby they could work around four hours in the middle of the day.

Public Buildings Administration will hand furlough notices to another bloc of its employes very soon. Its construction work drastically cut down, PBA is reducing its staff of architects, engineers, etc. The agency tries to place its furloughed employes with other Federal agencies . . . Commerce Department soon will place into effect an employe identification system similar to those of the Army and Navy. Officials of the War Shipping Board and the British Shipping Ministry, both of whom have offices in in the building, demanded that it be closed to strangers . . . Assistant Navy Secretary Ralph A. Bard asked bureau heads to excuse as many Jewish employes as possible on the Day of Atonement from sundown Sunday to sundown Monday.

Cox London Bound

War Production Board now won't hire employes of trade associations, or at least that story is told to trade people who apply. Orders from Donald Nelson via General Counsel John Lord O'Brian . . . Hugh Cox, as reported here, will get leave from Justice to go to London for BEW. Tom Clark will succeed him as first assistant in the Anti-Trust Division and David Podell will succeed Clark as chief of the complaints section . . . An inquiry is reported to be under way in WPB's chemical branch as to the number of employes and officials who went to Buffalo, N. Y., on a recent weekend at Government expense. Some of the expense accounts may be disallowed.

Uncle Sam still needs departmental guards. The salary is now $1500 and no experience is necessary. Immediate appointments will be made. Fill out application form 4000ABC and take it to Room 223 in the Civil Service Commission's main building. Applicants will be interviewed and given jobs on the spot . . . Robert L. Johnson, president of Temple University and former president of the National Civil Service Reform League, has been appointed a member of the commission's committee on administrative personnel.

Welfare and Recreation Association, the organization that runs Government cafeterias, is checking up on its own prices and portions served. It has hired an investigator to look into complaints. The association has had a terrific time keeping its personnel. The number of cafeteria employes has jumped up from 1500 to 3800 since the emergency. An industrial relations specialist has been hired to take over the personnel . . . UFWA believes that the transfer of Federal workers could be adequately and completely handled on a voluntay basis if the Civil Service Commission had exercised its authority.

Movie Premiere War Bond Sales Reach $425,000

Sale of war bonds for the victory premiere of "The War Against Mrs. Hadley," to be shown next Wednesday at Loew's Capitol Theater, has reached $425,000 toward the million-dollar goal, it was announced yesterday.

The Board of Trade reported sales totaling $175,000, with the Safeway Stores, Inc., accounting for $50,000; the D. C. Bankers Association reported sales totaling $200,000, the Rotary Club $10,000 and the remainder sold by the Loew's Theaters.

Tickets for the production are given with purchases of bonds having more than $25 maturity value. It was said that half the available tickets have already been given out.

Edward Arnold and Fay Bainter, stars of the picture, will appear in person the night of the premiere.

Manpower Shortage Note

Chattanooga, Tenn.—Either the help situation is acute here or else someone has a sense of humor. Maybe both. Anyway the following ad appeared in local newspapers: "Wanted: Registered druggist—young, old, deaf or dumb. Must have license and walk without crutches. Apply Cloverleaf Drug Store."

Driver Fined $800 In Hit-Run Case

Unable to Pay, Man Will Serve 9 Months in Jail

Louis Burrs, 48, Negro, of 923 Twenty-seventh Street Northwest was fined a total of $800 in Municipal Court yesterday on three traffic violations—reckless driving, leaving after colliding, and driving without a District of Columbia permit.

In default of payment of the fines, Judge George D. Neilson ruled, Burrs must serve nine months in jail. On the leaving-after-colliding charge, the offender was sentenced to an additional 90 days.

"Yours are flagrant violations," Judge Neilson told the defendant, "and they cannot be dealt with lightly by the court. It is high time that drastic steps be taken to put an end to this type of reckless and careless driving, which is thwarting the war effort through serious personal and property damage."

According to Policeman A. D. Clarke of the Accident Prevention Unit, Burrs sped from the scene after striking a 74-year-old Negro, Alfred Washington, of 623 Second Street Southwest, at Thirteenth and H Streets Northwest, August 3. Washington still is in Gallinger Hospital as a result of his injuries.

Meanwhile, the District's traffic toll of pedestrians continued unabated with three accidents sending as many children to hospitals with serious injuries.

Angelina Bruno, 3, of 631 Florence Street Northeast, was struck at 3:25 p. m. by an ice-cream truck as she was crossing Florence Street between F and G Streets. A passing automobile took her to Casualty Hospital where she was treated for a possible fractured skull, facial lacerations and brush burns on her legs. The truck was operated by Vernon J. Simmerman, 20, of 1612 D Street Northwest.

More seriously hurt than he believed was 8-year-old Bruce Murray, Negro, of 3221 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, who was struck by a car in the alley behind 3421 Connecticut Avenue at 1:50 p. m. The youngster jumped to his feet and ran home, but his father later removed him to Emergency Hospital where the lad was treated for a fractured left arm and concussion. His condition was undetermined. Driver of the car which hit the boy was Rose Fildiwood, 5525 Thirtieth Street Northwest.

The third accident sent Vinnie Byrd, 5, Negro, of 37 Massachusetts Avenue, to Sibley Hospital where he was treated for concussion, a possible skull fracture and head abrasions before being removed to Gallinger Hospital. The child was struck at 1:15 p. m. in front of 45 G Street Northwest by a car driven by Theodore Wade, Negro, 30, of 1815 Eighteenth Street Northwest, who carried Vinnie to the hospital.

82 Seized In Jaywalk Roundup

Washington police cracked down on jaywalkers last night when 82 were arrested throughout various sections of the city and forced to put up $2 collateral for appearance in Traffic Court.

The largest number of offenders was in Ninth Precinct where patrolmen at intersections, scout car officers and members of the APU picked up 55. Fifteen were arrested in Fifth Precinct for ignoring traffic lights, five each in Tenth and Second Precincts and two in Eleventh Precinct.

Inspector Arthur E. Miller, traffic bureau chief, said, however, that no blanket order had been issued in making the arrests. He said the action of the officers was simply routine, although a concerted effort has been on foot for some time to discourage jaywalking.

After the number of arrests had been compiled last midnight, it was disclosed that one of the jaywalkers had been arrested twice. He was James Goodwin, 61, of 1246 Maryland Avenue Northeast. Goodwin was arrested first by Pvts. Harry Lee and Wade Riley, of the A. P. U., on H Street near Eighth Northeast, at 5:30 p. m., and again near the same place three hours later by Ninth Precinct police in a scout car. Lee and Riley made 32 of the arrests.

Last week Commissioner John Russell Young threatened to take drastic steps to keep jaywalkers in line. On the record, he said, pedestrians are involved in 60 per cent of traffic deaths here and declared that carelessness was responsible for most of the fatalities. Young recalled President Roosevelt's appeal a few days earlier for concerted efforts to prevent casualties among the civilian population and cited the high traffic toll here for the year. The District's traffic death total so far this year has reached 73, as compared with 60 a year ago.

"We are doing a vital job in Washington," Young said, "and every accident gives just that much aid to our enemies. If people won't think of their own safety on the streets, then we must resort to stringent measures for the good of all concerned.

Kelly to Investigate Speed-Trap Charges

Complaints that certain motorcycle officers of the Metropolitan Police have adopted the trick of hiding in side streets and alleys to pounce upon unsuspecting motorists for traffic violations were met yesterday by Maj. Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of police, with a positive denial that "the practice is tolerated."

The charge was made in a letter to Kelly written by George E. Keneipp, manager of the Keystone Automobile Club, and made public yesterday. Keneipp stated that many motorists had reported to the club that they had been apprehended in this manner.

"We believe that the psychological effect of the visible, physical presence of police vehicles, properly and instantly identified as such, is of value to a far greater number than is achieved by attempting to conceal these vehicles so that they may swoop down on a relatively few unsuspecting motorists," Keneipp wrote in part.

Kelly, denying that such methods were used with the approval of the Police Department, said that Keneipp's charges would be investigated, and that "if the condition exists, we will put an end to it."

Greenway Rent Hearing to Be Resumed Today

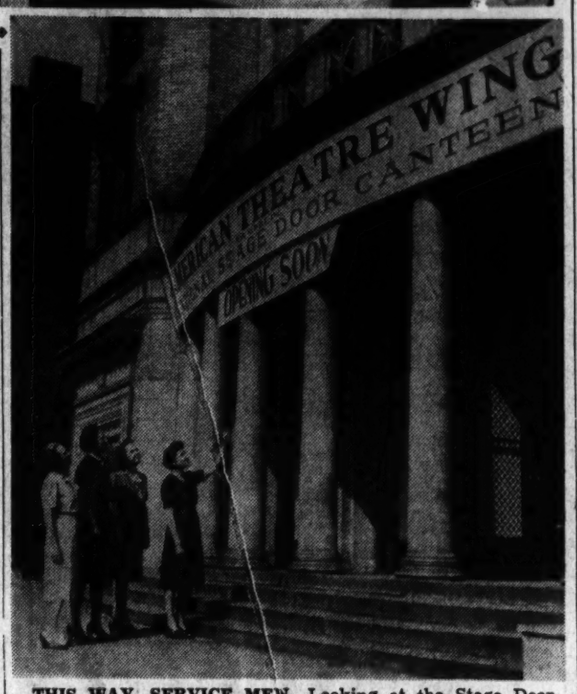

The Greenway Apartments rent hearing will be resumed at 9:30 a. m. today in the office of Rent Administrator Robert F. Coswell, 1740 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, it was announced yesterday following an agreement that a night session, beginning at 7:30 p. m., will be held if necessary.

The hearing was instituted at the request of Morris Cafritz, president of Greenway, Inc., who petitioned Coswell's office for a determination of legal maximum rents on nearly 800 apartment units in the huge housing project.

Although it is expected that the hearing will end either this afternoon or tonight, weeks will be required to weigh the voluminous evidence which must be studied before a decision can be reached.

Right to Oust D. C. Roomers Is Approved

Washington roomers who prove objectionable to their private homeowning landlords can be ousted without court action under provisions of a bill passed yesterday by the Senate.

It is believed the measure will open thousands of rooms heretofore closed because landlords did not wish to be stuck with "nuisances" from whom they would get relief only through the rent control administrator.

Under provisions of the act, which already has passed the House, homes can have up to four roomers or boarders without being classified as rooming or boarding houses.

These four can be politely but firmly asked to get out if they violate any part of their agreement with the landlord or prove to be nuisances.

Normally disputes between tenant and landlord are referred to an examiner appointed by the Rent Control Administrator under the provisions of the rent control act, but under the new bill private homeowning landlords are not subject to such provisions of the act.

Five other District bills were passed by the Senate at its brief afternoon session.

Short-Circuited Siren Shrieks False Alarm

Residents of Columbia Heights and Park View were startled last night by the wail of an air-raid siren, which Fire Department officials said was caused by a short circuit.

The siren, one of the most powerful in the area, blasted the neighborhood shortly after 11 p. m., and had auxiliary police and air wardens scouring the section for the source of the trouble, found to be on a school building.

Trouble shooters soon had the errant siren under control, and residents went back to sleep.

30 Get Diplomas As Air-Raid Wardens

Col. Lemuel Bolles presented certificates of completion of a three-week air-raid warden course to 30 persons last night at a meeting held by the Bloomingdale Civilian Defense Area in Shaw Junior High School, Rhode Island Avenue and Seventh Street Northwest.

Col. Bolles stressed the importance of the air-raid warden duties and cautioned the new wardens against "taking their duties lightly."

Victory Sidelights

District Motorists Warned Not To Varnish License Plates

District motorists were warned yesterday by the Bureau of Standards not to coat their license plates with varnish as a means of preserving them for another year. The statement was prompted by widely circulated reports that such a preservative was advisable.

Bureau experts informed William A. Van Duzer of the Department of Vehicles and Traffic that this treatment might produce an opposite result, since varnish after a time has a tendency to shrink when applied to a painted surface, and become brittle, causing the painted base to crack.

Existing tags must last at least another year, and car owners in 1943 will be issued small tabs with serial numbers to fit on the upper right corner of the plates, according to a recent edict. With reasonable care and an occasional cleansing with soap and water, the plates should last, Van Duzer said.

Trucker's 'Malady' Duly Diagnosed

Found Peculiar to Centers Affected by Wage Controversy

A strange epidemic which has affected long-haul truck drivers and no one else has been reported in both Baltimore and Richmond and high Administration labor officals fear that the malady may spread to the National Capital. The Post learned yesterday. In all three cities the drivers are negotiating for wage increases.

Its chief symptom is an indisposition which makes it impossible for the ndividual effected to report to work. It was first reported in Baltimore about three weeks ago, when the truck drivers affiliated with the A. F. of L. Teamsters began to negotiate a new wage contract. The Baltimore truck drivers complained of stomach disorders.

Subsequently, as wage negotiations began in Richmond, complaints of "poisoning" appeared. The drivers blamed them on a Richmond cafeteria. More recently, wage negotiations have also started in Washington, although the creeping malady has not made its appearance here yet. As of yesterday, however, negotiations were reported stalemated.

In all three cities, the truck drivers are asking for substantial wage increases above the level prevailing under collective bargaining contracts which expired at the end of last month. Government labor officials connect the strange illnesses with a desire of the truck drivers to secure their wage increase before Congress acts to block inflationary wage increases.

The Government officials point out that the union is bound by a no-strike agreement which prevents them from engaging in an outright walkout. As a result, they believe that the drivers have used their "illness" as a ruse to secure the effect of a strike.

The "epidemic" has not had the effect of closing down all long-haul trucking operations, however. It strikes at one company for a short time, then moves on to another company and the employes of the first company find that they have miraculously recovered and are able to work again.

One such attack of "disease" delayed delivery of materials to the Glenn L. Martin bomber plant in Baltimore for a few hours recently. Other attacks have affected other Baltimore war plants. All have suffered from a general slowing-down of long-haul operations.

Meanwhile, representatives of the truckers and the truck drivers have been negotiating on the wage question with the assistance of the United States Conciliation Service. It was reported that negotiations have not progressed very far because of the irritations produced by the slowdowns and stoppages.

Another meeting of the Baltimore group and possibly of the Washington group will be held today.

In Washington, negotiations are being conducted by Joseph C. McGarraghy, attorney for the Labor Relations Council of the D. C. Trucking Association, and Linwood Trainham, secretary-treasurer of Local 639 of the Truck Drivers Union.

Citizens Act

Campaign For Delegate Organized

District citizens meeting at the Y. W. C. A. yesterday formed a "District Delegate Committee" to coordinate the activities of all individuals and organizations seeking passage of the Paddock bill to give Washington a congressional delegate.

In the meantime, Representative Paddock (Republican) of Illinois yesterday appealed to the House for support in getting the Judiciary Committee to report favorably on his measure. He called the present District government "complexed, confused, illogical and cumbersome."

The Paddock Bill provides for the election of a non-voting delegate who would advise Congress on District legislation and have the same rank, for example, as Delegate Dimond of Alaska.

Prettyman Proposed As Head

A sub-committee reporting to the organization meeting yesterday recommended E. Barrett Prettyman, former president of the District Bar Association, as chairman, but withheld recommendation for the present concerning the committee's personnel. A total of 25 was recommended for the membership, these to be selected at the next meeting.

"It shall be the committee's aim to coordinate the activities of all individuals and groups and organizations seeking the passage of this legislation to the end that the committees of Congress may be fully advised in an orderly manner of the sentiment for the bill, and the underlying reasons which dictate the necessity for and the desirability of the legislation," the report said.

Essentially, the committee's aim is to "arouse the people of Washington" in the bill's favor. The committee will devise ways of financing itself.

"Members of the committee must be ready to go out and make talks before citizens groups, explaining the bill and giving urgent reasons for its approval."

Time Is Short

Realizing that the work must be accomplished in a short time, the subcommittee believed it necessary to establish a small headquarters with a paid employe in charge and to keep the headquarters open during reasonable hours.

Various committees of the Delegates Committee would be established, one to be known as the contact committee for dealing with members of Congress.

A committee on hearings will "arrange for an orderly presentation of evidence before Judiciary Subcommittees; secure witnesses to testify and assign them their subjects." There will be a finance committee, an educational committee and a coordination committee.

Those attending the meeting included Augusta H. Brown, Merlo Pusey, Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, Sefton Darr, Mrs. George B. Chamberlin, Mrs. Eugene Duffield, Wilbur Finch, Joseph D. Kauffman, Mrs. C. D. Lowe, Mrs. Joseph Lowe, Mrs. W. C. Mayforth, Mrs. W. A. Roberts, Frank Waldrop, Harry Wender, E. Barrett Prettyman. Accepting service on committees but not present yesterday were Walter Bastian, Milton King, Maj. Campbell Johnson, Mrs. Basil Manly and Mrs. Harold Stone.

Cornell Club to Hold Thursday Luncheons

Announcement of the award, valued at more than $1200, was made by Esther C. Quinn, dean of the chapter, and Blanche M. Margason, chairman of the scholarship committee.

A native of Brigham City, Utah, Miss Merrell took her prelaw work at Weber Junior College, Ogden, Utah; the University of Idaho, Moscow, and at George Washington University. Currently, she is employed in the Navy Department as secretary to the assistant director of personnel.

Ration Books Stolen, 2 Motorists Report

Theft of gasoline rationing books from two District motorists was reported to police yesterday. Harry Williams, 45 R Street Northwest, said his truck was entered by somebody who pried loose a ventilator door. He lost his "C" card and book. John E. Boswell, 207 Bates Street Northwest, had his "A" book from his sedan stolen while it was parked in front of his home. Neither victim was able to give the serial numbers of his book.

Woman Hesitates to Serve as Maid of Honor At Wedding, Because Bride-to-be Is 16 Years Her Junior; and Best Man Is 10 Years Younger

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been asked to be maid of honor for a very dear little friend who is 16 years my junior. I love her deeply and would like very much to be in her wedding party, as we have been closer than sisters for the past 20 months. But I am wondering if the difference in our ages doesn't disqualify me for the honor. The bridegroom has chosen a man about 10 years my junior to serve as his best man. Incidentally, none of them know that I am as old as I am.

One other question: It is to be a church wedding, at 10 o'clock in the morning, and the bride will wear a street-length dress. At a ceremony of this kind, is it proper for the bride to have two attendants? She has already asked another friend to act as bridesmaid. The wedding is to be quite soon, so an early answer will be appreciated. Sincerely,

H. L. K.

Question of Age Is Irrelevant

DEAR L. H. K.: As you perhaps know, it is not uncommon for a bride to head her list of attendants with a "matron of honor"—which signifies that top-ranking place in the line-up isn't exclusively reserved for "a sweet young thing." Usually, that role is assigned to the bride's "dearest friend"—whether married or single, so that the question of age is more or less irrelevant, when making the choice. And if this bride-to-be and her fiance have seen fit to pair you off with a man 10 years your junior, in the wedding party, it must be that they consider you sufficiently decorative to bear the comparison gracefully—because naturally they would give some thought to appearances in planning the processional.

Therefore, it seems to me you are brooding unnecessarily about the "age angle." It certainly does not disqualify you to play the part proffered; and I advise you to assure the bride warmly that you would be delighted to "do the honors" and ask her suggestions on what to wear. As to whether it is proper for the bride to have two attendants, in the circumstances described—the answer, dear lady, is that it's being done. Your friend has ample precedent in that regard. But even if she hadn't; even if this were a radical departure from customary social usage, it ill becomes you to openly question the propriety of her arrangements.

M. H.

Pushing Pedestrians Nearly Killed Her

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Having read in your column of Sunday, September 13, about how newcomers to Washington behave like "stampeding cattle" on the streets, I thought you might make use of my experience to corroborate the charge. About two weeks ago I was leaving a streetcar on downtown G Street Northwest, when I was pushed off the steps from behind by two ladies (save the mark!) who evidently thought I was too slow for their pace.

As a result, I fell forward into the street, flat on my face. I was rescued by four gentleman; and if the traffic light had not been "red" at the time, I surely would have been killed. As it was, I got off with two scraped knees, two sprained wrists and ruined gloves. The "ladies" ran from the scene, and were jeered by the crowd that gathered. Since I am 73 years old, I am quite thankful that I did not land in the hospital. I hope this recital does not bore you. I just want to confirm "Indignant Citizen's" statement, in which she says—"Three times, in as many days, I have seen frail and elderly women nearly knocked off their feet by madly rushing young Amazons, who seem to think their corn-fed selves are the only inhabitants of the city." Truly yours.

F. L. G.

Federal Expert Takes Complainers to Task

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The interesting reports from Federal employes, who write your column to complain that they are "sitting around" with nothing to do, deserve serious consideration. May I make some comment—or, rather, put some questions to these dissatisfied experts, who think they are not earning their salaries, of $3000 a year and over?

First, do they realize that the person who is classified and paid as an expert by the Government is expected to show initiative and make an original contribution? As experts—or creative workers—don't they know that their value is reckoned by results produced, not by muscular effort invested? I happen to be an "expert," too—and as such, I am familiar with the discouraging season of sowing, weeding and cultivating plans and attending to all the other obscure details of creative preparation which must precede outstanding accomplishments. The expert is employed to "row his own canoe." He is supposed to know what is to be done and how to do it.

Furthermore, most experts worthy of the name have had the experience not only of making their contribution unaided, but, also, of creating the job itself! You may plant a smart man at a desk, with nothing to do, but if he deserves the title of "expert," his insight and foresight will rapidly fill in the void. He will devise his own indispensable project, and then persuade his superiors of its importance. In the present situation, when so many new organizations are being set up, with officials conferring on policy much of the time, there is urgent need for bona fide experts who can function efficiently without administrative policing.

Persons of Ability Function Well Anywhere

And that brings me to my third point. We may as well face the fact, I think, that the Federal Government is staffed with all kinds of "supervisors." As a Government employe, I have met with some of the best; but I have also run into some of the worst imaginable. However, I have learned that by showing initiative, resourcefulness, originality in planning and the ability to "sell" sound ideas, one can make a real contribution to the war effort and gain merited advancement by doing so. But before you table this discussion, Miss Haworth, I wish some other experts would submit further comment on the constructive side. Sincerely.

SOCIAL ECONOMIST.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

These Women!

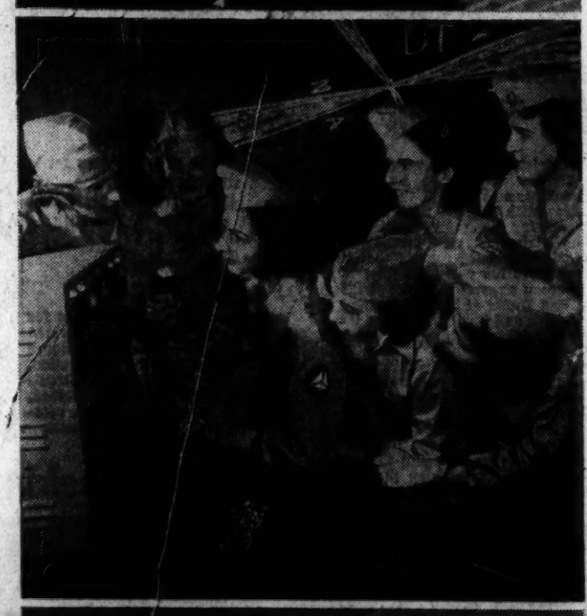

By d'Alessio

"Please, Basil, let's not talk shop!"

The young woman of tomorrow will have before her a choice of professional fields long eyed with envy by her sisters of earlier years, but abandoned by them as being strictly "men's fields." Today the choice includes not only the activities pictured on this page—chemistry, aviation (administration, and designing as well as flying itself) physics, food chemistry, radio and engineering—but many more

A NEW VOCATIONAL WORLD OPEN TO NATION'S WOMEN

War Brings Demand for Highly Trained Women to Fill Scientific, Professional Jobs Heretofore Held Only By Men

By Malvina Lindsay

And now she's going to be a "roughneck engineer." Or perhaps a physicist. Or a chemist. Or a meteorologist. Or an electrician. Or even a miner!

The Nation's call to college women, and even girls in high school, to train in physics, engineering, meteorology and other sciences to help win the war presages a change in status for the white collar girl. Like the white collar man, she is likely not to be nearly so important in the coming scheme of things.

Two news items of the last few days have been straws in the wind that is blowing in the next feminine era in industry.

The country's oldest engineering school, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy, N. Y., has broken a tradition maintained for 116 years, and is admitting women students for degree-giving courses.

The Miami Copper Mining Co., of Miami, Ariz., has employed 100 women for jobs heretofore held by men—mechanical jobs in the concentration plant and in the machine, pipe fitting and repair shops. "It's hard work and we don't want the glamorous type of worker" the superintendent has announced.

Meanwhile the Government is beating the bushes for girls with mathematical and scientific trends of mind to train to meet the acute shortage of men engineers, physicists, meteorologists and other scientists. The science war training department of the Government has set up special courses along these lines in 200 colleges. College girls having any mathematical or scientific bent are being urged to develop their talents. Women with full or even partial training in mathematics and science are sought for enlistment in war activity. All of this means that the sturdier "men's fields" professionally as well as industrially are being taken—for now and for later—by women.

Engineering Has Not Been Genteel

Women engineers are scarce in this country. Only 12 women were graduated as full fledged engineers last year in all the colleges. Even within recent years the schools of engineering on college campuses have been regarded as hangouts for only the more red blooded and hairy chested men students. Occasionally an intrepid girl who was a whiz at "math" would enroll in these schools. But not often. How could a girl comprehend advanced calculus? So, the girl students kept to their English, history and French, training to become teachers, of course, and to their home economics, and their journalism, commercial art, and occasionally their law.

But now has come along another war to jog them out of their vocational ruts, to take off their frills and even spoil their manicures, and worst of all, to make them use their brains in the nebulous operations of higher mathematics.

Wars in America have a habit of upsetting women's working lives. There was the Civil War, out of which was born the woman Government clerk. It also gave women their first edge-in in schoolteaching and it eventually routed the men and boys from the telephone switchboards. Then came World War No. 1 which gave women further inroads in schoolteaching and other more genteel professions, and virtually turned over the white collar office jobs to her.

In this war women are taking an even bigger hurdle professionally. They are entering fields in which for generations they have had no experience, training or focus of interest. In seeking to become engineers, physicists, mathematicians they face public prejudice and a latent sense of their own inferiority. In high school and college it has been a byword for years that girls didn't have what it takes to hold their own in physics or "math." In fact, many a girl has been almost afraid to demonstrate that she could succeed in these studies for fear of being considered too much on the highbrow side.

But war has changed all that. The best that woman's brains can offer is needed to help her country. Prejudice, tradition, no longer hamper her. Educators have the fullest faith in her. The "female mind" is no longer considered an impediment in understanding even the fourth dimension.

Moreover all that she learns in her war science training will serve her in good stead in the fields of plastics, textiles, food chemistory, electronics, engineering and other dominating pursuits of the post-war world.

A new world of self-expression is opening to woman. She may have to take off her white collar to enter it, but even so it is an appendage that has been steadily losing face even in the fashion world. And a comforting thought is that she probably will find her Romeo of the future not wearing a while collar either—that is if he is busy building cargo planes, inventing rubberless tires, or harnessing the St. Lawrence.

All That Glitters— Is Not Pure Gold!

By Jeanne Contini
Post Fashion Editor

You'll be seeing many glistening, glittering touches on clothes this season. Many designers seem to believe that since the basic silhouette has been simplified of necessity, they must cover up the simplicity with applied trim.

When this is done well—which means with restraint—it's fine, but as far as we're concerned even a little bit of glitter goes a long way! And it ought never go to the office. Also if you can afford only one dress-up dress, it would be wise to consider the unrelenting sameness of the glitter that turns into a feeble glow after a few months.

We think you'd be wise and also in fashion if you planned your glitter on the take it-or-leave-it basis.

For instance, consider jeweled or jet buttons that can dramatize your pet basic dress in the few minutes it takes to sew them on. Belts of sequins, jet or studded with "jewels" are another easy way to acquire the siren look you may want occasionally.

And some of those lustrous and dazzling pieces of costume jewelry are still one of the best ways we know of pinning on "allure."

Shop around and you'll find sequin butterflies that can alight on your shoulder when you feel in the need of some additional appeal, or sparkle up your suit with a shining gilet. Veils with glitter can make your sensible little beret into a head turning job. (You can buy tiny sequins and sew them on thrifty veiling by the yard.)

Washington stores are full of Midas fashions that are in excellent taste—we merely suggest that you know "for why" and "for when" when you do your selecting, and if it's to be your one and only go out and drink a coke while you consider it—and then you won't blame it on the saleswoman all season long!

If you decide you can't afford an unchangeable fashion, we offer you our suggestions above.

DON'T KILL 'EM WITH KINDNESS

By Grace Martin

Some people's desire to be helpful overshadows their good sense and courtesy.

If Mr. Jones has indigestion, they shower him with inquiries and remedy suggestions every time they meet, forcing him to remember a complaint which he might otherwise forget.

When Mrs. Smith is hesitating between modern and Georgian English furniture for her living room, they give her a lot of advice which Mrs. Smith did not seek in the first place and which sometimes leads her into a wrong decision in the end.

If Johnny is having trouble with his arithmetic, they rush to help him, instead of letting him learn a thing or two for himself.

Sometimes they just can't resist telephoning Mary to cheer her up and then hang on the wire chatting until Mary's soup boils over.

Often they are so busy helping other people that they don't have time to write their own bread and butter letters promptly, finish the sweater they started for the Red Cross or get the hairdresser on time.

Soldiers and Sailors Vote On Santa Claus

Here is what your sailor or soldier wants for Christmas. Listed below is a tabulation of a survey made by The Department Store Economist. Compiled from 1000 questionnaires filled out at USO headquarters in New York, the answers were given in all seriousness by soldiers and sailors who were told that their remarks would govern the sending of gifts to millions of their buddies. The voting was tabulated by percentages of the total number of men answering who voted "swell," "fair," or "junk." Where percentages do not total 100 per cent it is because the question was not answered by every man interviewed.

Dancers' Exercises Will Beautify Your Legs

By Ida Jean Kain

This is another of a series of articles by Ida Jean Kain in which she offers a physical fitness program for women during wartime.

There are only about 10 per cent of the women who have legs that look lovely in short skirts. Not that the men would look any better in knee pants.

But to get back to the women. Leg contour is almost always a matter of muscle tone. There are thin girls with beautiful legs and fat and thin ones with legs that are dangerously thin.

I have a set of exercises for you that has been tried and proved by a group of girls who are famous for their legs—the Radio City Rockettes. Their "average" is perfect—thigh, 21 inches; calf, 13 inches, and ankle, 6 inches.

But those measurements are no accident. They are the result of an exercise program carefully planned to counteract the effect of the constant contracting exercises which enter into their dance routines.

Gene Snyder, their dance director, has worked out a set of stretchers to keep their muscles from becoming bunchy — something you don't have to worry about—which will enable you to acquire the muscle tone that assures good measurements.

Some of these exercises are probably very different from any you have ever tried. You will need someone to help you take them.

1. Stand with back to wall, legs straight and left leg straight out in front, the foot grasped by your collaborator. Now, here's the trick. While your foot is being moved from side to side, then away up in front, you must keep those muscles at the juncture of hip and thigh perfectly relaxed. Have your knee straight and instruct your assistant to push up lightly, but firmly, on the toe joints. Stretch one leg, then the other. You will be glad to know that exercise also slims your hips.

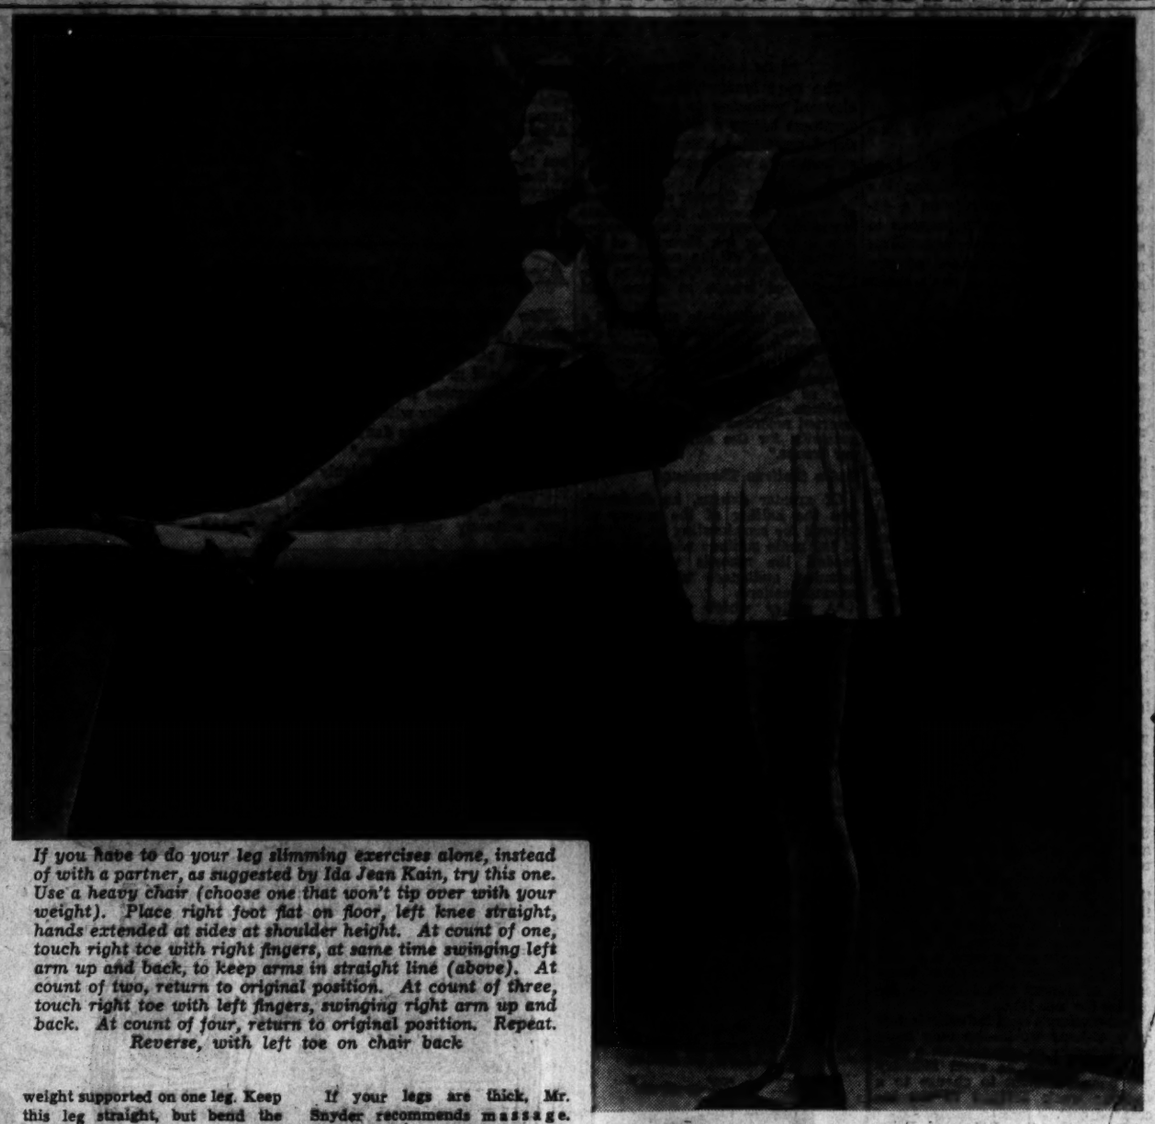

2. Now stand facing the wall, weight supported on one leg. Keep this leg straight, but bend the other knee up in back, with foot grasped by your co-exerciser. Have her push up with the foot as you lower your head backward. Try to touch head to foot. Again, keep the muscles at hip relaxed.

Most thin and fat women need more exercise of both the stretching and contracting kinds. So a Rockette dance step is in order for developing a lovelier calf contour and at the same time giving the leg muscles a stretch. Here's the combination:

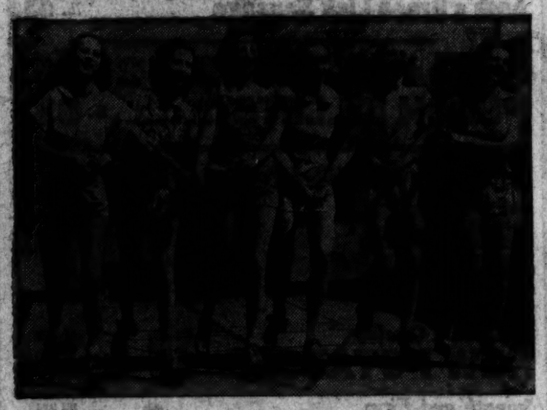

3. Stand with weight on the right foot and go into a deep knee-bend with the right leg as you slide left leg straight out in back, heel pointed. Stand up and repeat three times, then transfer weight to left leg and slide the right straight out in back for the same count.

If your legs are thick, Mr. Snyder recommends massage. The girls at the Music Hall massage their legs to keep their muscles smooth. The mixture they use is homemade. You take one pint of alcohol and one-half cup of Russian mineral oil, mix well and always shake before using. And don't just rub the lotion on. Knead your legs. You can find the right method by experiment and the kneading will make the contour much smoother.

Tomorrow we'll go into the business of hip slimming. You can lose as many inches as you please off this measurement.

If you have to do your leg slimming exercises alone, instead of with a partner, as suggested by Ida Jean Kain, try this one. Use a heavy chair (choose one that won't tip over with your weight). Place right foot flat on floor, left knee straight, hands extended at sides at shoulder height. At count of one, touch right toe with right fingers, at same time swinging left arm up and back, to keep arms in straight line (above). At count of two, return to original position. At count of three, touch right toe with left fingers, swinging right arm up and back. At count of four, return to original position. Repeat. Reverse, with left toe on chair back

As if the Radio City Rockettes didn't get enough exercise by way of work, they go out on the roof for this sort of thing. Skating is just another good leg stretcher—and another explanation of their beautiful legs. They have to balance their contracting exercises with stretching. Most women need leg exercises—especially now that short skirts are here for the duration.

Mittens and Socks Matched in Knitting

By Alice Brooks

Be ready for winter days—knit this smart set of mittens and socks. The pattern stitch is easy and yet so effective. The socks can be made ankle or knee length. Pattern 7407 contains directions for making mittens and socks in small, medium and large size; illustrations of them and stitches; materials needed.

To obtain this pattern send eleven cents to The Washington Post, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th Street, NEW YORK, N. Y. Write plainly, name, address and pattern number.

Rabbit Habit

Rabbit hair fashions are multiplying as fast as rabbits are supposed to do. It's all tied up with the wool shortage, and you can hardly enter a department store college shop without bumping into a rack full of rabbit hair and wool combinations in dozens of colors. Simple, flattering shirtmaker styles and dirndls with modified front fullness get the play. All strictly legal, of course, and very L-85 as to fabric content. If you don't take anything else new to college, take these. They are the sort of wonderful wearable get-up that sees you through from registration day to commencement.

Normal Development in Infancy and Childhood

By Logan Clendening, M.D.

The Child Health Movement is celebrating its eighteenth birthday this year. It can hardly be gainsaid that education of parents and teachers in this subject has done as much to promote the health of the present generation as public hygiene measures.

The standards to determine the health of an infant and child at different ages is one feature of the educational program this year.

The proportions of the body of an infant at the age when it is just beginning to stand and walk are different from those of the child and adult. The trunk and head are relatively large, the extremities relatively short. The legs and arms grow much faster than the rest of the body. The length of the newborn baby's legs, from the crest of the hipbone to the sole of the feet is 43 per cent of the entire bodily length. That of a child of 16 is 60 per cent.

Points to Notice

The points to notice about the baby of one or two years are, first, the shape and form of the head. It should be well rounded with plenty of space above the eyes, and the jaws wide to prevent tooth crowding.

The neck should be free of enlarged glands.

The chest should be broad and deep, the abdomen flat.

The skin should be everywhere clear.

The arms are normally plump, but not excessively fat. The same thing is true of the legs. The muscles of arms and legs should be firm.

The legs should be straight not bowed and the lower limbs strong and well-proportioned.

For the child of about eight or 10 it is a sign of good health for the height and weight to be close to the average for the age.

A luxurious head of hair is a sign of health.

The shoulders should be square, the back flat at this age (later the normal curves begin to appear), the spine straight, the muscles firm and the trunk well proportioned. The legs should be straight and not bowed, and the knees should touch without bumping when the child is standing at attention. The feet now should be well arched.

These general standards can be determined by any parents without recourse to measurements and without any special medical training. If the child does not conform to them reasonably closely it should be an indication for medical consultation to see if there is any nutritional condition or bone condition which would account for the lack of bodily symmetry.

Children with this standard of bodily build may be expected to be normally active, to eat and sleep well, to begin to walk and talk at the regular ages.

Save the Surface, And Save the Nail

Fingers were made before forks—a comforting thought when eating fried chicken. However, though fingernails may have been originally designed for tools, today we should know better.

Not that we believe that hands, to be beautiful, must do no work. Useless hands in this generation are just silly. But hands can be beautiful as well as useful if they are given proper care and the nails get decent consideration.

We know all this because we've watched, for some time now, the progress of Lucille Ball who possesses a pair of unusually beautiful hands, each finger tipped with a long, perfectly kept nail. Yet we've seen Lucille digging in her flowers, feeding the chickens, knitting a sweater, cooking a meal, washing the dogs.

Specifically she doesn't use them to pry tops off bottles and jars, remove nails and screws, dial telephones, for miscellaneous scraping, prying and pulling. For such work she looks up the proper tool created by the inventive mind to do the work of fingers—and more efficiently.

RUTH PENNEY.

'Big Upswing' In Arms Begun, Nelson Reports

By the Associated Press

War Production Chief Donald Nelson said yesterday that the output of war material in 1943 "would be much bigger" than previous estimates of 60 billon dollars, and declared that the Nation "now is on the big upswing of production."

He told the House Committee on Defense Migration that the country was approaching the "maximum of production," but later explained that he meant to say that the time had arrived when WPB could make schedules for eventual mass production in a particular plant.

He said that he agreed with President Roosevelt's recent statement that at present the country was operating at 50 per cent production.

Testifying before the committee which is studying methods for full utilization of manpower, Nelson said that production would begin in full flow in January and February.

"We are on the big upswing of production," he asserted, adding that that maximum was "dictated by the amount you can get out of certain materials" and also was governed by other factors, such as shipping.

He said he had not studied the advisability of legislation to control manpower, which Paul McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower Commission, yesterday asserted was "inevitable" and essential to maximum production.

However, Nelson said that "we have to have workers at places where we need them and at times when we need them. If it can be done voluntarily, well, that's fine. But if it can't be done that way, it must be done some other way."

The production, he said, had "arrived at the point where, if you add a thing to our program, then you have to subtract something."

That assertion was made in replying to questions from members of the committee on the progress being made by Henry J. Kaiser. West Coast shipbuilder, in getting Government authority and backing for his plan to build giant cargo planes on a mass production basis.

Nelson said that big cargo planes already were being produced, and that the final decision on how many would be built was a decision for the chiefs of staff.

He said that he wanted "to go ahead and build some of them"—the type proposed by Kaiser—and added: "I am sure that if we can build some, we'll find a place for them in the program."

Placing of inspectors in all important war plants "to see that labor is efficiently utilized at maximum skills" was proposed by Director Wendell Lund, of WPB's labor production division.

He said that the War Manpower Commission already has the power to institute labor market controls and that it should not "wait for sweeping legislation."

Lund, turning to the problems created by plants overstocking with labor against anticipated rather than current needs, testified "it is natural in a period of expanding employment and impending labor scarcity for employers to hoard labor just as they want to hoard materials."

He said that from his observations a saving in manpower requirements could be brought about "if we institute the same sort of inventory controls in the labor market that we have instituted and are instituting with respect to critical raw materials."

Kelland Charge On War Effort Hotly Denounced

By the Associated Press

Representative Bradley (Democrat) of Pennsylvania yesterday accused Clarence Budington Kelland, author and publicity chairman of the Republican National Committee, of sticking "a dagger in the back of every boy who is in the service of the United States" by declaring the New Deal sought to postpone an all-out war effort until after the election.

Bradley read a newspaper article quoting Kelland as saying that there were indications that the Administration was putting off calling upon the public for necessary sacrifices until after the elections.

"If the gentleman was quoted correctly, then it is a serious indictment not only of the President but of the Chief of Staff of the Army and the Chief of Naval Operations, who would have to be parties to it," Bradley said. "That's a dastardly thing."

Representative Dingell (Democrat) of Michigan interjected: "If that's true, then that's treason."

Bradley's remarks drew the ire of Representative Rich, his Republican colleague from Pennsylvania, but Rich was cut short when the pair started shouting at each other.

Peace Treaty Council Urged For Postwar Task

By the Associated Press

Senator Wiley (Republican) of Wisconsin offered a resolution in the Senate yesterday to create a Foreign Relations Advisory Council in which Congress and the State Department would formulate the peace treaty to end World War II.

Without anticipating "any early victory," Wiley told the Senate, he felt it was time to consider the establishment of machinery "which will enable us to overcome the difficulties which have beset us in the past."

His purpose, he said, was to obtain "a better working arrangement between the Senate and the Chief Executive" and avoid criticism of the Senate such as that aroused by its rejection of the League of Nations clause in the Versailles Treaty after World War I.

A.M.A. Cites Two Reasons for Not Holding Session

Chicago, Sept. 17 (INS).—The American Medical Association tonight canceled its ninety-fourth annual session in 1943, scheduled for San Francisco, because of the "tremendous" wartime demands on the medical profession.

The A. M. A. board of trustees, in making the announcement, pointed out that the convention usually draws from 6000 to 10,000 physicians away from their practice. The cancellation also was prompted by a desire to avoid further burdens on transportation facilities.

Instead of the usual convention, the house of delegates, board of trustees, scientific councils and officials of the association will meet in Chicago in June, 1943, to consider wartime problems.

Day-Old Marriage Ends in Bride's Suicide in Lake

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 17 (INS).—Death by drowning tonight wrote finis to the day-old honeymoon of Mrs. Dorothea Duggan Smith, 33, of Techny, Ill.

Police said Mrs. Smith committed suicide by walking into Lake Powers, 28 miles west of Kenosha, where she was honeymooning wtih her 19-year-old husband, Julian Norbert Smith.

Her body was found floating in the lake.

Smith told officers a nervous breakdown probably accounted for his wife's act and revealed two previous attempts she reportedly made to end her life.

The couple was married Tuesday at Epworth, Iowa.

WPB May Put Copper Miners On 48-Hr. Wk.

The War Production Board is considering an order placing the country's copper miners on a 48-hour week as part of a program to stabilize employment conditions and increase production of the strategic war metal, it was learned yesterday.

A similar order was issued recently by WPB to cover the West Coast lumber industry. Unlike lumber, however, where most operations were on a 40-hour week prior to the WPB order, most copper operations are on a 48-hour week already.

Some Government officials viewed the proposed copper order as a definite forecast of other orders of a similar nature when the manpower pinch begins to spread. At present, lumbering and copper mining are experiencing the two most critical manpower shortages in the country.

Under the proposed order, time and a half would be paid for hours over 40 a week in accordance with the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Eventually, it is believed, the 48-hour week will have to be extended both to coal mining and to the steel industry, although severe manpower shortages are still to appear in both industries.

In coal mining, a 35-hour week prevails during most of the year, with longer hours permitted only during the winter months. Negotiations looking toward extension of the work week in anthracite coal-mining are now being conducted by the United Mine Workers and the anthracite coal producers of the country.

Biggest obstacle to extension of the work week in coal mining at this time is the fear that it will result in a sharp reduction in hours of work later as the season ends. If hours of work are reduced at a later date it is believed that many thousands of miners will leave the industry for war jobs.

The country's steel industry is now on a 40-hour week—the only large war industry so operated on a continuous basis. The steel industry has been reluctant to change to a 48-hour week because of the increased cost.

Meanwhile, the Office of Price Administration has begun price studies looking toward a readjustment in the price of copper in the event the War Labor Board grants the $1 a day wage increase recommended by its panel Wednesday. A wage increase of that magnitude will make some sort of price adjustment necessary, OPA officials believe.

The WLB panel recommended the wage rise to aid the Manpower Commission in checking migration of workers out of the industry.

Juke Records Vital to Morale, Petrillo Hearing Is Told

By the Associated Press

The once lowly "juke box" was elevated yesterday to a position of greatness before a solemn congressional committee where it was described as "a vital necessity" in this war.

Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, told a Senate Interstate Commerce Subcommitee that to permit the silencing of the musical notes of the coin-operated phonograph would "jeopardize the morale" of troops at home and abroad.

The first witness in support of a resolution by Chairman Clark (Democrat) of Idaho to investigate James C. Petrillo's ban against members of the American Federation of Musicians playing for recordings and transcriptions, Davis asserted recorded music was "a vital necessity for the entertainment of our troops."

Radio Stations Threatened

Of greater danger, he declared, was the halting of the supply of records for broadcasting by upward of 150 radio stations which he said needed the records to maintain listening audiences vital to war communications.

"A policy which threatens the continued existence of many of these stations," he declared, might seriously hamper his work of "informing the people about the status and progress of the war effort and the war policies, activities and aims of this Government."

Petrillo, president of the Musicians Union, was not present as Davis warmed to his subject.

Davis assured the committee he could carry on very well without personal discomfort if there were no "juke boxes" at all, but that they are "highly popular among soldiers, sailors and marines" at home, and in the USO hut in Alaska," and at other battlefronts.

"The director of this office," he put it, "is not personally an addict of the juke box," but at our outposts overseas "recorded music is a vital necessity for the entertainment of our troops."

He quoted one unidentified commanding general as saying a cessation of the supply of recorded music would "jeopardize the complete morale and propaganda broadcast structure" at combat zone points.

Davis said he appealed to Petrillo July 28, on behalf of the War and Navy Departments the Marine Corps, Coast Guard, the Treasury, the Office of Civilian Defense and his own office to withdraw the ban which became effective August 1, but Petrillo refused.

Argentine Appeasement Held Risky

New York, Sept. 17 (U.P.).—Waldo Frank, author and lecturer, recently declared persona non grata in Argentina, said in an article cabled to Collier's Magazine from Chile that "appeasement today with the Argentine government is as dangerous as it was yesterday in Europe."

"The government of this highly intelligent people is against us for two reasons," cabled Frank, who was hurt seriously when attacked by several men in Buenos Aires the day after he was advised to leave.

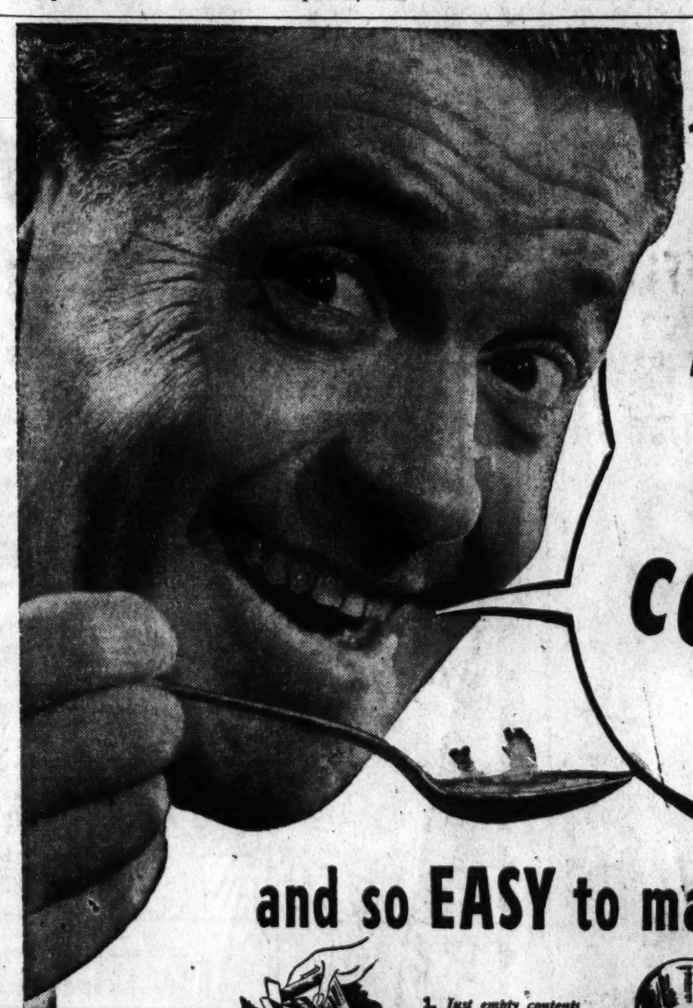

"One, because it thinks we are going to lose; two, because it knows in its heart that if we win, all it stands for is sunk forever."

Frank urged Americans "to do nothing to make it harder for the Argentine people to feel we are with them in their fight. "The Argentine people," he said, "are with us in this fight."

Apples for Victory and Good Nutrition; Serve Them and Be in Pink of Condition

Fresh crisp apples are good eating and good for you. The adaptability of apples in cookery makes them suitable for breakfast, luncheon and dinner. Children like them for after-school snacks and oldsters munch them at bedtime. Whether made into applesauce, baked in a pie or glazed as a garnish for a roast as pictured here, this excellent fruit is worthy of use both to help the budget and for nutritive value

Eve started it all when she took that forbidden bite. An early Governor of Massachusetts imported the first apple trees. Johnny Appleseed furthered the cause when he went through the country after the war of 1812 planting apple seeds. And from September 17 to 26 the apple is highlighted as the Victory Food Special.

That's quite a historic record for apples. But they also have an enviable record as a nutritious food. We have all heard the expression, "An apple a day keeps the doctor away." Such is not just a pun. It has been well said because apples are a good source of the valuable vitamin C—the vitamin that helps build sound teeth and bones. So munching a big juicy apple is a delightfully easy way to get your daily quota of fresh fruit vitamins.

Vitamin A, too, that protective vitamin that helps to throw off colds and other winter ills is also present in apples. The vital food minerals—calcium and iron are also contained in apples. They have another important function, that of aiding to prevent acidosis by helping to keep the blood normally alkaline.

Reducer's, Take Note

And reducers should take note too that apples are good to include in reducing diets. High in vitamins and minerals, apples are low in proteins and contain a relatively low number of calories. So eat apples and help keep your waistline under control.

Apples are grown in almost every State in the country. And with the estimated 1942 crop being little more than 122,215,000 bushels, there will be plenty for everyone. Every area has its own particular pride and joy as to variety. Among the ones that are favorites are: Delicious, Winesap, Golden Delicious, Jonathan, Rome Beauty, McIntosh, Wealthy and Grimes Golden.

When hungry school children clamor for something to eat, give them a big juicy cold apple and a glass of milk. That is much better for them than candy. And with the sugar situation being what it is, you can be sure that an apple is not delving into the sugar supply.

Apples keep best under refrigeration, so when you bring apples from market, keep them in the refrigerator. Then they will be crisp and flavorful when you bite into them.

No other fruit has a wider range of use in meals than apples. Applesauce is a general favorite with many persons. It is eaten with crisp toast at breakfast, with milk or cream poured over it as a luncheon dessert and as an accompaniment to meat course at dinner.

Fried apples too make themselves acceptable at any meal. A Sunday breakfast with friend apples surrounding sausages or ham on the platter is a food well received.

What's In a Name?

A dessert that my grandmother used to make when I was a child was Apfelkuchen. It is really a torte, although it might be classed as a souffle. No matter the name it is really a remarkably good dessert. Make it this way:

Sour Cream Apple Cake

Pare, core and slice 5 cups tart apples. Melt in a skillet ¼ cup butter. Add the apples and cook them covered over a very low fire, stirring from time to time, until they are tender. Combine and pour over the apples ½ cup sour cream, rind and juice of 1 lemon, 1 cup sugar (scant unless apples are very tart), 2 tablespoons bread flour, 6 egg yolks, ½ cup blanched shredded almonds (optional). Stir these ingredients over a low fire until they thicken. Remove the skillet from the fire. Cook the mixture. Whip until stiff but not dry 8 egg whites and ½ teaspoon salt. Fold them lightly into the apple mixture. Spread the souffle to the thickness of 1 inch in a large pan or glass dish. Sprinkle the top with a mixture of sugar, cinnamon, dry bread crumbs, and ¼ cub blanched shredded almonds. Bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees) until it is firm—about 45 minutes. As all the ingredients, except the egg whites, are cooked before they are baked, the cake may be eaten at any time, but it is advisable to bake it until the egg whites are set.

Cottage cheese combines with apples to make a nutritious and appealing salad service. The following is a delicious way to use these foods in combination with other foods:

Apple in Cottage Cheese—Wash and dice 3 apples without paring, and combine with 1 cup diced celery, ¼ cup sliced stuffed olives (or ½ cup diced cucumber), and ¼ cup sharp French dressing, and toss until well coated. On each salad plate place crisp lettuce leaves, then with a spoon shape 1/3 cup cottage cheese into a rough ring. Heap each ring with the apple mixture and sprinkle ½ cup chopped salted almonds over all. Finish off each serving with a topknot of fluffy salad dressing or mayonnaise. Serves six.

Two-In-One

If you are looking for a recipe that can serve in two ways, concentrate on the following one for apple sherbet. This concoction may be used as a dessert served with cookies or as the accompaniment to a meat course.

Apple Sherbet—To 2 cups well chilled applesauce, sieved, sweetened and flavored to taste, add 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Whip ½ cup whipping cream. Gradually add applesauce, continuing to beat until very stiff. Freeze in refrigerator tray until firm, but not ice hard. Stir with a fork and serve in sherbet glasses to accompany the meat course at dinner, or with cookies for a light dessert. Serves 4 to 6.

It doesn't require precious sugar to make apple fritters if you use corn sirup. You will like them made by the following recipe:

Apple Fritters—Sift 1 cup flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt. Beat 1 egg, add 3 tablespoons light corn syrup and 5 tablespoons milk and combine with dry ingredients. Add 2 apples, sliced thin. Mix thoroughly and drop by tablespoonsfuls into hot deep fat and fry till golden brown.

Use Orange Bread In Lunch Box

If you want a different kind of bread to use in making sandwiches for lunch box, consider orange bread. It has splendid keeping qualities and is made without sugar. The recipe follows:

Orange Bread—Cream one tablespoon butter with one cup honey. Add one egg and beat well. Sift together, 1/8 teaspoon salt, three cups enriched flour and 3½ teaspoons baking powder. Mix in one cup orange peel. Change the cream mixture to a large bowl and add the dry ingredients alternately with one cup milk. Mix only until well blended. Pour into a well-greased loaf pan and bake in a preheated oven, 350 degrees for one hour. To prepare the orange peel, cook in water until tender, then drain, cool and cut in thin strips. Chop or grind.

Celery and Olives Make Nutritious Soup

If you have some celery bits to use, make a soup of them. Stuffed or ripe olives will furnish additional flavor. The recipe follows:

Cream of Celery and Olive Soup—Melt 3 tablespoons butter in top of double boiler placed directly over heat. Add 1½ cups finely chopped celery and cook over low heat until tender, stirring frequently. Place over hot water. Add four tablespoons flour and mix well. Add one quart milk gradually and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add ¼ cup chopped stuffed or ripe olives and season with salt and pepper. Reheat. Serves six.

In-and-Out Linings

Really to rate, college coats have got to ring quick changes with the weather. Most boast reversible linings. Wear the lining when it's chilly—out with it when it's warm!

Escalloped Peas

Brazil's New Draft Law, Other Military Subjects Discussed by Be-Medeled Officers at Fete

"There's less khaki per man in uniform here than any place I can remember being," commented a United States Army officer yesterday afternoon as he surveyed the beribboned, beuniformed gathering in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower.

The elegance of whites was every place as the service set turned out at the bidding of the Brazilian Military, Air and Naval Attaches and their wives to a 6-to-8 o'clock reception. Purpose of the fete was to introduce the Brazilian members of the Joint Inter-American Defense Board and their wives to their service compatriots in the Capital. In the long line at the entrance of the Chinese Room were the Brazilian Military Attache and Mme. Bittencourt, who will return to Brazil next month, who introduced their guests to Maj. Gen. and Mme. Leitao de Cravalho; the Air Attache and Mme. Araripobia, who presented the continuous line of newcomers to Col. and Mme. Alves Secco, and the Naval Attache and Mme. Amorim do Valle, who introduced Mme. Rodrigues de Vasconcellos, wife of Vice Admiral Rodrigues de Vasconcellos. The vice admiral, who was slated to be one of the honor guests, was unable to attend because of illness.

Talk Is Largely Military

Like the company, the talk was largely military. Questions were asked fast and furiously by United States officers as to how the Brazilian draft law, passed the day before, would be working out. "Much like that of the United States," was the answer, with numbers being drawn for priorities in call-ups. Would there be a fishbowl? Even the well informed Brazilian officers found that a hard question to answer. What age-levels would be called? All men 21 years or over and perhaps ultimately as young as 17.

Was Brazil excited about the war? The answer was written in the faces of their nationals. Global strategy was exchanged over plates heaped high from the generous buffet, and groups clustered around the small tables set up in the ballroom. Gen. George Marshall, the United States Army Chief of Staff, found all heads turning in his direction as he made one of his rare party appearances with Mrs. Marshall. They later sat down to buffet supper with the honor guests.

Few Men Out of Uniform

Gold epaulettes and fourragere glistened in every corner as the service attaches from the Latin-American embassies and legations turned out in full force. Also present, almost to a man, were the members of the Joint Inter-American Defense Board. The few men present who were out of uniform looked hunted and unhappy.

The honor guests and their wives, who have been in the Capital about a month, have all found apartments at the Shoreham and are settling down here for the duration. Before taking over his present post, General Leitao de Carvalho served as commander of the northeastern military zone of Brazil—which encompasses the all-strategic coastal bulge. Vice Admiral Rodrigues de Vasconcellos, who will soon be on his feet again, has had a long experience in international naval relations, and Col. Alves Secco, the young and jaunty air officer, was formerly deputy chief of the aeronautical staff in Brazil.

None of Newcomers Speaks English

Though none of the newcomers speaks English wit hvery much assurance, they are learning fast and all of them speak French with fluidity. Delighted with the Capital, though not too enthusiastic about the present heat wave, the Brazilians listened eagerly to the guests' glowing description of a Washington autumn.

"Well," commented one of the ladies in the gathering—one of the greatly outnumbered ladies—"if men like that are planning hemisphere strategy, I'll soon be over my war jitters."

Betty Ramspeck To Be Married

Atlanta, Sept. 17 (AP).—The engagement of Betty Ramspeck and Lieut. John Stratton Leedy of the United States Air Corps was announced today. She is the younger daughter of Representative Robert Ramspeck and Mrs. Ramspeck. Lieutenant Leedy is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Stratton Leedy of Birmingham, Ala.

The marriage is to take place October 10 in the Decatur (Ga.) Presbyterian Church.

Helene Wallace to Be Married; Several Other Troths Told

Mrs. Michael Wallace of Clear View, Stafford County, Va., makes known the betrothal of her daughter, Helene Dickinson Wallace, to Muscoe Russell Hunter Garnett, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Mercer Garnett.

The bride-elect attended the University of Southern California and is a graduate of Mary Washington College. She is a member of the National Society of Colonial Dames. Mr. Garnett is a member of a family long distinguished in the annals of Virginia. His grandfather, Muscoe Russell Hunter Garnett, was a member of the U. S. and Confederate Congresses and was a nephew of Robert Mercer Taliaferro Hunter, Speaker of the House of Representatives, U. S. and Confederate Senator and Secretary of State of the Confederacy.

Elmwood, which has always remained in the Garnett family, was built just before the Revolution as the home of Mr. Garnett's great-great-grandfather, James Mercer Garnett. His wife was Mary Eleanor Dick Mercer, daughter of James Mercer, a member of Continental Congress and judge of the first Court of Appeals of Virginia.

The prospective bridegroom was educated at Trinity College School, Canada, and the University of Pennsylvania. He is a member of the Racquet and Tennis Club, New York; the Metropolitan Club, Washington, and the Edgartown (Mass.) Yacht Club. He lives here at the Carlton and is manager of the Washington office of Marsh & McLennan, insurance brokers. Plans are being made for an October wedding.

Gregerson-Barlow

Mrs. Merel A. Gregerson of Salt Lake City, Utah, announces the engagement of her daughter, Gloria Merle Gregerson of Washington, to Milton Allan Barlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Barlow, sr., of Clearfield, Utah.

Miss Gregerson, the daughter of the late James S. Gregerson, attended the University of Utah and is at present engaged in Government work here.

Mr. Barlow is a graduate of the George Washington University, the Harvard graduate school of business administration, and belongs to the Alpha Kappa Psi, national business fraternity.

The marriage will take place early in October in the Salt Lake Temple in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Brunstetter-Clark

Mrs. Frank H. Brunstetter of Williamsport, Pa., who has been spending the summer in Washington with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. K. B. Hamilton, announces the engagement of her daughter, Betty, to Lieut. George W. Clark, U. S. A., son of Mrs. J. S. J. Clark and the late J. S. J. Clark of White Oaks, Md.

Miss Burnstetter attended Dickinson Seminary at Williamsport, Pa., and was graduated from the College of William and Mary, where she was a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority. Her fiance attended Devitt and Swaverly schools and Antioch College. He is a member of the Seventh Regiment of New York City and he is at present stationed as an Engineer officer at Camp Claiborne, La. After their wedding, which will take place Saturday, September 26, at the Foundry Methodist Church, the couple will make their home at Alexandria, La.

'Say It With—'

When Modern Men Pick Posies They're Brilliant Red Roses

Washington's war-minded citizens are saying it with flowers on a larger scale than ever before. Furthermore, they are swinging in line with "the times" and saying it now with a profusion of brilliant red roses.

Mrs. J. Dan Blackistone of the Blackistone florist firm here reports this trend to red roses and other bright-hued flowers and accredits it to an inherent need for gaiety and courage.

"Most of our new orders are from men who are making their homes temporarily in the city. These men send flowers to their landladies or friends before leaving town. Their gesture is mixed with appreciation and the desire to cheer, hence, I suppose the unprecedented number of orders for red roses."

As in the last war, Mrs. Blackistone points out, there is little or no demand for pastel flowers. "The boys seem to want flowers that will strike the eye; something vivid and colorful that will help convey their emotions."

Bridal bouquets, of which there has been countless hundreds this year, continue to be of traditional white roses, gardenias and orchids. The effect of the war is seen, however, in the trend toward corsages rather than the formal arm or spray bouquets.

Tables Turned—

By Carolyn Bell

Since '41, the fancy-pants of the State Department have been shooting cultural attaches into Latin-America with astounding rapidity. And while these intellectuals have been the butt of many a joke they are producing. So the Latins think its high time they did same. The first bona fide attache to come here who answers to the name of "cultural" hails from Venezuela—a delightful fellow, Mariano Picon Salas, by name.

No mincer of words, the former director of the Venezuelan Press Office, thinks that "Latin America should develop an 'American conscience'." And apropos of up-

Actually the United States calls "Old line politicians and materialists of Venezuela, who 'think with their stomach' are disappearing—to be replaced by a generation with a liberal viewpoint."

Putting your finger on the specific duties of a cultural attache is something else again. It's like trying to find out the daily duties of a press agent. And actually that's what these men are, although the State Department would throw up its hands in horror at the mere notion. Selling is their line, whether its selling the United States of America or a country below the Rio Grande.

Actually the United States calls their men "Senior Cultural Relations Assistants"—just to make it all the more complicated. They are men of wide and varied experience. They may be authors and critics such as Hershel Brickell in Bogata . . . or college professors like Dr. Hayward Keniston soon to leave for Buenos Aires . . . artists of any type . . . the only real requirement being that they must speak the language fluently.

It is a two-way job and the attache not only has the selling to the United States to do, but of presenting the country they are working in to the people of this country. Showing movies is very important (especially documentary films) . . . getting favorable editorials into the papers . . . persuading publishers to translate good American books into Spanish or Portuguese, as the case may be . . . and magazines, too . . . radio broadcasts are vital . . . and last but not least arranging personal contacts for intellectuals of the two countries.

Student exchanges are of great importance and Senior Picon Salas expects to have much of his time taken up with these duties. At present there are a number of students from the United States studying in Caracas, and vice versa. And he is in hopes there will be many more. On a swing around this country (he arrived in July) Senor Picon Salas has been studying universities, lecturing and visiting various places of artistic interest. And now he is at his desk at the Embassy on Massachusetts Avenue where he expects to have lots of work to do.

Birth Announced

Mr. and Mrs. H. Nash Ogden of Baton Rouge, La., are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter born recently. The child has been named Mary Turner after her late grandmother, the former Miss Mary Turner of The Plains, Va. Mrs. Ogden was formerly Miss Katharine Sterling Smith of New Orleans and The Plains.

Laura Palmer Is Bride of Navy Officer

Joining the list of Navy brides last evening was Miss Laura Sawtell Palmer who walked down that well-known aisle at 8:30 p. m. to exchange vows with Ensign Theodore William Benedict. The ceremony took place at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Forrest Palmer, with Chaplain Robert D. Workman, U. S. Navy, officiating. Ensign Benedict is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Benedict of New Canaan, Conn.

In the absence of her father, who at present is in London, the bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Richard D. Sawtell of Atlanta. She wore a gown of ivory satin and rose point lace, designed with circular train and a fingertip veil edged with the same lace which was brought from Brussels by her grandmother. Her bouquet was of orchids and bouvardia and she carried a white prayerbook.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Miss Jeannette Palmer, who was attired in an azure blue velveteen dress and carried yellow gladioli. Another sister, Mrs. Earl Moses jr., acted as matron of honor, wearing a similar costume.

A reception followed immediately, and the couple left later for a wedding trip. The bride's traveling costume was of sky blue wool, with alligator accessories and an orchid corsage. They will make their home in New London, Conn., where the bridegroom is stationed. Mrs. Benedict is a graduate of Holton-Arms Junior College and Ensign Benedict received his degree from the U. S. Naval Academy with the class of '42.

Current Rumor Has Oswaldo Aranha on Way To Washington to Be White House Guest

With amazing regularity rumors continue to make the rounds that at least two highly popular foreigners will be Capital visitors—soon.

Since early in the year there has been a persistent report that Oswaldo Aranha, former Brazilian Ambassador here and now his country's Foreign Minister, would come to Washington for a series of conferences with the President. Equally persistent has been the rumor that Mme. Chiang Kai-shek would be here "sometime soon."

Many a reporter, worn weary with trying to check for facts on both reports, has begun to wonder whether either Aranha or Mme. Chiang ever had any intention of paying Washington a visit this year . . . particularly since staffs of both the Brazilian and the Chinese Embassies consistently decline to throw any light on either case.

I wonder just how many times in recent months the voice that answers the telephone at the Chinese Embassy has replied politely, "We have no official information about that," when asked the old familiar question about whether or when Mme. Chiang Kai-shek would come here. Yet the rumor continues to spread, and now is generally accepted as fact.

"Mme. Chiang Kai-shek really is coming, you know," is what you hear on all sides. And if you ask when, the answer invariably is the same: "Soon; some time soon."

Even sooner than that is the current report regarding the arrival here of Aranha. Seems the personable minister who numbers his friends here by the hundreds is expected to be here next week and will be a White House guest during his stay.

Once more, I inquired at the Brazilian Embassy about it. "We have no official notification," was the reply. Well, that's a bit different, anyway. I've a feeling Aranha actually is on the way this time.

Rustlings by Way Of Local Grapevine

Darts and Dashes: Around Washington they're saying that if Clare Boothe Luce wins her current race, she will run for the Presidency in 1944—and then Henry Luce can write "My Day." . . . If Mrs. Harry Hopkins paid heed to all invitations to support "causes" coming her way at present, she wouldn't have a free minute. Right now she's up to her pretty ears in plans for the Red Cross nurses' aid rally next week (she's chairman of the program). Recently, she also agreed to serve as senior hostess for the American Theater Wing of the Stage Door Canteen. . . . While Myron C. Taylor returns to Italy to resume his duties as President Roosevelt's personal representative at the Vatican, Mrs. Taylor will remain at their home in New York. She's another well-known hostess who is devoting every possible moment to war work. . . . Detroiters in Washington tell me that Mrs. Dorothy Kemp Roosevelt, Democratic nominee from the Seventeenth Congressional District, is one of the liveliest campaigners ever to mount a Michigan platform. Many are predicting she will be victor in November, despite the fact the district in which she is running has been hide-bound Republican for years.

Wedding Bells Soon At Holland House

This seems to be my rumor-compiling day. From a friend in New York comes word that Merle Rutherford is to be married here within the next few days. The prospective bridegroom is Dr. Paul Casten, heart specialist, of Chicago, and the romance began a few years ago when Miss Rutherford was accompanying her aunt, Mrs. B. Fleming Holland of Alexandria, on a trip abroad.

Some fact-checking here reveals the rumor will be a fact tomorrow night. The wedding will take place at Holland House, Mrs. Holland's home in Alexandria. It's to be a quiet affair, witnessed only by relatives and a few close friends.

Last I heard of Miss Rutherford she was off on a very successful dance tour and was toying with the idea of casting her lot in Hollywood. At that time—two years ago—she was planning a swing through the East with Charles Sabin and an opening in a swank New York supper club. Having studied dancing for a number of years under Ruth St. Denis and Albertina Rasch, she volunteered to fill in as a professional dancer one evening at Cairo's famous Shepherd Hotel when the artist of the evening failed to appear. Her success there led to a decision for a dance career in America later. Now she's getting married.

Dr. Casten will be her second husband. Her first was the late playboy, Jack de Ruyter, whom she married just after she made her debut in New York. She was his second wife, his first being Lois Clarke de Ruyter Spreckels Clinton. The De Ruyter-Rutherford marriage lasted four months, and shortly after the divorce Merle and her aunt went abroad. Merle's father, an Englishman, died when she was 3 years old. For the past few years, when not on a dance tour or abroad, she has made her home with her mother, Mrs. Merle Holland Deane, in New York.

Purely Personal

The Commandant of the Marine Corps, Lieut. Gen. Thomas Holcomb and Mrs. Holcomb had a few guests for dinner last evening at their quarters at the Marine Barracks. At luncheon yesterday Mrs. Holcomb was honored at a party given by Mrs. Harry Schmidt at the Army-Navy Town Club.

Colonel and Mrs. J. Frank Morrow have returned to their apartment at the Shoreham after spending several months in the Rocky Mountains of New Mexico.

Mrs. Martha Robbins Gold entertained at dinner at the Mayflower Hotel on Wednesday in honor of Miss Dorothy Lucile Brown and Robert Andrew Haines, whose marriage will take place this afternoon. Miss Brown is the daughter of Representative and Mrs. Clarence J. Brown of Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith will entertain at a dinner on Saturday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Carmichael.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Miller and their family have returned to their home in Chevy Chase after spending several months in Charlottesville, Va.

Lieut. Schottler And Bride Now On Wedding Trip

Lieut. Donald Charles Schottler, United States Naval Reserve, and his bride, the former Miss Leona Marie Hickman, will make their home at 741 Albama Avenue, upon their return from their wedding trip. Mrs. Hickman is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. G. L. Hickman of Bryant, S. Dak., and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. H. C. Schottler of St. Paul, Minn.

Their marriage took place last Saturday at the Mount Vernon Methodist Church with the Rev. John W. Rustin officiating. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a white lace dress, designed with tight bodice and short train. She carried an heirloom lace handkerchief and a bouquet of white roses and asters. Mrs. Anna Vander Veer served as matron of honor and other attendants were Mrs. Ruth Smith, Mrs. Elsie Wilson and Mrs. Marjorie Emerson. Keith Schottler of St. Paul acted as best man and ushers were Lieut. W. R. McClellan, Lieut. F. S. Gettys and T. B. Smith. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride. She is a graduate of Hibbing College and the bridegroom attended the College of Engineering and Architecture at the University of Minnesota.

Army Orders Change Place Of Wedding

The wedding went off as scheduled—but in Georgia instead of Virginia. Miss Anne Sharpe Meade of Millwood, Clark County, Va., and Lieut. Thomas Briscoe Clagett, United States Army, were supposed to have been married on Tuesday evening at the Episcopal Church in Millwood, with a large reception to follow.

However, due to that old bugaboo, "Army orders," the invitations had to be recalled and several parties canceled. The wedding instead took place at Fort Benning, Ga., following the bridegroom's graduation from Officer Candidate School.

Lieutenant Clagett was unable to get leave as he is to be sent immediately to Communication School. So the bride and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Meade, and Miss Elizabeth Denny, maid of honor, left on Monday for Georgia, where the wedding took place on Tuesday after all. Lieutenant Clagett is the son of Mrs. Joseph Clagett of Hamilton, Va.

Miss Wagner to Wed Richard F. Tucker

Mr. and Mrs. Warren H. Wagner announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Evelyn Ruth Wagner, to Richard Francis Tucker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Tucker of Silver Spring, Md.

The wedding is to take place in October.

Fitzhugh Turner to Be Manager of Virginia Paper

The service is taking its toll of the staff of the Fauquier Democrat, a weekly paper published in the Virginia hunt country—but "it's an ill wind—" and a new arrival on the paper, Fitzhugh Turner, is being warmly welcomed in Warrenton and surrounding territory.

Mr. and Mrs. Turner have come from New Orleans, La., where he was formerly with the Times Picayune, and are accompanied by their daughter, Miss Helen Turner. He will succeed J. Alfred Austin, who is entering the service, as business manager of the paper. Hubert B. Phipps, owner, editor and publisher, left in July to enter the Coast Guard Patrol in Florida.

No strangers to Fauquier County, the Turners have visited there often. At present they are stopping with his cousin, N. C. Heinken, at Carter Hall in Warrenton, until they move into their new home on Culpeper Street. Mr. Turner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fitzhugh Turner, sr., who left Virginia a few years ago to make their home in California. He is the grandson of Mrs. Horatio Turner of Princeton, N. J., who spends much of her time in Virginia.

Feminine Steps in Lima Lead to Red Cross Classes

By Genevieve Reynolds
The Post Club Editor.

ALL FEMININE STEPS in Lima, Peru, now lead to Red Cross first-aid classes. Society belles and office workers, as well as household maids, put in several hours a week learning the ins and outs of first aid. So reports melodious-voiced Senorita Carmen Rosa Andraca.

Miss Reynolds

In town as her country's (Peru) delegate to the International Students Youth Conference, the stately senorita says that Red Cross work so far is the chief wartime work of women in her native land.

To Senorita Josephina Tudella, she gives the credit for starting and stimulating an interest of first aid in Peru. After living in Washington for several years with her father, Dr. Francisco Tudella, who came to the States as his country's special Ambassador, Senorita Andraca returned to Lima and started first-aid courses there.

Can't See Uniforms

As a whole, Senorita Andraca doesn't think that the women of her country are yet sufficiently war conscious. Anyway, she can't see them in uniforms similar to our WAACS and WAVES. However, she admits that she has been out of the country since last February and gets her information from letters and the home-town newspapers.

Back in Peru, she is librarian in the National College of Engineering. For seven months she has been studying library science at the University of Michigan. She holds an exchange fellowship with the American Library Association.

SENORITA CARMEN ROSA ANDRACA

When she first arrived in the country, she spoke no English. During one whole semester she attended classes and just listened. In that way, she learned enough English to start in as a regular student in three or four months. Yesterday, she was courageous enough to grant an interview in English.

While there are few women's clubs in Lima, Senorita Andraca says that as women gain more and more freedom there, their interest in clubs mounts. Emphasis on existing clubs are social and cultural rather than professional in nature. The Entre Nous is an old, established club in Lima that has been a rendezvous for the culture-minded women of Peru.

Sincerely desirous that North and South Americans understand and like each other better, she said: "We need to know each other better. In general people of the United States have wrong opinions of the Latin countries.

"When people from the United States go to my country they make the mistake of staying in their own groups. It would make for much happier relations if they would live with and mingle with the native people of the country."

Also, she thinks it would be a good idea for citizens of the United States to learn Spanish and for the Spanish-speaking Latins to master English.

In order to better permanently international relations after the war, Senorita Andraca suggests the exchange of students on a large scale. While she thinks the exchange of students should extend to all nations, she is convinced that the larger portion should be between the Latin Americans and North Americans.

Liking Will Be Mutual

"If students will go to other countries and learn the customs and languages," she declared, then they will like the people and the people in turn will like them and their nation.

Not only should there be an exchange of scholars but of lawyers, doctors, clerks, typists, librarians and farmers, according to her way of thinking.

Pointing out the fact that Peruvian women now are beginning to go in for careers, she predicts that after the war they will have more and more opportunities. "By the way," she added, "the chaperon is fast dsiappearing in my country. Now we can attend social functions, have dates without them."

Senorita Andraca is a society girl of Lima, but is seriously concerned with a librarian's career. She was educated at the exclusive Convent of Sacred Heart in Peru.

AW.V.S. Style Show to Raise Nursery Fund

The fashion show, featuring Hattie Carnegie's and a well known local store's advance styles, will include inexpensive as well as more costly creations.

Quite aside from the creations displayed on Miss Carnegie's own models brought down from New York for the occasion, there is always the dazzling possibility that the number at the top of one's program may call for one of the exceedingly worth-while door prizes.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Henry Wallace head the sponsor list for this event for which tickets may be bought at the door.

Among those attending will be Mrs. Emory Land, Mrs. Joseph Hines, Mrs. Claude Pepper, Mrs. Lawrence Robert, Mrs. Arthur Fowler, Mrs. Randall Hagner, Mrs. Prentiss Coonley, Mrs. Thomas Cowell, Mrs. Angier Biddle Duke, Mrs. Francis Freed, Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. Harold Walker, Mrs. Lawrence Houghteling and Mrs. Edward Stotesbury.

Prominent among the women who have taken tables at which to entertain their friends while models leisurely promenade are Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, Mrs. Mark O'Dea, Mrs. J. R. Williams, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Miss Pauletta Guffey. One anonymous patron purchased a table "to be given to six service men." Perhaps he felt a scattering of uniforms would add spice to the occasion and serve to point up the sleek black satins and jetty velvets.

Mrs. Joseph E. Davies has turned her box over to Lady Willmott Lewis, who will entertain Mrs. Cordell Hull and a group of distinguished guests.

Speaking of uniforms, Miss Anita Phipps, president of the Washington unit, AWVS, will have as her guests in the official box Mrs. Preston Delano, Mrs. G. Howland Chase, Mrs. William J. Flather, jr., Mrs. Daniel Long, Mrs. Conyers Reed, Mrs. Dean Acheson and Mrs. H. H. Slocum.

Nearby in Mrs. Joseph Himes' box will be still another group of uniformed AWVS section chiefs, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mrs. Nathan Wyeth, Mrs. Lynne Lamm, Miss Alice Fowler, Mrs. William Ritchie.

D.A.R. Hears Edmund Randolph Extolled as 'Forgotten Man' of American History

EDMUND RANDOLPH, a framer of the Constitution of the United States of America and an early Governor of Virginia, has become one of history's "forgotten men," according to Charles Sager Collier, professor of law at George Washington University, who addressed the District of Columbia Daughters of the American Revolution at its celebration of the 155th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution last evening at the Chapter House, 1732 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest.

Professor Collier, who was introduced by Mrs. Wilfred J. Clearman, State historian, said in substance, that despite the fact that Randolph was a leading figure at the convention and the author of the "Virginia plan," history has failed to award him the recognition due so valuable a contribution.

Presiding over the meeting was State Regent Mrs. Geoffrey Creyke.

A full half-hour of concert music, rendered by the United States Navy Band Orchestra, under the baton of Lieut. Charles Brendler, opened the program. As the orchestra swung into the strains of "America the Beautiful" pages, clad in white, advanced in presentation of the colors. Immediately following was the processional of St. Paul's Methodist Church Choir in vestments. Other numbers sung by the choir included the anthem, "Glorious Is Thy Name," Kipling's "Recessional," as a bass solo by Randy Meyers, and the nostalgic "Hills of Home," as a tenor solo by J. Nelson Anderson, director of the choir. Mrs. J. Nelson Anderson, State chairman of American music committee, was the accompanist.

Invocation was offered by the Rev. Seth R. Brooks, D. D., of the Universalist National Memorial Church; the pledge of allegiance to the flag was led by Mrs. Carols Campbell, State chairman of the correct use of the flag, and the Preamble to the Constitution was led by Miss Lillian Chenoweth, vice president general of the national society.

Among the large audience were Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, honorary vice president general of the national society, and Miss Janet Richards, each enjoying the distinction of membership in the society since the year it was organized.

Others present were Col. F. Granville Munson, president of the Sons of the American Revolution; Robert H. McNeill, vice president of the Sons of the American Revolution, and Mrs. Frank Heller, president of the Children of the American Revolution.

Add German Brutality

London, Sept. 17 (AP).—A Reuters dispatch from Istanbul today quoted Belgrade reports that the Germans had shot all male inhabitants of four Yugoslav villages and sent the women and children to concentration camps in reprisal for the blowing up of a German military train.

Th train, carrying trops and war supplies, was blown up by Serbian irregulars on September 10, it was stated, and many young officers on their way to reinforce Marshal Rommel's Africa corps were killed.

Stimson Explains Student Call

Secretary Stimson declared yesterday that the Army's decision to call virtually all student enlisted reservists who are of draft age does not mean "the end of all higher eduaction for the duration of the war."

He said his announcement of a week ago—that all or most of the college enlisted reserves who are 20 or more years old will be called at the end of fall term—had created a "misapprehension that should be corrected."

"The Army is greatly in need of men of specialized training, particularly in physics, chemistry, engineering and medicine," he stated. "We are equally interested in having adequate numbers of men of such training available to war production industries and civilian research agencies of the Government.

"Plans are now being worked out for the method of training of those inducted into the Army, but in any event it is hoped that the colleges will maintain their training of students in engineering, medicine and other sciences. In some cases, it will be necessary to expand this training."

Stimson pointed out that local draft boards are instructed to defer for occupational reasons certain specified students and teachers considered essential to the war effort. He declared that such persons should remain in college until called, as "they are doing the job their country wants them to do."

The Secretary of War also announced that the Army was doubling the capacity of its Medical Administrative Corps Officer Candidate School at Camp Barkeley, Tex., to help relieve the shortage of doctors and dentists in service and in civilian life.

Medical Administrative Corps officers relieve medical and dental officers from administrative work in hospitals so they may have more time for professional duties.

Venereal disease is substantially less than during the last war and the syphilis rate now is the lowest in Army history, it was said.

'Battle of Midway,' 'Tish' In Contrast at Capitol

Technicolor War Epic Overpowers All Else On Bill of Laughter, Music and the Dance; An 'Encore' Stage Revue of Show-Stoppers

"TISH." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a screen play by Harry Ruskin, based on characters in the Mary Roberts Rinehart stories, featuring Marjorie Main, ZaSu Pitts and Aline MacMahon, with Lee Bowman, Richard Quine, Virginia Grey, Susan Peters, Guy Kibbee, Ruby Dandridge, Al Shean and Robert Emmett O'Connor. Directed by S. Sylvan Simon. At Loew's Capitol.

"THE BATTLE OF MIDWAY" must overshadow every other feature on any screen bill on which it is shown, and this includes a majority of the downtown motion picture programs that went on view yesterday. Briefest of the major attractions, it overwhelmed everything else presented yesterday at Loew's Capitol Theater.

MARJORIE MAIN

This United States Navy official film record of the American victory at Midway Island is the most thrilling, most inspiring and most poignant release that has come to the screen since the outbreak of the war. Executed in Technicolor, it depicts land, sea and air aspects of the fighting with a vividness and realism that is unprecedented in photographic reporting. So close was John Ford's camera to the action that its film was constantly thrown out of frame by the violence of the bomb explosions. No studio staging here, or any of the trickery of a planned script, but the stark reality of bitter and triumphant conflict.

There is, however, tremendous effectiveness in the shrewdly dramatic manner of the film's assemblage. It opens with scenes of tranquil beauty on Midway, with no signs of the tempestuous action to follow. Soon the enemy forces are sighted, the flying fields and plane carriers loose their warbirds, shore batteries thunder and battleship broadsides roar. Utter chaos and destruction sweep the scene. The audience is in the front line of battle.

Then the comparative calm after the storm of fire and steel. The havoc wrought on Midway is fully and frankly revealed. The air fighters return, some of them after five, eight and as many as 11 days without food, drink or sleep. The wounded are rushed to such refuges as remain after the Jap bombing of the hospital, with its huge Red Cross painted on the roof. The dead are buried. The Stars and Stripes wave gloriously and defiantly over the island that paid off in part for Pearl Harbor.

America's spirit, heroism and unconquerable will to win is in "The Battle of Midway." The commentary is spoken by Donald Crisp, Jane Darwell and Henry Fonda. It is the screen's epic of the war to date.

"Tish," the ostensible feature of the Capitol's new bill, should by all means be seen first. Even so, it will prove a terrific anticlimax. This Harry Ruskin fiction, culled from the characters and adventures created by Mary Roberts Rinehart in her short stories, is harvested staight from the maize patch for most of its length. The huskingbee turns up an amazing succession of comedy sequences right off the cob, with the three aging spinsters, Tish, Aggie and Lizzie, the pivots of all of the antic developments a resourceful scripter could contrive. In its obvious and slapstick way, "Tish" succeeds in being hilariously laughable more often than not. Strictly smalltown in locale, characters and intimacies, the thing is outrageously farcical until a serious domestic situation, involving two couples of youthful romanticists, pulls the thing up short long enough to give the picture some claim to dramatic integrity. It reverts to form, nevertheless, in time for the final fadeout.

Played by Well-Typed Cast

There can be scant quibbling with the cast over the quality of its performance, once the irresponsible character of the story is recognized and accepted. In the title role of the village busybody, ready to mind everybody's business but her own, Marjorie Main is extremely well met. So are ZaSu Pitts and Aline MacMahon as the accessories to all of her meddling and her Spartan effort to protect the youngsters she loves from the penalties of a situation which she completely misinterprets. Her mothering of the "foundling," whose parentage is always secure, as things turn out, is as comic a conception as has come along in months. Guy Kibbee is wholly effective as the chief antagonist of the maiden ladies, and the impetuous spirit of youth is nicely managed by Richard Quine, Virginia Grey and Susan Peters, with Lee Bowman falling somewhere between the two contesting camps. Yesterday's capacity house was tremendously enthusiastic over the whole thing.

On the stage, practically every act comprising the "Encore" revue was a show-stopper the first time out. As the title indicates, all have established themselves as Washington favorites on previous visits. Sharing headline honors are Patricia Bowman, the Capital's own ballerina, whose modern and classic ballets are things of sheer beauty in grace and thythmic perfection, and Jack Durant, who is still "destroying himself" in his familiar routine of Hollywood impersonations, wise-crackery and burlesque acrobatics, in which repose the seeds of skilled aglity in the real thing. Crowding close in public favor are The Vikings, that rousing male sextet, specializing in marital numbers from the operettas, ballads and patriotic medleys. They had to beg off from further encores because they had exhausted their repertoire of rehearsed numbers. Gordon's Dogs, one of the best comedy canine acts extant, take no back seat in the matter of applause. The Rhythm Rockets are conspicuous assets throughout.

Fox Movietone News and orchestral overture, with Lynn Allison shinfng in the "Italian Street Song," round out a bill of extraordinary popular appeal, if seen in the proper order.

Metropolitan

The Panama Canal is made safe from sabotage largely through the efforts of Humphrey Bogart, in an exciting yarn entitled "Across The Pacific," which plays for a second week at the Metropolitan. With the same trio of actors and the director who made a hit of "The Maltese Falcon" the story tells of a plot against America's life line which is broken up by a cashiered Army officer. Mary Astor and Sydney Greenstreet are importantly cast as the romantic interest and the menace, respectively. On the same bill is "World At War," a pictorial record of the military events of the latest decade, and "The Battle of Midway" presented by the United States Government.

Earle

Someone might well award the Congressional Medal of Honor to Warner Bros. for their superb production of "Yankee Doodle Dandy," based on the life of America's favorite flag-waver, George M. Cohan. A really super morale-builder, the picture contains many of the unforgettable tunes that made Cohan the number one entertainer of his time. In the title role James Cagney tops all his previous screen characterizations and throws in some elegant singing and dancing as well. The songs you'll be humming all over again include "Over There," "Mary's a Grand Old Name," "You're a Grand Old Flag," and "Give My Regards to Broadway." Supporting Cagney are Walter Huston, Joan Leslie, Irene Manning, Richard Whorf and a host of others.

Two-Way Watcher

RKO-Keith's

Merriment goes unrestrained as RKO-Keith's holds over for a second week the latest Abbott and Costello farce bearing the nonsequitous title of "Pardon My Sarong." The background and plot become secondary to the antics of Mr. Abbott who invariably finds himself in hot water, and the frantic activity of Mr. Costello who is required to pull him out of it. Somewhere along the way they find themselves involved in a theft and kidnaping which winds up on a South Sea island. The supporting cast includes Virginia Bruce, Leif Erikson, Robert Paige, Nan Wynn and Lionel Atwill. Plus "The Battle of Midway."

Rainbow Chasers

Chasing a rainbow and capturing it in all the glory of its coloring for a film scene in Technicolor was the feat performed by Director Fred Wilcox and Len Smith, cameraman.

They were doing location filming in Eastern Washington for "Lassie Come Home," when a sudden shower hit, followed by a gorgeous rainbow. Hastily setting up their camera, they then moved the action of the story to a spot where in the rainbow formed a background and obtained an entire sequence before it faded.

One in Hollywood, Too!

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 17. The Hollywood canteen, headed by Bette Davis and a raft of others, opens Saturday, October 3. That will be an opening to remember. They're doing the unusual, and a mighty good thing, too. For years we've built bleachers opposite theaters so fans from out of town can watch the stars go by. For the Hollywood canteen they've reversed that procedure.

BETTE DAVIS

They'll build bleachers, all right, but the top stars and high hats of Hollywood will pay $50 a seat for the privilege of watching the real stars of today—soldiers, sailors and marines—enter the canteen which our Hollywood affiliated unions have built to accommodate 3000 boys a night—in two shifts, from 6 o'clock to midnight.

Priscilla Lane is not only out of "The Powers Girl," but I believe she has retired from the screen. It's well known Priscilla never was what you might call an avid movie fan. She's madly in love with her husband and is living quietly with him in Victorville.

Mrs. John Huston didn't go to Reno, after all. She's in New York. There'll be no divorce. Husband John goes into active duty almost at once.

The morning Bob Hope and his troupe were leaving for Alaska they received a telegram cancelling their trip. Bob was so disappointed he sent a wire back which was so funny a telephone call came thru saying, "Forget my wire—you're on your way."

Our motion picture relief fund home will be dedicated September 27. There are 24 guest cottages, 16 of which haven't yet received donors. They cost $1500 each. It's gratifying to know that some Midwest exhibitors pooled together and donated a bungalow in honor of Frank Freeman, head of Paramount.

Freeman donated one himself. All our English actors pooled together and donated one. 'Tis named "Winston Churchill" and will house dear old lionel Belmore who, after 25 years here, is still a British subject.

Director Woody Van Dkye, bless him, gave four units, and Mark Sandrich, two.

Dave Grover, former soda jerker at Schwab's drug store, now stationed somewhere in England, writes: "I've done lots of traveling. I like Englishmen. They're cordial and sincere. When they ask you to have a drink, they never allow you to pay. The British tommy is a rare specimen of manhood. Over here you realize how far the U. S. A. is from being war-conscious. The Hollywood influence is very great here. They're crazy about pictures. Can't get lipstick or nail polish, so please, instead of cigarettes, Hedda, send those. English girls would rather have them than diamonds."

It wouldn't surprise anyone if Bonita Granville and Jackie Cooper marry when she joins him on his eastern camp tour. On Jackie's return, he'll enlist in the Army.

Gossip From Gotham

New York, Sept. 17.

During the Washington sessions of the International Student Assembly, the British delegation was unable to agree upon a proper solution of the India problem. This delegation consisted of an aviator, a desert fighter, a seaman and a minister. The three student-warriors then decided to let the minister, the Rev. Alan Booth, meet with the students from India and try to work out a compromise with them . . . Booth and the Indian students met and came to a quick agreement. Reporters then gathered around them. "I must submit this to my colleagues first," said the Rev. Mr. Booth. "Since I'm giving the British Empire away, it's only sporting that I tell them that I'm an Irishman."

Hammett, a disabled veteran of the last war, became ill after eating bananas to make the weight.

Michael Todd, the producer of "Star & Garter," has purchased the Paul Meltsner portrait of Gypsy Rose Lee and will exhibit it in the lobby of the Music Box Theater . . . Commissioners Urge 9 Changes In Tax Laws

The District Commissioners in a report to the Senate District Committee yesterday recommended nine changes in the bill to amend local laws in relation to tax exemptions.

Chairman McCarran then postponed the committee's vote on the measure until Tuesday morning to permit members to study the recommendations.

Renah F. Camalier, special committee assistant, termed six of the proposed changes "minor"—but said three would require considerable change.

A subcommittee of the House is studying its own tax exemption bill that provides regulations governing the taxes that should be collected from religious, educational, charitable, and scientific institutions.

The Commissioners asked for a clarification of the law and are urging a more strict and specific wording than either committee seems willing to grant.

Small Packers Of Pork to Get Subsidies

Agriculture Department subsidies for small packers of pork who face losses because of rising prices and ceilings on the selling price of pork were announced yesterday by Secretary Wickard.

The subsidies will be paid on hog purchases made by packers who agree to sell up to 60 per cent of their hog production to the Commodities Credit Corporation for Government and lend-lease needs. The payments will be limited to the percentage of hog purchases necessary to meet the agreements.

Under the plan, the small packers, defined as those who killed less than 250,000 hogs in 1941, will be paid 25 cents a hundred pounds on purchases for each 25 cents by which a seven-market average price exceeds $13.50, the level when pork ceilings were imposed. A fraction of 25 cents will be disregarded.

Kaiser Plane Plan Decision Expected Today

Washington Bureau of Chicago Sun

Official sources indicated late yesterday that disposition will be made today of Henry J. Kaiser's proposal to build giant cargo planes.

An announcement that War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson and the West Coast shipbuilder had finished their business and that a decision was reached had been expected all day. At the last minute, however, an official announced that Kaiser did not meet with Nelson yesterday and that in all likelihood action woud be taken today.

Although officials refused to hazard a guess on what Kaiser would receive, other sources have said he would be permitted to make two or three of the Howard Hughes-designed cargo ships on an experimental basis, and that if the experimental planes show any promise he will get a contract more closely approximating his desires.

Heath Awarded Army Silver Star Posthumously

Corpl. Clifton C. Heath, jr., who was reported missing after the Battle of Midway, has been given the posthumous award of the Army's Silver Star for "distinguished service against the Japs," it was announced yesterday by the War Department.

The award, which was made with 19 others at Hickam Field, Honolulu, was received by Red Cross Nurse Mrs. Richard Penhallow and will be sent to his father, Clifton C. Heath of 3408 Pershing Drive, Arlington, Va.

Corporal Heath, a former student at Washington-Lee High School in Arlington, enlisted in the Army in 1936 and reenlisted in the Air Forces in 1940. He was stationed at Hickam Field at the time of the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Allied Bombers Hit Bengasi, Ships

Cairo, Sept. 17 (AP).—Allied heavy bombers made a daylight attack yesterday on the Axis supply port of Bengasi, more than 500 miles west of the Egyptian battlefront, scoring hits on two ships and setting one afire, a British communique announced today.

At the same time, the bulletin said, British fighters were active over the battle area, shooting down at least two enemy aircraft and damaging many others. One British plane failed to return to base.

On the previous night Tobruk, also a vital Axis supply port, was blasted by heavy bombers.

There have been no activities on the land front except for patrol skirmishes and artillery exchanges, the communique said.

Negro Council Asks Elimination Of Segregation

Immediate abolition of all racial segregation in station terminals, railroads, ships, buses, taxis and airlines was urged yesterday by the National Negro Council lest irreparable damage be done to the moral of 13 million loyal and patriotic Negroes in this Nation.

The council, which opened a two-day session in the Vermont Avenue Baptist Church yesterday, unanimously adopted a resolution calling on President Roosevelt to order Defense Transportation Director Joseph Eastman to abolish segregation.

Edgar G. Brown, director of the council, cited numerous instances in his opening speech of alleged "inhuman treatment and Nazi tactics" perpetrated against Negro soldiers riding on common carriers in the South.

Next Year Most Critical of War, Fraser Warns

Wellington, New Zealand, Sept. 17.—Prime Minister Peter Fraser declared today that next year would be the most critical of the war and "we must steel ourselves to meet it." He made the observation in an interview on his return from the United States.

The United Nations are getting into the full stride of production, Fraser said, and the great records of this year will be exceeded by "colossal" marks in the coming 12 months.

To cope with the "obviously serious" Pacific situation, Fraser said, it would not be adequate simply to hold the enemy. The United Nations must take the offensive, and to do this, he said, every possible strengthening of their forces must be undertaken.

Prison Clerk's Wife Flees Abductors; One Recaptured

Chillicothe, Ohio, Sept. 17 (AP).—Two Federal Reformatory prisoners today abducted the wife of Chief Clerk R. W. Meier and forced her to drive them to Ashland, Ky., where she escaped unharmed and gave an alarm which resulted in the capture of one.

Associate Warden Allen L. Shank said the men were Robert William Cote, 17, of Williamatic, Conn., and Jack H. Triplett, 20, of Cromona, Ky., both serving 2-year sentences for auto theft.

The men, who worked as yard boys, went to the Meier residence at 2:30 p. m. and abducted Mrs. Meier after inducing her 3-year-old child, Diane, to go to the playroom.

$16,500 In Fees Voted To Counsel In Langer Case

The Senate voted yesterday to pay $16,500 in fees to attorneys in hearings at which a group of North Dakota citizens sought unsuccessfully to unseat Senator Langer (Republican) of North Dakota.

The action was taken after the Senators rejected, 33 to 25, an amendment by Senator Norris (Independent) of Nebraska to reduce the fees—to be divided between counsel for Langer and his opponents—to $10,000.

Langer opposed the reduction but told the Senate he would offer legislation later to prevent any payments to petitioning counsel in the future except where their services were authorized by Congress.

The Senate voted several months ago to reject a petition in which Langer's fitness for office was challenged.

"Fees should not be made so attractive that lawyers will be tempted to bring such peitions," Norris declared. He added that fees of such size "threw out invitations" for contests.

Rich Girl-Poor Girl

By FAITH BALDWIN

Chapter XXIII

LUNCH was pleasant in the big, raftered dining room. Mrs. Sutton, in white, murmured drowsy amiabilities. Jonathan thought, I'll bet she doesn't know my name even yet and as for Rose, she's confused her half a dozen times with two of those out-of-town girls. It must be marvelous to live like that—like something under water.

FAITH BALDWIN

After lunch they rested, exerted themselves at croquet and then rested again. Staring over past the Dexter Island, Sally said, "I believe that's Larry."

"Where?" asked Jonathan idly.

"Leaving the mainland. In a punt. Phil and his party took the big motor boat and the speedboat isn't in commission. He's got a girl with him. I thought," she added, "that I saw him on the road, hell bent for leather in his car when I went uptown with the crowd."

Rose sat upright and looked across lawn and through the gap in the trees to the water. She said, "It looks like Millie Downing," in tones of apprehension.

"Well, what of it?" asked Sally.

Rose said sharply,

"Plenty. Her people have forbidden her to have anything to do with Larry . . . and you remember the episode at the Country Club? Is Mrs. Dexter on the island today?" she asked, knowing that the boy's mother had not been down the river during the weekend.

"Why, no," replied Sally slowly, "she isn't. Just Phil and his father and some men; and Larry, of course. For heaven's sake, Rose, why get all hot and bothered? Larry's just taking her out for a row or something. It's perfectly harmless."

"He's not!" said Rose angrily.

Sally surveyed her coldly. She said, "The Dexters are the best friends I have. There's nothing the matter with Larry. He's a little grown up for a hick town, at his age, I admit. But he's capable of taking care of himself. I wouldn't set myself up as a guardian of minor morals if I were you, Rose. Can't you forget you're a school teacher?"

"No," said Rose, "I can't," too worried for anger.

Jonathan roused himself. He had been dreaming of—he hardly knew what. He'd felt extraordinarily young again, and carefree and happy. Now he said, "Look here, you girls—"

"What about us?" asked Sally.

"Nothing, only I think Rose is right."

Sally shrugged again. She said, "Talk about tempests in a teapot! Just because the poor kid takes a town girl rowing."

Rose disliked her tone. Town girl indeed! What was Sally Sutton but a town girl, born and bred in Riverport. You couldn't change that, not all the interludes of Florida and Europe and cities and boarding schools could alter the fact.

They First See The Coming Storm

"Speaking of tempests," said Jonathan, staring.

The clouds had come up swiftly, as they do on that great, magnificent, treacherous river. They were not mere thunderheads, precursors of a swift, brief storm. They were bad clouds. The sun darkened and a wind came up. It came up with the rapidity of sudden death, it whipped the glass-smooth surface of the water into choppy waves, and now the water was no longer blue, but a sullen dirty green, angry and menacing.

"For heaven's sake!" he said staring at the phenomenon which was entirely new to him.

Rose had jumped to her feet. She said, with agitation,

"Larry and that girl! In that little punt. They must be half way across. We must send someone after them."

Sally said, troubled,

"We can't. There's no one at Dexter's and there's no one at our farm. They've gone into town. I let the men off, too . . . told them to come back in time to take us across after dinner tonight."

Rose said frantically, "I don't care about Larry Dexter . . . but Millie."

"Hold on," said Jonathan gently, "are you sure they're in any real danger? Can't they put in somewhere," he asked vaguely, "until it blows over?"

"No," said Rose, "they can't. You don't know this river, Jon." she turned to Sally. She said, "You do."

Sally said, "Phil and his party didn't expect to come back until late. They're way up the river anyway." She stared at the other girl. She said slowly, "I came back to the island in the farm outboard this morning. It's the only boat over here, aside from a canoe and the punt."

Rose said, "It's the best . . . much better than the speed boat." She looked at Jonathan . . . "Can you run it?" she demanded.

"Yes," said Jonathan briefly, "I can."

"Then," said Rose, "we've got to get along."

Sally said, "But you can't . . . I mean . . . they'll get back all right . . . It's absurd."

Rose was on her feet. Now the sky was a dull sodden gray and the wind was rising. Rain had begun to fall in slanting sheets. The little choppy waves were big waves.

Jonathan rose quietly. He said, "come on then. Show me where the boat is. I'll go out after them."

"Down at the landing," began Sally but he was running as she spoke. She said angrily to Rose . . . "I've never heard of anything as crazy . . . he hasn't the least idea—"

Rose said, "I have. I know the river. I was brought up on it. I'm going with him."

Sally said, "You're a fool!"

Rose and Jonathan To the Rescue

"Save your breath," Rose advised. She was running, too, following Jonathan. Wet branches slapped her face, the wind tore at her skirt, her lungs ached, her eyes smarted. Sally followed, too, much against her will.

They reached the island landing. The sturdy boat lay there, moored to the little dock. Jonathan jumped in, tinkered with the engine, found the can of gasoline under the seat.

"You girls go back to the house," he shouted. The storm was increasing. It was necessary to shout.

Rose was in the boat. Jonathan turned. He said, "Say you little idiot, go back to the house with Sally."

"I won't," said Rose. "You run your engine. I'll tell you where to steer. You'd get in the current alone and if anthing went wrong with the engine, you'd be over the rapids. Someone has to tell you."

Sally said, "You're crazy I tell you, crazy!"

She hadn't much physical courage. She couldn't have set foot in that boat to save her life. She listened to the hesitating sputter of the engine which, after the longest minute in his life, Jonathan had got running. Rose had already cast off. She sat facing Jonathan, her thin frock drenched. She called, "When we get away from the island—steer clear across. I was watching them just before the storm came up."

The motor drowned whatever else she said. Sally stood there a moment and then turned to fight her way back to the house. She thought, I could telephone . . . But to whom . . . the other campers further up river might be in their camps but none had telephones.

"Good girl!" shouted Jonathan. His hair was plastered flat, his face was streaming, "sit tight, we'll find them."

Larry and Millie were in midriver. Their boat was visible to a watcher only at intervals. Millie frightened, deadly sick, clung to the sides of the boat with her little hands. Larry, sweat and rain pouring from him, struggled with the oars. He was a very strong youngster physically. And he was terrified. He hated this girl who sat pitifully crouched before him, whose lips were washed free of paint, whose lips were white and formed a prayer, whose lips kept screaming at him, "Oh, Larry, Larry, do something, do something . . . Oh, God," said little Millie, "please forgive me, please get me home safe, I won't see him ever again, I won't ever disobey. Oh, God, please, please . . ."

Larry Dexter Acts the Coward

"Sit still!" shouted Larry . . .

He was not making for home but for the nearer island, one of a group of Canadian islands. If he could make that, if he could land.

But he couldn't.

The boat wasn't moving, nothing moved except, gray-green engulfing waves. The wind battered him, the oars were useless in his blistered hands.

He measured the distance from island to boat. He couldn't row any more, he couldn't . . . But, he thought distractedly, he could swim. He was a very strong swimmer. He had swum over to the Canadian shore more than once. He might make it—alone.

Millie saw the other boat first. It came steadily toward them, a valiant little craft. She screamed, "Someone's coming out—they've seen us, Larry, they've seen us!"

Her strained bloodshot eyes watched the slow progress of the motor boat. It was often lost to sight but it always came back into sight again. There were two people in it. She didn't know who they were, didn't care. They meant home and shelter, they meant father and mother, they meant the paths of righteousness in which hereafter she would walk all her life long.

Larry didn't hear her. Perhaps the noise of the wind and the beat of rain and the waves prevented him. Perhaps he couldn't hear anything but his own heart pounding its insistent message, its demand, You must escape, never mind her, let her shift for herself, it's your life, you can't save her and yourself.

"There they are," shouted Rose and Jonathan nodded. He was sweating despite the cold impact of rain and wind. He had had trouble with the engine but for the moment it ran perfectly.

Suddenly Rose screamed. She said, thrusting her face close to his . . . "He jumped . . . Larry . . . he lost an oar and jumped . . . they've capsized."

Jonathan looked, afraid of what he must see. The punt was overturned. Millie clung to it, Larry clung to it. They were being terrifically battered. Rose exclaimed again, "He jumped!"

The "Kate Smith Hour," starring one of radio's greatest entertainers, returns to WJSV and the Columbia Network at 8 tonight for its twelfth successive season on the air. As during the past 11 seasons, the programs are produced and directed by Ted Collins.

Other regulars of the variety hour include Comedian Olyn Landick, in the role of the loquacious "Hackensack Gossip" and the Kate Smith Chorus, and every program brings guest stars from stage and screen. Music is by Jack Miller's Orchestra. Miller has worked with Kate since pre-broadcast days when she was a recording star.

Guest on the season's first show is Screen Star Ray Milland, whose latest starring film for Paramount is "The Major and the Minor." Milland is heard in an original radio drama on the "Kate Smith Hour."

Kate Smith's record of sustained popularity is unique in radio. After graduating from the Broadway stage, the "Songbird of the South" achieved stardom in her first season at the C. B. S. microphone. She has ranked among the leaders ever since.

Known in the trade as the "woman heard by more people than any woman in history," the pleasant girl who once wanted to be a nurse in Washington has lived up to that billing as a result of her constantly growing popularity through the past 11 years.

In addition to the Friday night variety hour, Kate Smith has her mid-day commentary show five days each week on C. B. S. This program has consistently topped all daytime shows in audience popularity. A statistician, checking both programs, estimates that, at the height of the season, Kate Smith's aggregate weekly audience approximates 75,000,000.

Kate and Ted also have demonstrated their skill in discovering talent and hit songs. Kate has introduced many song hits, notably Irving Berlin's patriotic hymn, "God Bless America." Some of the graduates of the "Kate Smith Hour" include the Aldrich Family, Comedians Abbott and Costello, Opera Star Dorothy Kirsten, Comedian Henny Youngman, Tommy Riggs and Betty Lou and now, Olyn Landick.

Welcome Kate!

Coveted Merit Certificate Is Won by Oakes

A Certificate of Merit as a "Superior Instructor" on military courtesy and discipline has been awarded to First Lieut. John B. Oakes, former Post reporter, now stationed at Camp Robinson, Ark.

LT. OAKES

The highly prized award, inaugurated last March at the Branch Immaterial Replacement Training Center of the camp, has previously been made to only 28 instructors in the 21 basic training subjects.

Lieutenant Oakes, a graduate of Princeton and Oxford Universities, left The Post for active duty last May 5.

Morse Advocates Review of All Wage Increases

Governmental review and approval of all general wage increases was advocated yesterday by Wayne L. Morse, public member of the War Labor Board, whose wage stabilization authority currently is limited to those cases in which there are disputes.

"The inflationary effects of a race between prices and wages," he declared, "cannot be stopped in the absence of a governmental check upon voluntary wage increases as well as those which arise from wage demands in disputed cases."

Addressing the Federal Bar Association at its weekly luncheon meeting in the Harrington Hotel, Morse said the WLB's wage stabilization "calls upon all groups of American labor, particularly those who at the present time possess great economic strength, to sacrifice the wage gains which conceivably they might secure by resort to the use of their economic power.

"Such sacrifices are necessary in the interests of a sound war economy," the speaker declared. "The board is confident that American labor can be counted upon to make such sacrifices so long as it knows that the stabilization policy will be applied without discrimination and that labor along with industry, will have a voting voice in the application of that policy in accordance with the tripartite arrangement entered into at the time of the national understanding that there would be no strikes or lockouts for the duration of the war."

Air Raid Warden Fatally Stricken In Surprise Test

Gettysburg, Pa., Sept. 17.—Emory C. Zepp, 62, an air raid warden in Gettysburg, fell dead of a heart attack at his home here yesterday afternoon when sirens sounded this community's first surprise air raid alarm test. He had run home from the Gettysburg National Bank where he worked as janitor for the last 15 years.

An officer and former Sunday School teacher in the Gettysburg Methodist Church, Mr. Zepp was an officer of the Gettysburg camp of the P. O. S. of A. His wife and two daughters survive.

Mr. Zepp's sudden death furnished the first genuine emergency call civilian defense staff members have handled. Dr. W. S. Mountain, first aid chief, and two nurses rushed to the Zepp residence while the test raid alarm was in progress.

Charter Post Is Declined By Gardner

Allen H. Gardner, president of the Montgomery County Charter Committee, yesterday refused to accept his nomination by the County Commissioners as a candidate for the County Charter Board.

After the filing of the charter petition this week, the County Commissioners, in special session Wednesday afternoon, nominated a five-man slate as their candidates for the charter board, among them Gardner, who has been the leader of the charter movement in the county. The other candidates named were Joseph A. Cantrel, attorney to the County Commissioners; J. Bond Smith, counsel to the Maryland Park and Planning Commission; Otto W. Anderson, county farm agent, and Roger J. Whiteford, attorney.

In a strongly worded statement yesterday, Gardner said:

"The Commissioners' nomination of candidates for the Charter Board is an act of hypocrisy true to the best traditions of professional politicians. Three of the nominees, Joseph A. Cantrel, J. Bond Smith and Roger J. Whiteford, have already tried to kill the charter movement with misleading statements. The first two are office holders and the third has from time to time received compensation from the county for legal services and may not, therefore, be entirely disinterested. No amount of professional ability on their part will compensate for what will be, if they accept the nomination, demonstrated insincerity. If they are elected as three members of the charter board of five, the public will doubtless witnes the open, deliberate sabotage of the charter movement."

"Their nomination of me," he continued, "is a trick to confuse the voters and perhaps discredit me. I feel very strongly that, as the head of the charter committee, I should not be a candidate for the charter board. Therefore, I am refusing the nomination and I am so notifying the County Commissioners, who never consulted me in using my name.

"The Maryland Constitution wisely provides that the voters may by petition make nominations to the Charter Board. Since in general these (the county commissioners') nominations have been made to render the Charter Board impotent, there is nothing left for the people to do but to take the matter into their own hands.

The Charter Committee will, therefore, at an early date secure the signatures of 2000 voters to a petition nominating additional persons who have ability and who have demonstrated their faith that the county government can be improved through the charter procedure."

War Messages Must Be Filed at Once

The American Red Cross yesterday announced that persons wishing to communicate with prisoners of war or military men missing in action in the Far East should go immediately to their local Red Cross Chapters and file messages which will be carried on the exchange ship Gripsholm, soon to sail on its second voyage.

Assurance that the notes will reach the men was not given by the Red Cross but the International Red Cross delegate in Japan will make every effort to see that delivery is made.

Reno, Nev., Sept. 18.—Mrs. Sara A. Walker was granted a divorce here today from James E. Walker, on a charge of cruelty. Both gave their addresses as Washington, D. C., and were married there May 28, 1938.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborne

Four men bridge players and a kibitzer had a lot of fun with today's hand when the South player succeeded in taking 11 tricks at spades on his birdseed holding.

We hear from the kibitzer, a Boston friend, Jerome Scheuer, who says:

"I suggested that if the declarer, Carl Barnett, could make five-odd with the collection of junk he held, what could he make if he had a real bid, and we all had quite a laugh out of it.

"Despite his three-plus honor tricks, East did not think it expedient to open the bidding with his flat hand, both because of the score and because he did not wish to invite a diamond opening if South should become declarer. South thought some third-hand action was in order. North naturally raised, and now the level was too high for East to come in at all.

"Not wishing to lead away from his two red kings, West opened the eight of trumps, and East's king fell to declarer's ace (had East ducked it would have made no difference). Declarer now led a low diamond and finessed dummy's eight spot, and his eyebrows lifted as it held the trick.

"He now led a low heart from dummy, and East hopped up with the ace and led a low trump to cut down dummy's ruffing power. Dummy won and led a low club. East ducked and declarer's king held the trick, and the ace and nine spot of diamonds afforded South two club discards, with East having to follow suit each time and West being unable to ruff the last one. The next four tricks were won by cross-ruffing hearts and clubs, and though East took the thirteenth trick with the thirteenth trump, declarer had made five-odd. He lost only a spade and the ace of hearts."

In another letter we hear that a small slam was missed by a pair of Oak Park, Ill., players, and they want to know the reason why.

	♠ Q 9 4 ♡ K Q 10 8 7 5 4 ◇ K 7 ♣ 4
♠ 3 6 ♡ K 10 9 6 3 ◇ K J 8 ♣ 10 8 4	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ K 8 2 ♡ A Q 7 ◇ 5 4 3 2 ♣ A J 7
	♠ A Q 10 5 ♡ J 5 4 3 ◇ 10 7 ♣ K 9 6

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	3 ♡
Pass	4 ♡	Pass	Pass
Pass

"The question arose as whether or not East was correct bidding four hearts rather than spades, or bidding another suit, whereas the opinion of most seemed to be that the hand so far as it went was bid correctly, but that West should have bid four spades after East's raise of a heart, thereby giving East an opportunity to go farther."

The hand was poorly bid by both players. West did not have the values for a forcing take-out, and probably this explains why he passed without showing his spade support, for he realized that his jump to three hearts was an overbid.

East, of course, should not raise with a singleton—even the singleton ace. At least three cards with an honor are required for a raise, and most players prefer four cards.

West's pass of four hearts was ill-chosen, for after forcing the hand he should have more courage than to let the bidding die abruptly.

East has almost an opening forcing two bid, so his should be the master hand and take the initiative in the bidding. There are several ways to reach the lay-down six-spade contract. The early bidding might go something like this:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡
Pass	3 ♣	Pass	4 or 5 ♠

East will have to take a chance on the club suit being stopped in some fashion by his partner, and if he is an experienced bidder he will probably try to get in a club bid to stave off a lead in the suit.

Jobs Available, D. C. Paroles 249 in Year

Wartime job opportunities and the addition of one field officer made it possible for the District Parole Board to parole 106 more prisoners in the 1942 fiscal year than in the preceding period, according to the board's annual report released by the Commissioners yesterday.

On the other side of the picture, the unfavorable housing conditions in Washington prevented the paroling of certain other prisoners because homes suitable to the board could not be found, Frank R. Jelleff, chairman of the board said.

249 Pleas Granted

Of the 900 prisoners who became eligible for parole last year, 671 made application and 249—or 34 per cent—were granted. Those denied were mostly dismissed without prejudice and may be resubmitted.

During the year, the board had under its supervision 534 parolees, including the current ones and those carried over from previous years. Of these 121 finished their parole terms and were discharged from supervision, and warrants for the rearrest of 70 others were sworn out.

Only seven of these 70 men were rearrested for felonies, and 13 for misdemeanors, the rest for violation of the parole terms.

Also under the board's care during the year were 787 conditionally released prisoners, of whom 403 successfully completed their conditional terms, and 138 were reacrested, 68 for violating terms of their release, 48 for misdemeanors and 22 for felonies.

The board announced that 15 of its parolees were inducted into the military forces. This was made possible, it stated, by the suspension of parole supervision for the period of their military services. In addition, many have been placed in defense industries.

Continued Use Of Jackson School Voted

Because of the "peculiar situation at the Jackson Elementary School where the parents had not been informed fully of the impending change" and because of "some uncertainty as to the full effect of population changes in that area, "the board of education resolved at a special meeting yesterday to continue use of that school until next January 29, at which time it will be possible to ascertain the community needs."

In making the report and recommendation on the case to the board, Acting Schools Superintendent Robert L. Hancock shed new light on the situation by bringing out the lack of allowances in the budget for hiring new teachers for elementary schools.

Haycock pointed out that the 1944 public school estimates do not contain any new teaching positions for the elementary schools of divisions one through nine, due to a decrease in enrollment in these sections. At the same time, he stressed, the development by next February of six new schools in the Anacostia area necessitated expansion of teacher personnel in that area.

"It was hoped that through closing the Jackson School and transferring those four teachers to vacancies in schools in the Geargetown section we could release teachers' salaries to be employed in acquiring an adequate staff in the Anacostia schools," Haycock explained.

Jere Crane, assistant superintendent in charge of business affairs, said the desks, books and other materials used in the Jackson School had been distributed to schools "not only in the region but all over the city." He said it would be a "substantially full job rounding such material up again" for opening classes this Monday.

Myron C. Taylor Resuming Post At the Vatican

By the Associated Press

Secretary of State Hull said yesterday that Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal representative at the Vatican, is returning to his post despite the fact that Italy and the United States are at war.

Replying to press conference questions about Taylor's future activities, Hull said he would resume his mission to the Vatican and would remain there for a limited time.

Asked if this meant the Italians had granted safe conduct to the President's emissary, Hull replied that would have to be assumed. (The Vatican state is entirely independent of belligerent Italy. However, it is entirely surrounded by territory of a nation at war with the United States.)

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Duty's Call

Col. Snow Ordered to Fort Belvoir

The District government will lose one of its most popular and efficient officials on October 12, when Col. Beverly G. Snow, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, will leave his District assignment for duty at the Engineer Replacement Center at Fort Belvoir, Va.

COL. SNOW

Colonel Snow, who was assigned by the War Department as assistant to Engineer Commissioner Charles W. Kutz on June 20, 1940, has not only been doing the work formerly divided among three assistants, but has shouldered much of the responsibility for the District public works program.

His later extracurricular assignment is the superscrap drive which begins Sunday. As chairman of the special committee appointed by the Commissioners to get the drive under way, he has the duty of coordinating the collection, transportation, storage and processing forces working together for the scrap salvage.

During the past year, Snow was almost automatically made chairman of every committee called for special work by the Commissioners. He was chairman of the Civilian Defense policy committee and the police investigation committee, of the District petroleum conservation committee and of the aluminum collection committee, to name the major ones.

A native of Durham N. C., Snow was graduated from Trinity College (now Duke University) and the Military Academy at West Point. He also completed a course at the Engineer School at Fort Belvoir.

Before coming to the District, Snow had seen service in Panama and the Philippines and had been ROTC instructor in military tactics at the University of Alabama. He had also served as assistant U. S. Army district engineer in New York.

Parks Board Elects Grant Its Chairman

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday unanimously elected Brig. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, as chairman to succeed Frederic A. Delano, who submitted his resignation to President Roosevelt, his nephew, on April 28, 1941.

The President appointed General Grant to the position August 31, after he had told Delano to remain as chairman "until a suitable man could be found to fill the post."

General Grant, who is also head of the Protection Branch in the Office of Civilian Defense, will serve as chairman of the commission through the remainder of Delano's term, ending next April.

Retiring Chairman Delano was elected to that position in 1929. He was praised by the commission for his outstanding service of 25 years to this city.

Also announced by the commission was the assignment of eight additional playgrounds to the District. They are the Palisades, Lafayette Recreation Center School, Coolidge, Banneker, Francis and Taft Recreation Centers, the Langdon Park Playground and the Fort Mahan Playground.

Norman C. Brown, land purchasing officer, reported to the commission that the last property needed to complete the Harrison School Playground for Negro children, had been obtained. The property was acquired without condemnation, Brown said.

The playground site is across from the school on the south side of V Street between Thirteenth and Fourteenth Streets Northwest.

A small addition to Alger Park, at Thirty-first Street and W Place Southeast, will be purchased to supplement recreational facilities in that neighborhood, it was said.

Bruce Allen, Western Union superintendent here, was named chairman yesterday of a seven-man committee of prominent business executives who will direct the Community War Fair at Uline's Arena beginning October 22.

ALLEN

The fair, an eight-day demonstration of the home and war front activities carried on by the agencies participating in this year's Community War Fund Drive for $4,141,000, will precede the opening of the fund-raising campaign.

In addition to Allen, other members of the committee are Col. William P. McCracken, jr., attorney; Carter Barron, manager of Loew's Washington theaters; James A. "It is our hope to give Washingtonians an entertaining, visual report of the world-wide functions of the Community War Fund agencies," Allen said last night in accepting the appointment. "These activites are vital to the morale and wellbeing of our people at home and our friends on the battle fronts. In addition, we are planning to add a great deal of entertainment brilliance to this community show. Verdict in Police Pistol Sale Trial Expected Today

A jury verdict is expected today in the Municipal Court trial of Felix E. Martini, 34, former Capitol policeman, who is charged with selling two pistols without a retail dealer's license.

Martini, who lives at 247 Eleventh Street Southeast, denied on the witness stand yesterday that he sold the guns, claiming they were purchased in Virginia and that he merely delivered them to the customers, who were friends of his.

Assistant United States Attorney John L. Ingoldsby and Defense Attorney Richard A. Harman completed their closing arguments to the jury late yesterday, and Judge George D. Neilson said he would charge the jurors this morning.

Harman produced records of the National Pawnbrokers Exchange of Rosslyn, Va., showing entries for the sales of the two guns, but policemen testified that an investigation of the books August 7 did not reveal such entries.

Martini has been on the Capitol force for more than a year and was formerly a New York detective. He is a licensed wholesale dealer in pistols.

Three Women Die in 'Mercy Killing' Pact

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 17.—A 59-year-old woman shot her ailing mother, sister and self because, she said in a note found with their bodies today, what "we are suffering God only knows."

"This is mercy," wrote Mrs. Rita Van Steenberg, before she fired a pistol bullet into her temple. With two other shots she had killed her 87-year-old mother, Mrs. Christina Bauer, and her spinster sister, Lena, 57.

"I took the life of mother and sister," the note addressed simply "To the authorities" said. "Both prayed to die. I also want to die for the future is very dark for sister and I."

Police physicians said all three bodies showed signs of a wasting disease. Mrs. Baure's body was found in a bed in the women's two-room apartment in a busy North Side neighborhood. Lena's body was on a couch and Mrs. Van Steenberg's was on the floor, the pistol nearby.

A hotel clerk Clifford Dunlap, said the women had lived in the apartment for two years. He said Mrs. Bauer and Lena never left their rooms and that Mrs. Van Steenberg did the shopping.

The modest apartment consisted of a bedroom and a living room and a Pullman kitchen containing a bottle of milk and a few cans of soups and vegetables.

A housekeeper in the hotel said the women appeared to have had an independent income and formerly had owned a large home in suburban Maywood. She said Mrs. Van Steenberg often had mentioned the loneliness of her life and frequently recalled better days.

It Costs More To LOSE A War!

- Yes . . . pork chops ARE a little higher than they were a year ago . . . but even pork chops help to fight the war.
- You see, we're putting everything we have into our effort for an All-Out Victory . . . and this means EXTRA money, EXTRA effort, EXTRA sacrifice.
- Victory is expensive, we'll admit . . . but please remember this:
- IT COSTS EVEN MORE TO LOSE A WAR!
- We stand to lose EVERYTHING in defeat. Because this is a war of survival. This is total war . . . and our Victory must be total. Anything less will be a mockery to those who are buying our Freedom with their lives.
- No sacrifice we can possibly make is too great. Actually it's a privilege to put our dimes and quarters and dollars into battle. And it's the world's safest, surest savings plan . . . because Uncle Sam pledges every dollar back with generous interest!
- This is our cushion to ease the shock of war-to-peace adjustment. This is our backlog for future security. But most of all, this is our part in winning the war.
- We MUST win . . . whatever the cost.
- Buy more . . . and more . . . and more War Savings Stamps and Bonds.
